Refugees' return demanded

Reds say 80,000 forced to leave Vietnam

United Press International

South Vietnam's new Communist rulers demanded Friday that the United States return 80,000 refugees it charged were forced to leave the country, in some cases after being drugged, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Hanoi.

North Vietnam, meanwhile, accused the U.S. and Thailand of "unsavory tricks" which allowed a U.S. Navy aircraft carrier this week to repossess more than 100 aircraft left in Thailand by fleeing South Vietnamese pilots.

The new Saigon government and the U.S. both claimed title to the aircraft, and Tanjug said the South Vietnamese Foreign Ministry had also protested the repossession.

The North Vietnamese news agency said the Viet Cong barred flights of foreign aircraft over South Vietnam without prior permission starting Friday and warned it would take "necessary measures" against violators.

The news agency, in a dispatch printed in Tokyo that quoted the Viet Cong's Giai Phong press agency, said the regulations applied to both military and civilian aircraft.

UPI Correspondent Alan Dawson, in a delayed dispatch from Saigon, reported there were indications there would be no drastic shift to hard core communism in South Vietnam despite the takeover by the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government.

Political analysts in Saigon predicted an internal struggle between hard-core North Vietnamese leaders who want instant communization and reunification of Vietnam, and South Vietnamese Viet Cong who favor a gradual switch to the left and separate status for the two Vietnams.

The last South Vietnamese president, retired Gen Duong Van "Big" Minh, who surrendered to the Communists April 30, said he expected to hold an advisory post in the new government.

Tanjug said the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government charged that most of the South Vietnamese it said were forcibly made refu-

Viet orphan investigation

By DOUGLAS E. KNEELAND
New York Times Service

SAN FRANCISCO — The Immigration and Naturalization Service is reinvestigating many of the 2,000 or so Vietnamese children rushed into this country last month in an attempt to determine whether any are not really orphans and therefore not eligible for adoption.

Since the normally slow-moving immigration-for-adoption process was speeded up in early April in the face of the imminent fall of the South Vietnamese government, the service has encountered continuing allegations that the haste with which the children were admitted led to serious irregularities.

"WE'RE NOT infallible, we're just doing our utmost to create an authentic record for every one of these children," Gordon F. Davidson, deputy director for the San Francisco district of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said in disclosing that the reinvestigation was taking place.

Refugees pose no health threat to Americans. Story on Page A-11.

Here in San Francisco reports of possible irregularities flowed out of the Presidio, the Army base where most of the children had been kept before being released to licensed adoption agencies. These reports led to a class action suit filed in Federal District Court asking that the adoption of all the children be enjoined until it could be determined whether any of them had parents or other close relatives in Vietnam who had not signed releases on them.

Meanwhile, in Washington, the House Judiciary subcommittee on immigration was said to have asked the immigration service to keep it informed on the status of the children. Sources close to the subcommittee also said that hearings were expected soon on the subject.

IN THE San Francisco suit, Muoi McConnell, a Vietnamese nurse who had volunteered to help take care of the children at the Presidio, said she had talked there with two young sisters and a brother, 3, 6 and 7 years old, who had told her they had parents in Vietnam. She said they had told her that they had become lost and placed in an orphanage, and a few days later had been brought to the United States against their wishes.

Miss McConnell said that shortly thereafter the children had been taken from the Presidio and she had been refused any information on their whereabouts.

Although Miss McConnell is the plaintiff of record, the suit was initiated by an ad hoc group called the Committee to Protect the Rights of Vietnamese Children, which was formed during the days of the orphan airlift.

King doctors risk jobs, continue strike

By MIKE KRUGLAK
Staff Writer

Despite the threat of immediate firings, striking doctors at Martin Luther King Hospital in Wilmington voted late Friday to continue their walkout.

Contacted after the vote, county officials said they would stick to their previously announced decision to fire any residents or interns who have not reported to work after three days.

About 25 interns and residents were expected to receive notices of termination today if they failed to appear for work. Another 20 were expected to receive similar notices Sunday, and 20 more on Monday.

In a statement issued after the meeting, strikers said they "voted overwhelmingly to continue the struggle for quality patient care, despite the written threats from Los Angeles County to terminate all of us.

"Quality patient care is a fundamental right for all individuals and the achievement of this right requires determined struggle," the strikers said.

"They are putting themselves in the position of being fired, Board of Supervisors Chairman James Hayes said after the vote to continue the strike was taken at about 10 p.m. Friday.

Dan Grindell, a deputy to Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, said the firings would come under a standard county rule that provides that any employe who fails to report for work for three days without checking in or providing a doctor's note is considered to have abandoned the job.

He said the interns and residents are considered temporary contract employes and are not eligible for civil service rights to appeal their firings

Grindell said about 37 of the hospital's 119 residents and interns stayed on duty during the strike, and another 17 were on excused absences before the strike began.

Protest leaders said all but about 10 of the interns and residents were involved in the strike.

Earlier Friday, Hayes appealed to the striking doctors to return to work, pledging to Dr. Louis Simpson, leader of the protesters, that the county would make a "good-faith" effort to review complaints about patient care.

The pledge came after supervisors voted to investigate complaints by the strikers that health care was inadequate at King and two other county hospitals.

Hayes talked to Simpson shortly before the start of the 6 p.m. meeting at which the interns and residents were to decide whether to remain off duty and risk loss of their jobs.

The strikers' five immediate demands included filling prescriptions for intravenous cases and for outpatients more quickly, 24-hour operation of the

Sharp found guilty of lying

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Former Long Beach City Councilman Wayne Sharp Friday was found guilty of knowingly giving false information to sheriff's deputies investigating his November, 1974, auto wreck.

The verdict was returned at 11 a.m. in Compton Municipal Court, where jurors Thursday began deliberations in the case.

Judge Everett E. Ricks Jr. postponed sentencing of the one-time state Assembly candidate until after May 27, when defense attorney James Oliver will argue for a new trial.

Sharp, who said he had refused to consider plea-bargaining in the case on grounds he was innocent, was visibly disheartened by the verdict.

Asked by the judge if the May date was agreeable for the new trial motion, Sharp waved his hand. "Anything," he said.

Sharp originally was charged with two counts of giving false information to investigators. The charges —one of which was dismissed by Ricks—were based on separate sections of the state Vehicle Code.

OLIVER SUCCESSFULLY argued that one charge—of giving false information for a report to be filed with state authorities—should be dismissed on grounds the prosecution had failed to show any such report had ever been filed.

In finding Sharp guilty on the other charge, jurors apparently were swayed by a tape recording of an interview Sharp had with Deputy Kenneth Rehbein 10 days after the Nov. 1 accident.

The jury twice interrupted its deliberations to have court officials replay the tape.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Al Botello had argued that Sharp's version of the accident as told to Rehbein conflicted in detail with what he told officers shortly

Optimism soars for economic recovery

By RICHARD HUGHES
UPI Business Writer

The government said Friday U.S. businesses reduced their unsold stock of goods by a record amount in March, establishing a base for eventual resumption of full production.

The sharp reduction in inventories, reported by the Commerce Department, added to optimism that the worst of the recession is over.

In other developments encouraging to economic recovery:

—A Senate and House conference committee agreed to a resolution limiting the 1976 fiscal-year debt to $68.8 billion, $8.8 billion higher than President Ford proposed but considered by most economists to be manageable.

—The Internal Revenue Service mailed $1.7 billion in tax rebate checks, the first of $8.1 billion in rebates designed to stimulate consumer spending and give a push to an economic upturn.

—Retail sales increased 1 per cent to $46.6 billion from March to April when the first income tax refund checks began to reach consumers, Commerce said. The increase came despite a $500 million drop in food sales. Sales of new cars, building materials, hardware and farm equipment lead the advance.

—The brightening business picture and an easing of interest rate pressure sent prices sharply higher on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones industrial average Friday rose 9.63 points to 850.13.

The large inventory reduction of $645 million, the sharpest plunge since records were begun in 1948, to an adjusted level of $72.27 billion was brought about by cutbacks in production rather than by a surge in sales.

But it has the result of preparing the way for fuller industrial production if consumer demand surges, as economists hope it will, as a result of the rebate on 1974 taxes and cut in 1975 withholding.

Administration officials and economists have said if the money is saved or used to pay bills it would have a minimum impact on stimulating production.

MEANWHILE, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told the Business Council, meeting in Hot Springs, Va., that increasing employment, the massive reduction in business inventories and the easing of inflation provide "clear and convincing evidence that the recession is bottoming out."

But Simon said a growth of 7½ per cent in the nation's money supply, the outside limit imposed by Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, carries "a high risk of igniting a new round of inflation."

Evidence that the recession still lingers came in an announcement by Ford Motor Co. that the No. 2 automaker would close two car and one engine plant next week, idling an additional 8,175 temporarily. But Ford said its total of workers on indefinite layoffs would be down to 20,100 from 20,600.

Many more years seen for the Pill

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

The man who helped to develop the Pill said in Long Beach Friday that it looks as if women are going to be stuck with the Pill for a good many years.

Dr. Carl Djerassi, professor of chemistry at Stanford University, told an audience at Long Beach State University: "Women here (in the LBSU lecture hall) will be past the menopause before they see any major improvement in antifertility agents."

Women complain about the side effects and complications of oral contraceptives, and there's no doubt that better products are needed, he said. But the chances of getting them soon are remote.

One roadblock, he said, is the special requirements that have been imposed upon researchers dealing with oral contraceptives. For one thing, years of animal research are required.

Under present conditions, he noted, it will require 150 to 250 months and $6 million or more to develop a male contraceptive.

But a more promising approach would be development of a different kind of antipregnancy agent — a menses inducer, he said. It would be a once-a-month pill that would start menstruation and prevent implantation in the womb of a fertilized egg.

The pill for men seen in use within five to 10 years. Page A-7.

But under present research-and-development restrictions, it would take 126 to 210 months and $7 million to $18 million to develop such a drug — "and that's under perfect conditions with everyone cooperating," Djerassi said.

But time is the most valuable commodity an antifertility researcher has, he continued. It now takes less than 10 years for an additional billion people to come into the world. And there will be another billion each 10 years after that.

"This not like a cancer drug," Djerassi said. "If we don't get one (cancer cure) for 50 years, it won't change things. Certainly, people will suffer and die, but life in general will go on."

The population explosion, on the other hand, is a different matter altogether. It will change the whole way of life for nations. The lack of better methods of birth control appears to have contributed to the continuing high rate of abortion. Forty million women in the world have abortions each year, he said. "It's preposterous to try to make them illegal," he commented.

In the late 1960s Djerassi worked with a small pharmaceutical company which was the first to synthesize an effective oral contraceptive. Today he owns a Palo Alto firm, Zoecon, which makes hormonal insect-control agents.

Djerassi said that medical research of all kinds could be accelerated if the research control invested in the U. S. Food and Drug

Hiss asks reinstatement

Combined News Services

BOSTON — Alger Hiss asked court permission Friday to return to the practice of law almost a quarter century after a spy case perjury conviction shattered his impressive career and helped launch that of Richard M. Nixon. The slim, gray-haired former State Department official, now a stationery salesman in New York, sat impassively next to his son in the rear of the Massachusetts Supreme Court courtroom. At the bench, his attorney, John Groden, told a panel of seven judges Hiss "contributed significantly" to society despite being denied the right to practice his profession. Controversy has swirled about Hiss since the House Un-American Activites Committee made his a household name in 1948. He served five years in prison on a conviction for perjury that came from that investigation.

Refugee dilemma

HOLLYWOOD — Singer Eartha Kitt, whose outspokenness at the White House brought Lady Bird Johnson to tears, said Friday America's poor and minorities should have priority over Vietnamese refugees. Miss Kitt, back from a tour of Scandinavia, said she heard about President Ford asking millions of dollars for Vietnamese and it made her do some "heavy thinking." "The U.S. government is spending a million dollars a day for relocation of Vietnamese," she said. "I am not against this policy but America's poor and minorities should be equally privileged. They should receive such concern and economic response first."

Meantime in New Orleans, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said he would support a progam aimed at resettling the refugees in other Asian nations. "I think they would feel more at home leading their lives in countries with similar cultures and languages," he said.

Policy critic

WASHINGTON — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, calling U.S. foreign policy in the past 50 years a failure, said Friday night he believes a strong military is the key to America's future. Speaking to a banquet at St. John's College High School despite angry opposition from the Archbishop of Washington, Wallace said all the U.S. has to show for its last half century of diplomacy is "four wars." If the U.S. had treated Germany properly after World War I there would have been no World War II, he said.

School violence

BOSTON — Black and white high school students clashed for the third consecutive day in Boston Friday. Five white girls were injured. Police knew of no specific reason for the racial fighting, but said the students just "starting swinging at each other." The fight broke out at the Barton-Rodgers Annex of Hyde Park High School. About 75 white students refused to enter the building and a few minutes later "an undetermined" number of white students who had gone inside walked out, school officials said.

Railway auction

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department has recommended an auction sale of the Penn Central and other financially ailing railroad lines in the Northeast and Midwest to solvent railroads elsewhere. That position was advanced by Deputy Asst. Atty. Gen. Keith Clearwaters of the antitrust division to a House subcommittee which is reviewing a plan to restructure the bankrupt systems into a new federally supported Consolidated Rail Corporation, or ConRail. The ConRail plan was unveiled in February by the United States Railway Association, a government agency.

INTERNATIONAL

Pan Am 'kickback' furor

LONDON — British authorities threatened Friday to hold Pan American Airways jetliners at London's Heathrow airport if the airline puts into effect a plan to pay travel agents bigger bonuses than international regulations permit, the Times of London said. The paper also said the U.S. State Department has warned Britain that U.S. landing rights of British Airways will be "in jeopardy" if action is taken against Pan Am. The dispute, which aviation sources here said could escalate into a transatlantic airlines war, stems from Pan American's scheme to give travel agents a 10 per cent commission on ticket sales that top 70 per cent of last year's levels. International Air Transport Association rules only permit a 7 per cent commission.

War memorial

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union Friday marked the 30th anniversary of the end of World War II in Europe with a call for peace, a Kremlin champagne-and-caviar reception and a Red Square parade of old soldiers. A nationwide minute of silence in honor of the nation's 20 million war dead capped two days of ceremonies recalling the Soviet role in the conflict, which is known here as the Great Patriotic War.

"On behalf of the 250 million Soviet people, we call on all to whom the planet's future is dear—let us do everything so that it be peaceful," said a joint message by the Communist party and government leaders. "A lasting peace, freedom of the peoples is the most worthy monument to those who perished during the war."

Guru's exit barred

NEW DELHI — Guru Majaraj Ji, caught up in a family conflict that erupted while he was in the U.S., was barred Friday from leaving India. A Delhi judge ordered the 17-year-old Indian religious leader to remain in the country pending settlement a contempt of court suit brought by his eldest brother over distribution of photos alleged to be false and slanderous. The legal action marked the latest skirmish between the rival brother gurus, each of whom claims the leadership of the Divine Light Mission, an international movement founded by their late father in 1961.

Wildcat walkout

LONDON — Four thousand autoworkers at the Chrysler engine plant in Coventry began a wildcat strike for higher wages Friday and the American firm announced it might ask for government financial aid. The strikers claim they are the lowest paid of Britain's autoworkers and want an interim payment on their demand for an extra $36 a week from July 1. Their basic pay now is $132. They walked off the job despite a last-ditch offer from Chrysler's British subsidiary to give the 27,000 employes a share in running the company and in its profits. Chrysler's Canadian managing director, Donald Lander, said he was considering applying for a government loan or grant under the Industry Act to finance future products, but he said this did not mean Chrysler was inviting government takeover or partial holding.

Dachau recalled, but bitterness gone

Combined News Services

Thirty years ago today, Arnold Shay, at 23 a 5-foot-6, 59-pound walking skeleton, was among the survivors of the Dachau death camp liberated by American troops.

But hating is not the style of the now-prosperous Philadelphia tailor. Remembering is.

In two tortured years at four concentration camps before his liberation, Shay saw his father die under Nazi rifle butt blows, his mother led off to burn in the Auschwitz ovens, his two brothers and sisters taken away by the Germans for unknown destinations and himself a guinea pig in a sadistic operation.

Today, in the third floor of his home, Shay keeps an entire room filled with German and Jewish mementoes, including gruesome reminders such as a child's gas mask and a bar of soap made from human fat decanted from the burned bodies of Jewish concentration camp victims. He also has yellow armbands with the word JUDE in black, documents bearing Adolph Hitler's signature, boots once worn by an SS member, a silver table knife from Berchtesgaden.

In Dachau, Shay exchanged his name for a number tattooed on his arm — it's still there, 135584.

Then one Sunday, he was selected for a medical experiment.

ARNOLD SHAY AT WORKSHOP

"They strapped me on a table, cut me open and then closed up the incision, all without sedatives." He wasn't to know for 10 years what had happened.

The next day he was carrying rocks with a detail. He felt blood oozing down his leg and realized the stitches had broken. Fearful his captors would kill him if they found out, he stitched the flesh together with electrical wire.

Ten years later, after several attacks of severe pain, he was operated on here. An amazed surgeon asked him to account for the "rust in my insides." He told him about the wire.

He also learned that the "medical experiment" was the insertion of cotton and gauze to determine how long a person might live after he was suffused with infection from the nonsterile matter.

Looking back on the holocaust and "the greatest resistance in 2,000 years," Arnold Shay says: "I can't be bitter. But you can't forget what you suffered."

Mother

Mrs. Josephine Wainman Burson of Memphis, Tenn., was named American Mother of the Year Friday in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York, and she promptly issued a controversial opinion—that passage of the Equal Rights Amendment is not vital to women's rights in the U.S.

"I don't think the dire predictions some people have made will happen if it does not pass," said Mrs. Burson, 59 and mother of two and grandmother of two.

"There are inequities in the treatment of women which need to be corrected," she said following her selection by The American Mothers Committee. "But whether or not the Equal Rights Amendment will take care of this, I really don't know."

Mrs. Burson has served as a Tennessee and national official in programs to develop employment opportunities for women and is active in Jewish philanthropies.

Her rule for good motherhood: "There are things you have to give up," she said, "but you don't give up your family."

JOSEPHINE BURSON

Hero

A statue of America's most decorated World War II hero, Audie L. Murphy, will be unveiled in San Antonio, Texas, May 17, in a ceremony marking Armed Forces Day. The statue will stand in front of a $36 million, 18-month-old hospital which bears Murphy's name.

Secretary of the Army Howard B. Callaway will be the principal speaker at the ceremony.

Actor

Actor Philip Dorn, a handsome, deep-voiced leading man in films from 1939 to 1953, died Friday at the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital in Los Angeles. He was 73.

Dorn, who was born in Holland, died of a heart attack. He had been incapacitated for nearly 10 years after a head injury on stage in Europe and a subsequent stroke.

Homosexuals ruled eligible for LAPD

Associated Press

The Los Angeles city attorney's office said Friday that homosexuals are legally acceptable for employment as police officers.

"The far-reaching opinion, submitted to the city's Civil Service Commission, said "mere homosexuality, standing alone, does not justify disqualification" from the Los Angeles Police Department.

THE opinion by City Atty. Burt Pines came one day after the California Legislature approved a bill legalizing all private sexual acts between consenting adults. The bill was authored by Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr. of San Francisco.

Los Angeles Police Chief Edward M. Davis said the opinion could not be fully interpreted until Gov. Brown signs the bill into law or vetoes it.

"This bill will decriminalize sodomy and oral copulation in private," Davis said in a statement. "These acts are now felonies. As long as those laws remain in effect, people who violate them as a way of life obviously can't serve as police officers and probably as teachers."

A POLICE spokesman said Davis would have no further comment on the opinion "until he knows whether or not Brown is going to save the people of California from the necessity of determining the rights of homosexuals to sensitive public employment."

The city attorney's opinion was based on the 1973 American Psychiatric Association decision which removed homosexuality from its classification of mental disorders.

The opinion referred to the so-called homosexual bill of rights passed by the Legislature, but Asst. City Atty. John B. Rice said this was not taken into account in the opinion.

Rice said private sexual behavior, including homosexuality, should be studied on a case-by-case review rather than by an "all inclusive standard."

THE opinion said, "It is also our view that it would be extremely difficult to develop a legally sustainable preemployment standard which permits direct inquiry into the exclusively private consensual sexual conduct of applicants.

"While the issue is not free from doubt, and while there are no cases specifically dealing with police officer candidates, we believe that the California courts are moving in the direction of holding that an otherwise qualified applicant should not be disqualified solely because he or she engages in private consensual sexual conduct of any nature, unless it is medically recognized as symptomatic of a disqualifying medical or psychiatric condition."

Nutritious

Some time ago I read in Action Line about a high protein food used in undeveloped countries. I bought a couple of cases of it but while I was in the hospital someone broke into my house and took everything, including the food. I want to buy some more but can't remember where to get it. J.B., Cypress.

MPF, multipurpose food, is available by mail order from General Mills Chemicals Inc., 121 W. Whittier Blvd., La Habra, Calif. 90631, and General Mills Inc., 400 Second Ave. South, Dept. 175, Minneapolis, Minn. 55440, and at retail from Deseret Food Storage warehouses at 1702 Huntington Drive, Alhambra, 282-1153, and at 11521 Santa Monica Blvd., West Los Angeles, 478-0229. General Mills' prices are $4.50 for a 4½ pound can and $24.30 for a six-can case. It is sold only by the case in their La Habra plant. Deseret prices are $5.15 per can. MPF is a protein-enriched food supplement made from a soybean base to which vitamins and minerals are added. It comes in powdered and granular form and can be added to any food to boost a meal's nutritional value. A special recipe booklet is included with each can. In the past, the Meals for Millions Foundation in Los Angeles made and marketed MPF but it sold the recipe to General Mills and is paid royalties on each sale. The nonprofit foundation is now involved in helping several underdeveloped countries improve their food supply, and is no longer distributing MPF around the world.

Re: cycle

My motorcycle was stolen in mid-March and recently I got a call from the Long Beach Police Department saying it had been recovered in Costa Mesa. I have been stationed at the naval base here for the past eight months and I didn't have time to go and get it because my ship left for Alameda the next morning. I contacted my ship's chaplain but he says there is nothing he can do. Can you help me arrange to get my bike? V.L.B., Pacifica.

You should have your motorcycle by now. We learned that it was apparently in running condition and was being stored for the police at Harbor Towing, 964 W. 17th St., Costa Mesa. The manager there agreed to ship it C.O.D. if you sent him the towing and storage charges in advance. We phoned your father and gave him that information and you have let us know that you arranged a ride to Costa Mesa to pick up the bike yourself.

Back tax

I own three desert lots in Los Angeles County and a few months ago, I was shocked to learn that my property had been turned over to the state for delinquent property taxes in 1972. I paid the taxes in 1972 and have ever since then. I have sent several copies of my 1972 tax receipt, which is stamped paid, to the Los Angeles County tax collector's office, but I can't get this matter straightened out. Can Action Line find out what's going on? H.W., Port Washington, Ohio.

You do owe the taxes, but you won't have to pay any interest or late penalties if you pay the bill promptly. When you paid the second installment of your 1972 taxes in April 1973, you paid with two checks, one of which - for $150 - bounced. In June of that year, you were notified that the check wasn't any good and you sent in another check for the same amount. The following month, the tax collector's staff returned the second check to you with a paid receipt because they mistakenly believed your taxes had been paid with the first check that bounced. Because this error caused you to believe your taxes had been paid, the tax collector's office won't hold you liable for any late fees.

Rough roads

I take Ferry Street and Terminal Way on my route to work on Terminal Island and both streets are in great need of repair. Who is responsible for their upkeep and to whom can I write to complain? R.M., Wilmington.

You can complain to the Los Angeles Harbor Department's chief engineer, Larry Whiteneck, Port of Los Angeles, P.O. Box 151, San Pedro, Calif. 90733, but department officials are aware of the problem and intend to take care of it as soon as they can. "We're in early design stages for improvement for both streets and within the next year the area should be improved considerably," said Leonard Schneider, assistant chief harbor engineer. Extensive construction work is under way in that area - to enlarge a sewage treatment plant - and more development, using more heavy equipment, is planned. The department will patch holes where they can until the major road work starts and will ask Los Angeles Public Works to improve the patchwork over their trenches.

Nude body of woman found in channel

The nude body of a 36-year-old woman was found floating in a Compton flood control channel Friday, police reported.

Sgt. John Pranin said the woman was identified by coroner's deputies through fingerprints as Anita Tomica Hai, Los Angeles.

Pranin said there were no marks on the body except for a small laceration under the left ear which, he said, may have been caused by debris in the water.

Pranin said the woman was discovered lodged in debris in the channel by horseback riders near Artesia Boulevard and Alameda Street about 1:15 p.m.

Investigators said they did not know how long the woman had been in the water, but said her body had not yet begun to decompose.

VIOLENCE breaks out Friday among angry crowd of picketing policemen in Detroit over city's policy in pending layoffs. —UPI

Police-layoff policy sparks fight among Detroit officers

DETROIT (AP) — Several hundred white Detroit policemen and their families picketed the federal courthouse Friday, protesting plans to lay off white officers with more seniority than some blacks and women.

The picketing was interrupted by a brief scuffle in which a black off-duty police officer waved a gun as he was shoved from a crowd of white police demonstrators.

The officer, identified by police as William Green, was hit in the nose. Police spokesmen said he was not seriously hurt. They said no one was arrested and police were investigating the incident.

Police said the fracas was between Green and several whites. Green said at least two of those involved were other off-duty officers.

Observers said the scuffle ended when Green apparently pulled his service revolver. Others in the crowd shouted "he's got a gun" and the fight broke up with Green helped to a squad car by on-duty officers.

"They (the officers) should continue to do their job and act as professionals until (the suits) are settled," Police Chief Philip Tannian said after the scuffle.

"Being a police officer doesn't give the license to be disorderly," he said. "That kind of conduct will not be tolerated."

Meanwhile, U.S. District Judge Ralph M. Freeman ruled that the city cannot lay off black and women officers hired under a federal affirmative action grant. He also said seniority must prevail in furloughs of those police officers whose salaries come out of city funds.

Many blacks and women on the police force were hired recently under the federal program and have less seniority than many white men. Mayor Coleman Young, a black, has contended that federal court rulings prevent him from firing the blacks and women despite the traditional labor union provisions which mandate "last hired, first fired."

A spokesman for Young said Friday the mayor would have no further comment until he read Judge Freeman's order.

Freeman, meanwhile, ruled seniority must prevail in any layoffs of the financially strapped city's policemen. The ruling came just as the demonstration broke up.

The Detroit police ranks are about 82 per cent white. Under a seniority-only layoff schedule, 43 per cent of those set for furloughs would be black. The city racial mix is about 50-50.

Facing a possible deficit of $23 million in the coming fiscal year, the city administration seeks layoffs for 825 policemen and more than 300 firemen among other city cutbacks.

Pickets involved in the four-hour demonstration carried signs reading "Real Affirmative Action — Fire the Mayor". The demonstration, organized by the Detroit Police Officers Association, backed union demands that city police layoffs be made according to seniority.

Union officials say their contract with the city specifies that any layoffs be on strictly a seniority basis.

"Police officers throughout Michigan consider this a fight for survival of their labor contract," said Carl Parsell of the Police Officers Association of Michigan, which participated in the rally.

Doctors' strike leader warns of national tieup

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A leader of the California doctors strike protesting malpractice insurance costs said Friday the walkout may spread throughout the nation.

"We are receiving increasing inquiries from states around the nation, asking the circumstances and the legal positions we are taking," said Dr. Sanford Marcus, head of the Union of American Physicians.

The physicians hope to influence the Legislature to rewrite malpractice insurance laws, reducing legal costs and limiting jury settlements. The measures are proceeding through committees.

"It is a foregone conclusion this will ultimately extend to the entire state of California," Marcus said.

Anesthesiologists in two counties south of San Francisco, and in Sacramento announced they would walk out next week in sympathy with the protest which began here May 1. Southland anesthesiologists are also organizing an effort to shut off all nonemergency surgery.

Fifty hospitals in the San Francisco area affected by the weeklong boycott continued heavy layoffs and reported losses totaling $300,000 a day. More than 3,000 of 8,500 workers were laid off.

Spokesmen for the strike leaders insisted that no one in need of medical care was going without it, but conceded there might be "inconvenience" for patients unable to obtain normal doctor services.

In San Francisco, the University of California Hospital, one of the few unaffected by the anesthesiologists boycott, reported occupancy "over 100 per cent" in some of its departments.

"We have been taking care of as many patients as we can," said Associate Hospital Administrator Jerome Yalon. "We are getting to the point where we are going to be taking only emergency cases."

City health officials reported an increase in the number of people going to public emergency hospitals and said many physicians have gone on vacation and sent their staffs on vacation.

Dr. Lorraine Smookler, acting city health director, said there has been no explanation of the lack of complaints from the public about reduced medical care in the city.

The California Nurses Association urged Gov. Brown to set up a committee to determine a method of resolving the issue.

The committee, the CNA said, should be made up of doctors, hospital officials, nurses, insurance company representatives and legislators.

"We urge a similar approach to the successful method you used in the farm labor impasse," CNA President Lila Maples said in a message to Brown.

Doctors' liability hike defended

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Skyrocketing Argonaut Insurance Co. medical malpractice insurance rates are justified, a state examiner said Friday.

"I think there's no doubt that Argonaut's rates are not excessive," Clarence Atwood, an actuary for the state Department of Insurance, said in an interview from his Los Angeles office.

Argonaut triggered walkouts by hundreds of San Francisco Bay Area physicians by announcing rate hikes of 300 per cent or more.

Atwood also said two other malpractice carriers also want major rate increases.

HE SAID Travelers wants an interim 100 per cent rate increase for many Los Angeles area doctors. "The figures they gave us indicate they need four times what they are presently charging in 1975. We're not even talking about 1976," he said.

He said Continental National American of Chicago "is trying to get a 50 per cent increase" affecting doctors in San Diego, Riverside and Imperial counties.

Doctors, not the state, approve or reject the increases, he said. But companies are required to file data with the state Department of Insurance.

Indefinite term law upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state Supreme Court Friday upheld the constitutionality of California's indeterminate sentence law, but ruled that the Adult Authority should set prison terms within a reasonable time.

The high court in upholding the law interpreted it as "requiring the Adult Authority to fix the term for each offender proportionate to the offense."

The panel concluded that under certain circumstances the maximum penalty of life imprisonment for the statue which was challenged, "might constitute cruel or unusual punishment."

The ruling stems from a suit filed by Charles Wingo, who was convicted of aggravated assault on a 72-year-old Los Angeles man who died nine days later.

He challenged his indeterminate sentence of six months to life imprisonment for his conviction of assault by force likely to produce great bodily harm.

Wingo claimed the potential penalty of life imprisonment for the offense violated the constitutional prohibition against cruel or unusual punishment.

The court affirmed Wingo's conviction and left it up to the Adult Authority to set his term.

Justice Stanley Mosk, writing for the 4-3 majority, said the categories of offenses covered by the challenged statute include a very broad range of guilty behavior.

At one end of the spectrum, he said, is conduct virtually indistinguishable from premeditated murder, while at the other end is a mere attempt to injure.

For instance, a drunk involved in a barroom brawl might try to punch someone but miss. "Yet, under the language of the statute, a conviction for that offense could carry a potential life maximum," Mosk said.

He declared the court had examined the punishment imposed for similar offenses in other states to determine if the California penalty was unusual. He said that except for Arizona, no state imposes a life term for the offenses of assault with a deadly weapon.

Thus, he added, "there can be circumstances when imposition of a life maximum term for violation of Section 245A would constitute cruel or unusual punishment."

But Mosk said the court declined to hold the entire statue void, assuming that "the Legislature intended that it be constitutionally applied" in supposing that the Adult Authority would fix terms proportionate to each offender's guilt.

Bar says insurance hike not its fault

United Press International

The president of the State Bar Association Friday characterized as "mass slander" suggestions that lawyers were primarily to blame for rising medical malpractice insurance premiums.

Brent Abel told a Los Angeles press conference that only about 1,500 to 3,000 of the state's 45,000 attorneys were involved in such cases.

"I think it's most unfortunate that, in talking about the medical malpractice problem, lawyers are all lumped together by whomever is making the reference to the cause of the problem and...I think lawyers are being subjected to what amounts to mass slander," Abel said.

The bar association has organized an advisory committee to look into the problem of medical malpractice and what might be done to stop rising insurance premiums for physicians, he said.

Abel said he would hate to see people with legitimate complaints about their medical treatment denied the right to go to court and seek damages from physicians or hospitals or both.

Don't overdo TV reform — FCC

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A family-viewing plan to remove sex and violence from television during children's viewing hours should not be carried so far it would remove "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and "Peter Pan," Federal Communications Commission Chairman Richard Wiley said Friday.

"American people feel broadcasting, as a medium that goes directly into the home and is readily accessible to children, must have some higher and different standards than other entertainment forms," Wiley said in a news conference.

He said the family-viewing plan that has emerged from his consultations with network presidents represents "flexible self-action rather than rigid government rules. The concept is not to eliminate all violence," he said.

"Violence has been a part of story-telling and imagery from the beginning of time. There is violence in the classic children's stories of 'Snow White' and 'Peter Pan' and what have you. You need to eliminate what is excessive and gratuitous."

On the fairness doctrine, Wiley said "I try to give the maximum possible discretion to broadcast journalists. I happen to think the government should stay out of the news business to the greatest extent possible. The FCC is not the national arbiter of truth and not the authenticator of the nightly news."

Supermart losing appeal

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press

The housewife's love affair with the supermarket has turned sour, and store owners are trying to figure out some way to revive the romance.

The 12,000 supermarket executives who attended the Dallas convention of the Super Market Institute this week had the message of customer dissatisfaction hammered into them by a variety of speakers.

The theme went something like this: Consumers are angry about rising food prices and they blame the supermarkets. Gleaming stores with shelf upon shelf of brand new products are not enough to attract — and hold — customers; people are buying fewer convenience items and are demanding more information about the goods they do purchase.

The store owners were urged to stop being suspicious of the news media; they were told that it's better to admit trouble honestly than to try to make excuses or cover up; they were lectured about what the consumer wants — more face-to-face contact with store employes, lower and more clearly marked prices, specials that mean real savings.

The speakers included pollsters who measure consumer attitudes about shopping, store owners who have waged allegedly successful campaigns to get their side of the food picture across to the public and women's magazine editors who reported on what readers say they want.

Among the panel discussions at the four-day conference were: "General Merchandise in the Super Market — A survey of current consumer behavior," "The Economy, the Consumer and Management Strategies," "Maintaining Effective Relations with Local Media" and "Consumer Affairs as a Marketing Strategy."

The executives were told that a survey by Yankelovich, Skelly and White, Inc., conducted for the Super Market Institute, showed growing dissatisfaction with supermarkets. In the summer of 1974, 58 per cent of those surveyed believed supermarkets struck a bad balance between profits and public responsibility; by the end of the year, 72 per cent expressed a negative attitude. A further update is in the works.

Another Yankelovich study, conducted for General Mills, was cited to show that consumers are buying fewer frozen and prepared foods, doing without meat at some meals and shopping at discount stores.

"A WOMAN doesn't get dressed to go shopping in a supermarket. She gets dressed to do battle," said Karlys Daly, beauty editor of Woman's Day, in a speech about customer attitudes.

Ms. Daly told a standing-room-only audience of several hundred store managers and owners that women enjoy shopping in department stores; they hate going to supermarkets. They want stores that are attractive, not sterile. They want increased service and advice on products.

At the same time Ms. Daly spoke, however, another panel centered on the use of electronic checkouts and the Universal Product Code, a price-marking system designed to cut costs by eliminating some of the very humans that consumers say they want to see at the store.

According to some consumer groups, use of the Universal Product Code — those funny little lines that started to appear on items last year — would limit the amount of information available to customers because prices would not be marked on individual packages.

A.W. Glokas, vice president for sales of the Stop & Shop Companies, Inc., of Boston, Mass., offered fellow supermarket executives a guide on how to deal with the news media.

He suggested meetings and followup sessions with editors and reporters. "If we aren't prepared to answer any questions asked of us or any charges made against us, we don't belong in the business," Glokas said.

Big wheat crop may rebuild U.S. reserves

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said Friday that farmers are expected to harvest a record wheat crop this year, one of the major gains needed to put more food on consumer tables.

Officials said the 1975 winter wheat crop is expected to total 1.62 billion bushels, up 16 per cent from the previous high last year. Winter wheat, planted in the fall for harvest the following summer, makes up about three-fourths of the U.S. bread grain.

The crop, soon ready for harvest in the Southern plains, would be a major step toward rebuilding depleted U.S. grain reserves. It also would bring nearer the Ford administration's goal of all-out crop production this year to help dampen retail food prices.

On Thursday, the department predicted retail food prices would rise 6 to 8 per cent this year if farmers get bumper crops. That would be in sharp contrast to grocery price increases of about 14.5 per cent in each of the past two years.

Conversely, if 1975 crop production wilts, food prices would go up at least 8 to 10 per cent and set the stage for much sharper increases in 1976, the department said.

Despite the optimistic wheat report, a big question is 1975 production of corn and soybeans. Those are much more critical to the production of beef, pork, poultry and dairy products since they are primarily used as livestock feed.

Wheat, however, supplies the flour for bread and so many of the baked goods that Americans demand. And it is the leading food grain for export to needy countries.

FEA coal-power tactics detailed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Racing against a midsummer deadline, the Federal Energy Administration detailed plans Friday for forcing power plants and factories across the nation to burn coal instead of oil or natural gas.

FEA officials said the conversions, designed to cut the nation's reliance on high-priced foreign oil and scarce natural gas, could boost electric rates for consumers in the Midwest and other areas served by gas-burning power plants.

BUT officials told a news conference that fuel costs — and thus the price of electricity — should go down where plants switch from oil to coal.

Meanwhile, House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., formally filed the energy conservation bill his committee agreed to after extended negotiations with administration officals. The committee takes a last look at the measure Monday before sending it to the House floor.

The bill would add 3 cents to the federal gasoline tax next year and might hike it by 20 cents in later years. It also would tax cars making inefficient use of gasoline, tax businesses on some fuel uses, give tax breaks for fuel saving, set oil import quotas and impose import tariffs.

The FEA coal conversion effort has assumed crash-program dimensions because the agency's authority to issue "prohibition orders" against oil and gas burning — never before exercised — expires June 30.

BEFORE that deadline arrives, FEA officials said, the program may be expanded to cover industrial plants using gas or oil-fired boilers and some power plants now being planned to burn petroleum.

Although the FEA estimates conversions at existing power plants alone would save 160 trillion cubic feet of gas and 163 million barrels of oil each year, the program may be controversal because of cost features and increased air, water, noise and solid waste pollution.

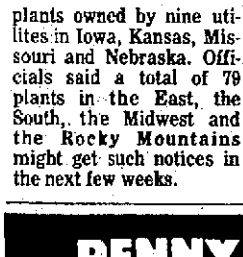

Notices starting the conversion order process already have gone to a dozen gas-burning power plants owned by nine utilites in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska. Officials said a total of 79 plants in the East, the South, the Midwest and the Rocky Mountains might get such notices in the next few weeks.

U.S. officials said blocking sports trades

By SAM SUMMERLIN

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — The interest shown by Prime Minister Fidel Castro and Sen. George McGovern in baseball diplomacy spotlights continued unofficial attempts to work out U.S.-Cuban sport exchanges.

Thus far they have all been blocked by the U.S. State Department, to the annoyance of the Cubans, Havana sources said Friday.

McGovern, in a press conference summing up eight hours of talks with Castro over a period of two days, said he had reminded Castro that contact between Peking and Washington was preceded by the journey of a U.S. table tennis team to China.

The senator suggested the exchange of U.S. college basketball teams and major league baseball teams might be a way to crack the impasse between Cuba and the United States.

McGOVERN, D-S.D., said Castro enthusiastically endorsed the idea and they both hoped that legal barriers could be removed to get an exchange of teams under way.

Cuban officials said the State Department only a few weeks ago rejected a private initiative at baseball diplomacy and they expressed surprise that McGovern did not mention this.

They said they believed Castro showed McGovern documents from the State Department rejecting a request for permission to travel to Cuba initiated by Preston Gomez, manager of the Houston Astros.

The sources said Gomez "comes to Cuba a lot and is a good friend of ours." They added he tried to get Washington's clearance to bring the Astros to Havana to play a national selection during the Astros' spring training in March.

THE Cubans said the National Institute of Sports and Recreation had lined up an all-star team to play the Americans and they were disappointed when the State Department turned down the trip after the Cubans had already agreed to give the American ball players visas.

Gomez was born in Cuba but left there to come to the United States long before Castro came to power. He is a U.S. citizen.

One of the chief promoters of the baseball diplomacy idea is Joseph D. Gebhardt, a public interest lawyer in Washington and an avid baseball fan.

GEBHARDT told McGovern staffers last month that during McGovern's trip to Cuba, the Cuban government would convey to him an invitation to send a major league baseball team to Havana to play the Cuban national baseball team.

Gebhardt said he has been working for more than a year to set up games and only a month ago received a letter from the State Department passport office saying his request to arrange games between Cuban and United States teams had been denied.

AF grounds F15 fighter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force has temporarily grounded the new F15 Eagle fighter because a part of the $1.7 million engine may crack at high speeds, the Pentagon announced Friday.

The 13 production aircraft, the very latest Air Force fighter, were grounded last Thursday. The sleek fighters, based at Luke AFB, Tex., were expected to resume curtailed flights before the end of this week, the Pentagon added.

But pilots were warned not to fly at top speed until alleged problems in turbine blades are clarified, said Pentagon spokesman Joseph Laitin.

Laitin emphasized there were no problems which might require redesigning of the expensive engines. He said 10 test planes were unaffected by the grounding order since their engines were virtually handbuilt and did not come from the production line. The production model engines "are currently being inspected for second-stage turbine blades susceptible to cracking at the highest turbine rotation speeds," he said.

Laitin said the problem was in the quality control process at the Pratt & Whitney manufacturing plant in East Hartford, Conn.

Air Force sources said the F15 engine has also suffered from nine midflight stalls. The service reportedly directed 17 propulsion experts to review all questions raised about the engines.

While the stalls were considered a major problem, they were not viewed as a serious safety consideration since the engines have all been restarted quickly after the stalls, the sources said.

U.S., Russia to exchange warship visits next week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Russia wil exchange warship visits next week for the first time since World War II, the Pentagon announced Friday.

A U.S. guided-missile frigate and a guided-missile destroyer will dock in Leningrad on Monday, the same day two Soviet destroyers arrive in Boston.

This first naval visit exchange was arranged in connection with the 30th anniversay of the allied victory over Germany in World War II.

Both visits will last five days and the 800 officers and men in each of the visiting naval forces are expected to go ashore for sightseeing.

PENTAGON spokesman Joseph Laitin said groups of Russian visitors will be permitted to board the 7,800 ton frigate Leahy and the 4,500 ton destroyer Tattnall in Leningrad.

Laitin said it is not certain whether Americans will be allowed on board the Soviet destroyers, the 4,600 ton Boykiy and the Zhguchiy in Boston.

Asked whether Russian sailors will be under any restrictions, Laitin said "the same courtesies will be extended to them as to the crews of any visiting warships."

The Soviet ships were modernized in recent years with new missile armament, including advanced antisubmarine warfare weapons.

The two U.S. warships are relatively middle-aged, having been commissioned in the early 1960s. The Leahy is based in Norfolk, Va., ths Tattnall in Mayport, Fla.

Both visiting warship groups will be led by rear admirals in their respective navies.

ALSO Vice Admiral Stansfield Turner, commander of the U.S. Second Feet, will be in Boston with his flagship, the guided missile cruiser Albany, to serve as official U.S. Navy host to the Russians.

The Soviet and U.S. navies are the world's largest and are potential rivals for control of the seas.

Both navies carefully watch the operations of their potential opponents in the Mediterranean, the Atlantic, the Pacific and elsewhere, frequently observing naval exercises.

Until a few years ago, there were periodic incidents at sea in which Soviet and U.S. Naval vessels sailed close to each other in apparent efforts to make the other flinch. But these incidents ended, as far as is known, with a formal agreement between the two navies to stop such potentially dangerous provocations.

OAS postpones action on Cuba

By DAVID BINDER

Exclusive N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — A majority of the 23 members of the Organization of American States has decided to postpone action on lifting its political-economic embargo against Cuba until next September, diplomats at the annual OAK general assembly reported Friday.

Several months ago it appeared that pro-Cuba forces in the organization had developed the momentum to bring the issue to a decisive vote about now.

THOUGH there have been increasingly amiable words between the Ford administration and Premier Fidel Castro, it appears that most of the Latin American foreign ministers who have gathered for informal discussions prefer to put off the Cuba question.

Wednesday night Castro said that the U.S. and Cuba "owe it to ourselves to live in peace," and he recommended that the U.S. partially left its trade embargo — beginning with shipments of food and medicines.

PREVIOUSLY, Castro had called for abolition of the entire embargo first imposed by the U.S. in 1962.

President Ford's spokesman, Ron Nessen, responded to Castro's proposals saying that "the White House notes that he, Castro, seems to have accepted what the United States refers to as the mutuality of obligation" in bilateral relations.

The delay in OAS action on Cuba after a year of debate appears to be based on bureaucratic rather than ideological considerations.

The organization is an extremely cumbersome structure, its members admit, with dozens of committees that have overlapping responsibilities. To revoke the embargo on Cuba imposed by the organization in 1964 would require a two-thirds majority.

THE OAS was organized on the basis of a mutual security treaty signed in Rio de Janeiro in 1947, with a charter adopted a year later in Bogota, Colombia, and amended at Buenos Aires in 1967.

To act on Cuba the organization must set up a special "organ of consultation" of either the foreign ministers or the ambassadors to OAS headquarters in Washington. Thus the Cuba issue cannot be decisively dealth with at a general assembly.

Last November the organization convened a foreign ministers' organ of consul ation on Cuba in Quito, Ecuador, but did not obtain a two-thirds majority to lift the embargo. The U.S. abstained from the vote.

THE PRO-CUBA forces now feel that it would be preferable to assembl a new majority to amend the Rio treaty and then move immediately to revoke the Cuba embargo.

U.S. policymakers' claim

China wants U.S. in Asia

By JAMES McCARTNEY
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — Top U.S. policymakers report that Communist China is urging the U.S. to retain its major military bases in the Pacific to offset a possible growth in Soviet influence.

"China," says one, "has absolutely no interest in seeing the U.S. get out" of Asia.

China's position, as officials fully realize, represents one of the major ironies in the long history of the Vietnam War. But it turns out that China not only does not appear to be expansionist right now — it doesn't want the U.S. to leave.

Officials report that China is making no effort to obtain U.S. troop withdrawals from major bases in Thailand, South Korea or The Philippines.

The U.S. has 23,000 troops in Thailand, and plans to cut the number to below 19,500 in the next two months, but the pressure for cutbacks has come from the Thais, who want to improve relations with North Vietnam.

There are about 40,000 U.S. troops in Korea and 16,000 in The Philippines.

Officials say the Chinese are particularly anxious for the U.S. to maintain troop strengths in Japan and Okinawa, here about 52,000 are stationed.

The primary Chinese fear is that a U.S. withdrawal would create a vacuum which might encourage the Soviet Union, currently China's arch enemy, to attempt to move in.

Officially, the Chinese advocate a total U.S. withdrawal of some 4,000 people remaining on Taiwan, but they haven't even been making a major issue about these forces recently.

They also, officially, favor a U.S. withdrawal from Korea, but have muted the demands in public for many months.

Chinese leaders have communicated their position on U.S. forces in unmistakable terms to U.S. official visitors to China.

One who was there recently said: "There isn't any question about it, they'll tell you about it quite frankly in private meetings."

China to have ambassador at Common Mart

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — China has decided to send an ambassador to headquarters of the European Common Market, becoming the first major Communist country to grant the nine-nation economic and trading bloc recognition.

Peking is believed to regard the Common Market as a useful counterweight in the West to Soviet and American influence.

The Chinese decision to recognize the Common Market and explore the possibility of a trade agreement with the EEC was announced Thursday by Sir Christopher Soames, vice president of the Common Market commission, at a news conference in Peking.

Latins reassured 'despite Viet fall'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger Friday assured Latin American foreign ministers that, despite the collapse of Vietnam, the United States will not abandon its international commitments.

"It must be understood that the end of the war in Vietnam does not mean the end of the international commitment of the American people," Kissinger said. "We will stand by our friends and our commitments."

Kissinger also promised his hemispheric colleagues the United States "will make a major effort to give new vitality to its Western Hemisphere relationships but this can succeed only as a cooperative enterprise."

Kissinger made the remarks in a speech that followed a luncheon he hosted in the State Department for the chiefs of the Latin American and Caribbean delegations to the Fifth General Assembly of the Organization of American States.

In his 10-page remarks, which ended with a "toast to the health of our presidents," Kissinger made no reference to Cuba and mentioned the Panama Canal negotiations only in passing when he said it was one "of the outstanding political issues" that must be solved.

Cuba and the Panama Canal negotiations are two of the issues on the agenda of the informal talks being held between Kissinger and the foreign ministers through this weekend.

Panama is also on the formal agenda of the OAS conference, but the Cuban sanctions are not, nor is it considered likely that this 11-year ban on the Havana regime will be ended at this conference.

In his reference to Washington's post-Vietnam foreign policy, Kissinger said:

"The tragic collapse of the government of South Vietnam has moved us deeply. But it must be understood that the end of the war in Vietnam does not mean the end of the international commitment of the American people. We remain committed to strengthening a peaceful world community based on self-determination and fulfillment of all peoples. We will stand by our friends and our commitments. Indeed, with the end of the war in Vietnam, we will be redoubling our attention to the great tasks of constructing a new international system."

Kissinger will meet again with the other foreign ministers today and Sunday. The chiefs of delegations will also be received by President Ford at the White House tonight.

Kissinger charts policy-selling trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will venture into America's heartland next week to drum up support for the administration's post-Indochina foreign policy.

Almost like a political campaigner, Kissinger will make speeches in St. Louis and Kansas City, have breakfast with the governor of Missouri and stop at Independence for pleasantries with the late President Harry S. Truman's widow.

With criticism of the administration and of him particularly at a high point, Kissinger told a group of newspaper editors last month that "when one ventures away from Washington into the heart of America, one is struck by the confidence, the buoyancy and the lack of any corrosive cynicism."

He will start out in St. Louis with a speech to the World Affairs Council Monday night.

Whew! that's a lot of horseradish

Odor may repel sniffers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The aerosol industry is considering addition of an irritating horseradish-like odor to spray propellants as a deterrent to potentially fatal "sniffing" by teenagers, a spokesman said Friday.

Dr. Richard B. Ward of E.I. DuPont de Nemours & Co. reported the research as the Consumer Product Safety Commission began public hearings on the problem.

Commission Chairman Richard O. Simpson said sniffing and related abuses of aerosol products cause an estimated 125 deaths a year.

Industry spokesmen did not dispute that statistic, but described aerosol sniffing as only "a subpart of a subpart of the total drug abuse problem."

Simpson said the commission is looking into three main problem areas: the "significant number of kids sniffing" and dying; accidents such as spraying into the eyes by both children and adults, and possible long-term chronic health hazards outlined in documents presented to the commission.

Ward told the commission the industry has been studying possible use of the chemical allyl isothiocyanate, or oil of mustard, which smells like horseradish and has the same irritating effect on the eyes and respiratory system.

He said the chemical is not being recommended yet, however, because it still must be balanced against possible hazards or irritation for normal users.

Industry groups distributed statements at the hearing to the effect that aerosol propellants are safe for normal use or when used as directed.

A pamphlet from the Aerosol Education Bureau, "Is This High Worth Dying For?" contains warnings on deliberate breathing of aerosol gases. But the pamphlet normally is distributed to adults, prompting Commissioner Barbara Franklin to comment:

"The death certificate information we've got indicates the people fatally injured are teen-agers and up. It's fine to get to the parents, but this message has got to get to teenage kids."

The Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association said in a statement that the industry is working both on development of a deterrent and on educational programs aimed at discouraging deliberate abuse.

Gus Leep of the National Paint and Coating Association told the commission he knew of no deaths associated with sniffing of spray paints. But Simpson said commission statistics, based death certificates, linked at least two fatalities to those products.

The commission hearing is in connection with a petition to regulate aerosol products filed by the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

'Pill' for men 5 years away

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the National Institute of Health's contraceptive research program said Friday a birth control pill for males may be available within five to 10 years.

Dr. Philip A. Corfman, director of the NIH's Center for Population Research, testified before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee studying proposed Constitutional amendments to overturn the Supreme Court's abortion ruling.

Corfman said NIH researchers in Bethesda, Md., "actually have some clinical trials under way" that have produced "promising" results on male contraceptive pills.

"We won't have a drug that can be used by the public for many years," Corfman added. "The normal time period for this sort of thing is 5 to 10 years."

He said if Congress allocated more money to contraceptive research and designated certain "priority" areas such as male contraceptives and studies to make the rhythm method more effective, research would move faster.

Corfman said there is evidence to suggest "rhythm could be a far more effective technique than it has been." He told subcommittee chairman Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., if Congress would allocate $1 million a year for three or four years, the rhythm research could be concluded.

At present, the federal government spends $15 million a year on contraceptive research, Corfman said.

Brain study suggests new fetus-viability rule

By LAWRENCE K. ALTMAN
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — A New York scientist has reported evidence that "brain life" in humans begins between the 28th and 32d week of pregnancy, raising questions about just when a human fetus becomes viable and when it first develops the capacity for human intelligence.

By brain life, the scientist, Dr. Dominick P. Purpura of Albert Einstein Medical School of Yeshiva University, said he meant the capacity of the cerebral cortex, or the thinking portion of the brain, to begin to develop consciousness, self-awareness and other generally recognized cerebral functions as a consequence of the formation of nerve cell circuits.

THE 24th week of pregnancy has generally been considered the critical period for the legal definition of fetal viability. But Dr. Purpura questioned the physiological basis for the legal definition, which reflects a view that the heart is the central organ of life.

If the brain is given that role — as it increasingly has been in deciding when death occurs — then, in the view of Purpura, determination of viability of a fetus should be delayed by at least four weeks.

Evidence for the development of brain life during the specific period of the 28th to 32d week is based on correlation of results of brain-wave, visual and other physiological tests with autopsy studies of premature infants that died despite treatment in an intensive care unit, the scientist said.

THE STUDIES represented the type of specific information doctors need to establish a rational basis for understanding the origin of brain function, according to Purpura, who heads the neuroscience department at the Einstein Medical School.

Brain activity should be considered just as critical a factor in determining human viability as lack of brain activity is for death, Purpura told a symposium at the medical school.

The symposium which was on the scientific and social issues related to mental retardation and human development was held to celebrate the fifth anniversary of the Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy Center.

In an interview before the symposium, Purpura said, "I am trying to open debate and discussion" about the question of cerebral life at the fetal end of the spectrum of life because "brain death is being taken into some part of the ethical framework" of medical practice for people at the other end of the spectrum.

PURPURA added that he considered such debate about cerebral brain life for the fetus "a logical extension" of the discussion about cerebral death.

Further, Dr. Purpura said that on the basis of the research findings, questions must be raised about just when a fetus is considered viable. The 24th week of pregnancy has been considered a critical period for determining viability of the fetus in abortion issues.

But Dr. Purpura, who also is director of the Kennedy Center, said:

"One implication of our research is that the concept of viability at 24 weeks is meaningless," he added:

"The concept of viability at this point is based on the theory" that the heart is the central organ of life. Rather, Purpura suggested, it should be the brain.

"I WOULD like to see us get rational and push the concept of viability to where it really is, about 28 to 32 weeks. That extra month is really very critical," he said.

The evidence on which Dr. Pupura based his views came from scientific studies of the developmental physiology and structure of mammalian brains that the Einstein neuroscientist began in 1959.

Those comparative studies have shown that the critical period for development of "mature" brains in cats and rats comes about three weeks after birth of a full-term animal, whereas "it turns out that in the human, unlike the cat, this period is before birth," Purpura said.

He prefers being called 'Munchkin'

HOLLAND, Pa. (AP) — Meinhardt Raabe is used to being called a Munchkin. After all, he is one.

Raabe was one of the Munchkins in the 1939 film classic "The Wizard of Oz," starring Judy Garland. And for 33 years, he was "Little Oscar" for the Oscar Meyer Co. Raabe, the Munchkin coroner who pronounced the wicked witch dead in "Wizard", says he really doesn't mind being 4-foot-9 inches.

HE DISCUSSED his feelings recently along with some other little people at a meeting of the Little People of America, an organization of dwarfs and midgets formed 18 years ago. Membership is limited to persons 4-foot-10 and under.

Although members are midgets and dwarfs, they prefer the terms "little people" and "Munchkins."

About 40 members met at a member's home here and the discussion quickly turned, as it usually does when the group meets, to the problems of being small in a large person's world.

There are "a lot of pluses and only a few minuses, really," to being short, the 59-year-old Raabe said, without elaboration.

ANOTHER of the little people, Frances Raider of Mohegan Lake, N.Y., said, "We live in two worlds. First, of course, is the world of the Big People. Then there is our own world. In the group, we can share our difficulties, meet fellow Little People and socialize. I met my husband at one of our meetings."

One of the many things to get used to is the curiosity of children she said.

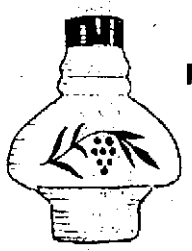

"They can't help it. You have to explain to them. The child is your size, but he's 7 and you're 40.

But she says adults are different.

"They make fun of you, but you must learn to ignore it," she said. "I simply go on. You have to."

Renaissance Man

Curtis reforms for 50th year

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With the approach of his 50th birthday, Tony Curtis announced his ambition: to become a Renaissance Man.

Not a small aim for the former Bernard Schwartz, whose education was gained at the Bronx's Seward Park High School, in the U.S. Navy and the commissary at Universal studio.

But then, the chutzpah of Tony Curtis helped make him an international star. Who can say that he can't become the da Vinci of upper Bel Air?

"That's what I intend to be — a Renaissance Man," assured the actor.

"I have been painting for some time, and I also create boxes and assemblages. I'm now into lithography and etching, and I work at UCLA with an art professor who allows me to use the university's equipment.

"I'm an expert swimmer as well as horse rider, and I've won prizes with my fencing.

"I'm now writing a book — two books, really, that I've combined into one. About a guy who goes into the Navy, then comes to Hollywood as a stunt man. My agent is Irving Lazar."

Among Lazar's other clients: Truman Capote and Richard M. Nixon.

Curtis's nerve has to be admired. It has carried him through the shark waters of Hollywood stardom, through psychoanalysis, two bombed marriages, fiscal disasters and career pitfalls. Still he comes back as bouncy as ever.

After a series of mishaps, he figures his career has turned upward. He is proud of his work in the gangster movie "Lepke," to be released Memorial Day by Warner Brothers.

His career was brilliantly managed by MCA chieftain Lew Wasserman, with the result that Curtis was granted percentages of such films as "The Defiant Ones," "Some Like It Hot," "The Vikings" and "Taras Bulba."

"And I always got a percentage of the gross," the actor added. "None of that business of waiting for the films to show a profit. There's too much funny bookkeeping going on."

When Wasserman and MCA quit the agency business to take over Universal Pictures, the Curtis career began to show signs of weakness.

"Looking back, I suppose I should have recognized harbingers of things to come," Curtis reflected.

"I was blithely tripping along the avenue, thinking that everything was just perfect. But then I started to examine the bills, and I began asking questions of my lawyers and business people.

"I went through the books and I found incredible discrepancies. That's when I got rid of everyone that was advising me and took over my own finances.

"The business people had left me in an unfortunate position where I had to keep the money coming in. So I had to take movies I shouldn't have done.

"At the same time, the film business was going through a bad period. I could see what was happening when a simple little picture like 'Don't Make Waves,' shot at Malibu and MGM studio, cost $4.2 million. Something was terribly wrong."

Pool shark pushover for stray dogs, cats

MINNESOTA FATS gets a tip on his next shot from Sporty, one of his many dogs. —UPI

DOWELL, Ill. (UPI) — Rudolf Walter "Minnesota Fats" Wanderone may have the compassion of Attila the Hun in a pool hall, but he's a pushover for a homeless pooch.

New York-born Fats, the most famous citizen among the 400 residents of this Southern Illinois town and perhaps the best known pool shark in the country, has cornered the local dog market.

He has taken in about 30 homeless dogs and about as many cats. On a quick spin around this tiny village he can point to another 30 dogs he feeds.

"There's Tippy," he will say. "I've been feedin' him a long time."

Fats is the doggy bag champion of the district and never leaves a restaurant empty-handed.

"For 60 years I've been picking up stray dogs and I never seen a rabid dog," Fats said.

The pool shark is on a first-name basis with every veterinarian in the area. He said he once called former Missouri Gov. Warren Hearnes to win a commutation of a death sentence for a "beautiful animal" that jumped a fence and killed a deer.

"I've got connections like no livin' human," Fats said. "I changed the law in seven states about pool several years ago.

"Why, it's safer to be in a pool room than anywhere on earth. I told them I been hanging around in pool rooms since I was a baby. I never drank or smoked in my life. Why, 60 million people play pool today."

Reflecting on a lifetime spent in pool halls and caring for animals, Fats, who says he's "every bit" of 62, said, "I've never lost in my life since I was 10 years old.

"I was a grown man when I was 5 or 6 years old. I hung around saloons, watching them play pool and cards. When I was 10 I beat everyone in Europe."

Stage set for debate over new weapons

By JOHN W. FINNEY
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Senate Armed Services Committee, setting the stage for the annual defense debate in the Senate, Friday proposed about a 9 per cent reduction in the Defense Department's weapons procurement and research programs in the coming fiscal year.

In acting on the military authorization bill, the committee approved most of the major weapons programs proposed by the Defense Department. At the same time, the committee made deeper across-the-board reductions in Pentagon funding than has been its practice in recent years.

The committee also cut significantly deeper than the House Armed Services Committee, which earlier this week reduced the weapons programs by less than 7 per cent.

Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, the chairman of the committee, predicted the Senate would sustain the committee's judgment that "tremendous cuts" should not be made in the defense budget pending a review of the nation's foreign policy in the post-Vietnam period.

"I don't want to run everywhere where people are in trouble," Stennis said. "But as I have seen things develop, you get results when you are armed. It is not the only way to persuade people; but it is a helpful way."

The immediate inclination among Senate liberals who have been critical of the size of the defense budget was not to press on the Senate floor for further across-the-board cuts but rather to challenge, probably unsuccessfully, individual weapons programs.

Thus, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., will lead an effort to stop development of the Air Force's B1 strategic bomber, which the liberals protest is unnecessary and excessively expensive.

The Senate committee eliminated $222 million in advance procurement funds requested for the bomber but approved $597 million in continued development, including a fourth prototype model.

The committee also rejected funds to procure additional F111 bombers, which is regarded as a potential substitute for the B1.

Taken all together, Stennis interpreted the committee's action as a "greenlight" for the decision next year on whether to produce the B1 bomber.

Sen. Thomas J. Mcintyre, D-N.H., will renew a fight he lost within the committee to eliminate $143 million for development of more accurate, more powerful warheads for intercontinental ballistic missiles — a development that he contends would have a destabilizing effort on the nuclear arms balance.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., will offer a floor amendment to stop procurement of the airborne command post, known as AWACS, that he claims could be easily jammed by an enemy. The committee bill provides $690 million to buy six of the planes.

Within the committee, the three freshmen Democratic members scored a victory when Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., pushed through an amendment deleting $6.8 million for development of a new type of nerve gas known as a binary. The binary nerve gas program, if pursued, ultimately could cost as much as $2 billion.

The annual military procurement bill authorizes the procurement and development of major weapons — about one fourth of the total $104 billion defense budget. It also sets ceilings on military and civilian manpower in the Pentagon. The funds for the weapons and other parts of the defense program are provided in subsequent appropriations bills.

The committee approved a $25 billion bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1 as well as $5.3 billion for a three-month transition period as the government next year shifts to a new fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

CIA-FBI refused 'monitor' at probe

By SAUL FRIEDMAN
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — The Select Senate Committee on Intelligence Activities Friday rejected a rather unusual request by the CIA and FBI to "monitor" the committee's investigation into the spying operations of those agencies.

At the same time, Committee Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho announced that "the tempo of our investigation will now be stepped up" and that staff investigators will begin questioning witnesses, within a few days, about the CIA's "covert" operations here and abroad.

The committee was created by the Senate last January following charges and reports that government intelligence units and other agencies were illegally spying on American citizens. But the committee has been slow in getting off the ground.

AT A closed meeting, committee members cleared away some obstacles to an investigation, Church reported, and "it was decided the serious investigative work should go forward."

Among the problems were requests — relayed to the committee by the White House and the Justice Department — that the CIA and the FBI be permitted to have monitors present when one of their agents or employes is questioned.

Church said the committee had unanimously rejected the CIA-FBI proposal "believing there should be no inhibition" among those questioned by senators or staff personnel.

In another important procedural action, the committee gave Church the power to issue subpoenas if the administration or the agencies are slow in volunteering documents and witnesses.

"WE HAVE agreed that subpoenas would issue" if individuals resist invitations to testify, Church said, "and I have the authority to issue such subpoenas."

The first phase of the investigation, Church said, would go into the CIA's "covert intelligence operations" including reported plans and attempts to assassinate foreign leaders.

The committee investigators, with at least one senator present, will question witnesses informally or in sworn depositions in executive session, Church said. And at a later date the committee will decide what phases of the investigation will be presented in public hearings.

"WE WILL begin with the CIA," Church said, "and we anticipate that we will require full disclosure not only of present covert actions but those in the past."

But the "freedom to talk" about it is perhaps the basic reason for his resignation, he said. He wants to "help dispel the myth" that "CIA is composed of unprincipled people interfering in the private lives of other people around the world."

OTHER former CIA employes, such as Victor Marchetti, have had difficulty exercising "freedom to talk" about the agency. Phillips, who denied that he is receiving support other than moral from the agency or any of his colleagues there, is obviously not planning to give away anything that the agency wants to keep closely held. Besides, he said, there are "good secrets, bad secrets and nonsecrets."

give information about their superiors.

On the other side of Capitol Hill, the House Select Committee, which is supposed to conduct its investigation into american spying activities, is just getting around to naming a chief staff counsel.

Rep. Lucien Nedzi D-Mich., the committee chairman, has been unable to control the committee well enough to get action on a counsel. As a result, Rep. Robert Giaimo D-Conn., who wanted to be chairman of the panel, apparently has succeeded in pressuring Nedzi into accepting a candidate from Giaimo's home state.

THE committee is scheduled to meet Tuesday in open session to vote on the appointment of A. Searle Field, 30, who helped Sen. Lowell Weicker R-Conn. when he was a member of the Senate watergate committee.

There may be a battle over the appointment, however, because other members have their own candidates. Rep. Mike Harrington D. Mass., has invited former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark to apply, knowing Clark probably would be unacceptable to a committee majority.

Because the committee has been stalemated over who is to run the staff, Nedzi doesn't know when its investigation will begin, although the committee is now five months old.

CIA agent quits to crusade for agency

By LINDA CHARLTON
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — For 25 years, David A. Phillips has been, by trade, a spy, and, although he might protest the label — he has been a clandestine employe of the Central Intelligence Agency — he does not apologize for the occupation:

"There's no question in my mind that I have spent the last quarter of century being useful," he said in an interview earlier this week.

But there are questions in many other minds, questions raised by allegations that the agency has meddled in the domestic area proscribed by its charter, but questions that have now spread to include the CIA's muddying of foreign waters.

AND so Phillips, 52, chief of Latin American operations at the agency for the past two years and station chief in several Latin American countries before that, resigned Thursday to start a self-assigned job as defender of the agency faith. Or, in his words, "to explain the CIA and the intelligence establishment and the role that it has in an American society."

He has set up something called ARIO — the Association of Retired Intelligence Officers, and about 180 of the 400 such retirees he sent letters to have already joined with a $10 fee. Its role, he said, is to make speakers available, at no cost beyond expenses, to anyone who wants to listen. Phillips himself, whose income dropped from $36,000 to $16,000 at retirement, already has a couple of speeches in New York City scheduled for next week.

HE SEEMS likely to be a good speaker, for even in an informal interview he talked in what sounded at first almost like prepared statements, careful in the syntax, excellent in the diction and inflection, complete sentences. It turns out that he was once an actor — "an incompetent actor," he said firmly — before a stint as a World War II bombardier and, briefly, as an editor of an English-language paper in Chile with the name of "South Pacific Mail."

"It was there," he said, "that I was first approached by U.S. intelligence to cooperate," and by 1950 he was working full-time for the agency, posing either as a foreign service officer or a businessman. Chile, where it all began, he chose from an encyclopedia "because it said you could ski in the Andes in the morning and swim in the Pacific in the afternoon. This is possible, but it is arduous."

AND HE lived in Chile for more than 6½ years, and was running the agency's Latin American operations at the time that the Marxist government of the late President Salvador Allende Gossens was violently overthrown — allegedly with the active encouragement of the agency. Today, he plans a news conference to talk about what the CIA actually did in Chile, he said, as opposed to what it is rumored to have done. He would say nothing more until then except a concession that "we were indeed preserving some sectors of Chilean society." He would not explain.

Pulitzer entries solicited

NEW YORK (AP) — In the same week the 1975 Pulitzer prizes were awarded, Columbia University began soliciting nominations for the 1976 awards, to be announced next May.

Columbia President William J. McGill said Friday that juries in letters, drama and music already had been appointed and urged that books especially be sent in promptly, without waiting for the Nov. 1 deadline.

"Most of our jurors like to do as much of their reading as possible during the summer months," McGill explained. "In any event, we want to do our utmost to discourage nominators from flooding us with books on the deadline."

McGill said requests for nominating forms could be addressed to Prof. John Hohenberg, Room 702, Graduate School of Journalism, Columbia University, New York, N.Y. 10027.

Battle rages over 'secret' FBI files

By GIL BAILEY
Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON—The FBI and a congressional committee are waging a head-on battle over the contents of 19,000 domestic intelligence files, the Independent, Press-Telegram's Washington Bureau has learned.

The House Judiciary Committee wants investigators from the General Accounting Office to examine a percentage of those files to "verify" FBI reports as to what they show.

The FBI and Atty. Gen. Edward Levi are determined that no one outside of the FBI shall have access to the confidential files.

A SUMMIT meeting, which included Levi, Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., chairman of the FBI oversight subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, and Clarence Kelley, FBI director, failed to resolve the issue recently.

"We can either use the subpoena power or pass legislation if we fail to resolve this issue," said Edwards.

Levi had already outlined his first line of defense in a speech in late April on "confidentiality" before the New York City Bar Association.

"We can't have an informant system, if the informant knows the GAO will see the reports," Levi told Edwards and Rodino at their meeting.

Edwards had asked the GAO to audit the FBI's domestic intelligence program, including the "counterintelligence program" which included some "illegal acts."

AS A result, the FBI has been preparing summaries of its 19,000 domestic intelligence files. Now, the GAO wants to audit the files themselves to verify the accuracy of the FBI reports.

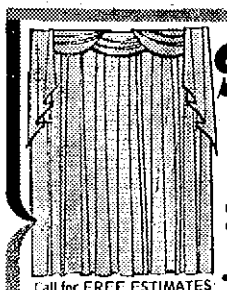

Some "very interesting" materials have already been found by the GAO investigators and the final GAO report may reveal further FBI secret operations similar to those already outlined in the counterintelligence program which included disruption of suspected organizations.

The dispute between the judiciary committee and the Justice Department first surfaced in Levi's speech. Until then the negotiations had been conducted between Edwards and Levi on a confidential basis.

The Justice Department and the FBI are particularly concerned by the Edwards' investigation because his subcommittee is charged with "on-going oversight" over the FBI.

TWO other investigations by special Senate and House committees are of limited duration.

Edwards in an effort to compromise the problem proposed the GAO investigators only — instead of congressional staff members of members of Congress — be given the access to the FBI files.

Adoption contested

Baby stirs controversy

Associated Press

A religious controversy is swirling around the efforts of a doctor and his wife to adopt an orphaned Cambodian baby.

The couple has gone to court in an effort to sweep aside objections to the adoption raised by Family Ministries, a suburban Whittier adoption agency which has custody of 14-month-old Toup Ven.

Dr. Richard Scott and his wife, Linda, seek a temporary restraining order to prevent Family Ministries from enforcing its requirement that adoptive parents be "active members in good standing of an evangelical Protestant church."

The Scotts are Episcopalians. And Toup Ven? He could stem from either a Buddhist or Catholic family.

Traditionally, sectarian agencies place children with adoptive parents of the same faith. The basis for the practice is a state law that says a child "shall be placed with adoptive parents whose religious faith is the same as his own or that of his parents."

Another question is who has the legal right to Toup Ven and other Asian orphans brought to the U.S. in Operation Babylift.

Normally, in intercountry adoptions, legal documents are in order before a child enters the U.S. But many airlift children were brought to this country before their papers were completed.

Family Ministries was given custody of Toup Ven by World Vision, a Monrovia, Calif., relief organization.

"We are going to work with Family Ministries to help sort out how to proceed with the adoptions," said Mary Sullivan, chief of adoption services of the state Department of Health.

A news release from Family Ministries skirted the religious issue and said the Scotts "have not taken necessary steps" in the adoption process. The organization did not elaborate on the necessary steps, but added:

"Even though a person has had the opportunity as a result of his occupation and position to see and desire a particular child, that does not automatically qualify that individual as a parent for that child.

"We will resist any attempt to force us to show partiality to anyone because of their profession, wealth, popularity or political connections."

Scott, 37, flares at the intimation of wealth. He says his three-bedroom house in suburban Westwood has three mortgages, that big bills remain from his medical education and that there is only $600 in his savings account.

Scott, director of disaster operations for the county Department of Health Services, first saw Toup Ven in April lying on a stretcher at the edge of a runway at Los Angeles International Airport.

Scott was in charge of the medical team examining 330 Vietnamese and Cambodian children arriving from the Philippines.

Toup Ven is in a foster home pending a hearing on the suit next Friday.

The Scotts have two children, Gilian, 13, and Ian, 12. Mrs. Scott, 36, is a registered nurse.

Refugees 'no health threat'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Vietnamese refugees pose no public health threat to the United States, but many of them will face further examinations by local physicians once they are settled, the national Center for Disease Control said Friday.

The CDC said 77,576 persons were screened and only a few cases of communicable diseases were found.

"The names of all the refugees are being sent to state health departments and some of them will still have to have medical examinations," a spokesman said.

The center said preliminary screening uncovered two cases of malaria, one of typhoid fever, one of diphtheria and five of hepatitis.

"Most of those who will have to have medical examinations are those who had sponsors," the spokesman said. "We did not want to hold anyone up from a health standpoint. Our position is that they are basically healthy people."

Asked if the Vietnamese are susceptible to some diseases in this country that they might not have been exposed to in the Far East, the spokesman said, "It is always a possibility, but probably not.

"The biggest thing is the youngsters. Many of them were immunized for childhood diseases in Vietnam, but their records have been lost. Many of them will get shots again, but it will do them no harm."

The CDC said most of the children probably will be given shots for polio, measles, mumps, rubella and diphtheria.

"Experience to date indicates that the health problems of the Vietnamese refugees pose no significant public health risk to the United States," the CDC said.

Viet family, split by war, reunited

ONTARIO (AP) — Two young Vietnamese boys were reunited with their relieved parents today as they stepped off a plane from Portland, Ore., after two weeks with a group of orphans and refugees at Mt. Angel, Ore.

Nguyen Anh Kim, 9, and his brother, Nguyen Quoc Phai, 7, were sent south from Danang to Saigon with Catholic missionary friends when the Communist offensive began this spring in South Vietnam.

THEIR parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nguyen My Kim, said they were fearful for their four sons' lives because of their connection with Americans. Kim is a pastor associated with the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

The Kims and their two younger sons, among a group of refugees that arrived Sunday at El Toro Marine Air Station in Southern California, are staying temporarily in a gymnasium at Loma Linda University, a Seventh-day Adventist school between Redlands and San Bernardino.

Pastor Robert Grady, formerly of Singapore, is helping to care for 450 refugees at Loma Linda. He said the Kims felt they were giving their two oldest children a chance to live by sending them away.

"They didn't know then if they ever would see them again," Grady said.

He said Kim, his wife and the two younger boys prayed for guidance when hundreds of thousands of refugees crowded into Danang. A missionary friend evacuated them and two other missionary families to waiting ships.

AT Cam Ranh Bay, the three families hired a fishing boat to take them to Saigon where they were met by church representatives who eventually got them out of the country.

Grady said he believes the Kims learned of their sons' location through the Red Cross. He telephoned Mt. Angel to verify their presence and make travel arrangements.

Sister Antoinette Traeger, prioress of the Benedictine Sisters at Mt. Angel, drove the two boys to Portland today and put them on a plane for Ontario.

GRADY said the Kims were afraid they would have to put their children up for adoption because they could not afford to care for them in the U.S.

But church officials assured the Kims that jobs would be found for them.

"We told them, 'We would see you through,'" Grady said, "and then you should have seen the smiles come."

What is a church?

By MARK CLUTTER
Religion Editor

If a recent arrival from outer space, eager to learn all he could about his newly discovered world, asked you "What is a church?" what would your answer be?

It is not an easy question. If he had asked "What is a Christian church?" it would be a little easier. But not much.

Let's consider a few tentative definitions:

1. A church is a conservative organization which exists to preserve and perpetuate certain truths and ideals discovered in the past.

2. A church is a research center in which people try to discover humanity's true role in God's universe.

3. A church is a police force which tells the rules of morality and seeks to enforce them.

4. A church seeks to create a better future for mankind in this world or the next.

5. A church is an activist club which seeks to establish freedom and social justice by propaganda and any political expedient including armed rebellion and war. (Many churches would reject the appeal to weapons.)

6. A church is a shrine where one can by contemplation and prayer communicate with God.

7. A church is a spiritual holiday resort for saintly people.

8. A church is a hospital for sick sinners.

9. A church is a philanthropy devoted to feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, caring for the sick and visiting prisoners.

10. A church is a center of ceremonial experts who dignify man's fate, which is "nasty, brutish and short," with the appropriate rituals.

11. A church is a family institution which provides athletic events, concerts, intellectual stimulation, potluck suppers, theatre, camping trips and lots of fun of all respectable sorts.

12. A church is a school devoted to teaching important subjects which are usually slighted in regular schools.

13. A church is a retreat for a select few — the Saved — from the struggles and temptations of a wicked world.

14. A church is a civic organization — like the City Council, the Board of Education, the Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce — which seeks to make the home town a better place to live.

15. A church is the spiritual arm of the aristocracy, providing guidance and a measure of respectability to the ruling class and giving spiritual comfort to those denied the material comforts and pleasures of their uppers and betters.

16. A church is a base camp for an army of missionaries who will be deployed to the uttermost ends of the earth. (The farther away, the better?)

17. A church is a psychology clinic which can solve all one's emotional problems and change a poor mixed-up bum into a dynamic, well-balanced personality.

18. A church is a medical clinic which through prayer and faith can heal diseases and infirmities.

19. A church is a huge, unnecessary building on untaxed, valuable real estate which could be put to better use.

20. A church is a guide to the joy of living.

OUR VISITOR from outer space, if he heard all these definitions, would probably race to his flying saucer and radio his superiors at Galactic Imperial Headquarters that the inhabitants of Earth were hopelessly insane.

And yet, all these definitions are either partly true or have been held for truth in certain cultures.

What is your definition of a church?

You could use the 20 definitions as a true-or-false test. Or perhaps you would like to write brief essays expressing your opinion.

WHAT IS A CHURCH?

What sex is God?

In every revolutionary movement the partisans go to extremes which hurt their cause.

Women's libbers are not an exception. Now they are trying to change the language of religion. The Bible, they point out, along with practically all of the traditional liturgy, is masculine and patriarchal in language. This, they think, should be stopped. A few addle-pated clergymen are going along with the notion.

So how do Christians start the Lord's Prayer?

Few Christians today think of God as an eternal grandfather sitting up in the sky and running the show. But the patriarchal traditions of our culture and religion are strong and very real.

When the Christian says "Our Father —" he is expressing something about the nature of being human. He loves (or would like to love) his own father. Normal women often feel more love for their dads than do their brothers. Should we substitute some phrase like "Omnipotent Cosmic Intellect —"?

Many of us, male and female, have been libbers before these strutting pickets were born. We resented the double standard. We were angered by discrimination against women at all levels of society. We thought it was unfair that brilliant girls were barred from the professions.

And we did something about it. As one small example, the Newspaper Guild has always insisted on equal pay for women. In this occupation women are becoming numerous and some of them are excellent journeymen. Or should one say journeypersons?

The prevailing attitude today is that women should do whatever they are big enough to do — and they are proving that they are big enough to do almost everything except heavyweight boxing.

But the two sexes are different — and "Vive la difference!" Humanity is not ready and is not likely ever to be ready for "Our God Person —"

In fact, to anyone whose ear is tuned to the niceties of the English language "chairperson" is an offense. What is wrong with "chairman," "chairwoman" or, to be old-fashioned, "madam chairman"?

Vibrant spirit

Kim winner against odds

A petite, 27 year-old woman will sing songs at Community Grace Brethren Church, 5885 Downey Ave. and at Garden Grove Community Church on Sunday.

So this is news? Aren't women always singing songs in church?

Well, in this case it is news of a brave and vibrant spirit who has done much in the world against all the odds.

Her name is Kim. When she was three years old the North Koreans bombed the village. The last thing she ever saw was a blinding flash.

KIM WICKES

Soon the family was starving. Her father broke under the pressure and threw Kim and her sister into the river. Her mother's screams forced him to try a rescue. Kim was saved but the sister drowned.

She was taken to a Christian orphange near the end of the war. "It was there I started to sing," she said.

When she was 10 she was brought to the United States and adopted by George and Eva Wickes of Dayton, Ind. She adjusted to new parents, new schools, a new language and a new culture. A Billy Graham Crusade gave a new direction to the young girl's life.

Kim attended Wheaton Academy and Wheaton College and earned her bachelor and master at the School of Music at Indiana University.

Then she applied for and received a Fulbright Scholarship to study at the Vienna Institute of music.

Her voice has carried her on world travels. She went to Korea to " see" her father.

She will sing at three services at the Garden Grove church. At Community Grace Brethren she will give a concert at 7 p.m.

An expert explains:

Planned funeral can be final kindness to kin

By MARK CLUTTER

Despite all evidence to the contrary, many people seem to believe they will live forever. They refuse even to think about the certainty of death.

When they die they bequeath to their loved ones a period of unnecessary pain and confusion.

People stunned by shock and grief are in no condition to make the necessary decisions about funeral and burial.

Harry Christensen, whose experience as a funeral director dates back to 1935, told in an interview how families can most effectively deal with the complex problems created by death. He also discussed the various styles of funerals and the cost. And he told how some of the problems can be solved before death.

"Immediately after death occurs, the desired funeral director should be called," Christensen said. "He will quickly relieve the family of many unforeseen details which are certain to arise and with which the family is so ill-equipped to cope."

HARRY CHRISTENSEN

HERE a brief list of some problems:

Legal requirements (Health Department regulations).

Attending physician (to obtain death certificate.)

Clergy (for religious arrangements).

Lodge or fraternal organizations (if they are to participate in service.)

Attorney (wills and other legal matters.)

Distant family members and others (to be notified).

"If the family is religiously oriented, the funeral service is a spiritual occasion," Christensen said. "They will probably want the funeral in a church or a funeral chapel. The deceased also belonged to a group, large or small. Friends and the community should have an opportunity to respond. In the process many of the emotional needs of the family will be met.

"This will not be accomplished by getting things over with as soon as possible, as in the case of direct disposal."

SOME WHO do not profess a religious belief want a "life style" funeral. This kind of funeral is an extension of the personality of the deceased. It may consist of music, art, slides or participation of family and friends in presenting the life of the deceased as they knew him.

"The best way to insure that you will have the type of funeral you want is to put into writing all of your instructions and wishes. This document should be kept at home, not in a safe deposit box.

"It should be in addition to any instructions in your will. A will isn't always immediately available.

"These instructions should be in addition to any instructions in the will. Any funeral director will provide forms for funeral instructions. Social Security and veterans' benefits should be listed. Some people wrap the instructions in a protective covering and put them in the refrigerator as a protection against fire or theft."

The prepaid funeral is an excellent way to avoid putting burdens on the family at a trying time. It also insures that the funeral will be exactly as wished. In inflationary times it is also a money saver. In recent years there has been a sharp increase in pre-need funeral arrangements.

DO FUNERALS cost too much?

Christensen doesn't think so.

"The funeral is tailored to the wishes and needs of the family," he said. "Many prefer a simple but dignified service. Others wish elaborate memorials.

"A family could spend $25,000 or more. You may be sure this seldom happens.

"A survey by the National Funeral Directors Association in 1973 showed that the average funeral service was under $1,000. One third of all funerals were less than $600. Some were as low as $250.

"Costs have gone up, of course. But so has everything else. Just look at the grocery ads in a 1950 newspaper and compare them with today's ads.

"The best rebuttal to all the unfair criticism — there has been much in recent years — are the people who have experienced a death recently and have used the services of any reputable funeral director.

"Again, the best way to eliminate doubts, fears and confusion is to investigate, and then put your wishes in writing."

Eighty per cent of the people still prefer a conventional funeral and burial, he said.

There is also burial at sea. The ashes are scattered from a boat or plane. Sometimes the minister and the family have a burial service on board the boat.

More and more families, especially the affluent, are setting up "living memorials" — money set aside for hospitals, colleges, churches or charities.

Christensen was graduated with highest grades from the California College of Mortuary Science, Los Angeles, in 1935. He owned and operated a mortuary in Huntington Park prior to purchasing Christensen-Pino in Long Beach in 1946. It was sold in 1960 and he affiliated with Dilday Family Funeral Directors prior to joining Sunnyside Mortuary a year ago as vice president of community relations.

LETTERS ABOUT SEX

Learn to love

Religion Editor:

You pose several questions in your "Opinion column," yet they all boil down to one. "How can men and women love each other better?" Well, let me tell you here and now, that love is not the problem! The concept of love is the problem! Love IS THE ANSWER! To love we must learn the meaning of love.

The problem is that most of us do not know how to truly love one another. Many people say they love, but none really love enough! Limited love tends to hold captive its unsuspecting victims. Nearly everyone loves another human with reservations whether or not he or she realizes it. It is easy to love when love is returned!

Love is imperative to life. We must love or perish. But loving another makes us vulnerable; susceptible to being hurt. It's a risk to love. Yet, not to take that risk is to remain dead inside. Love can't be self seeking. It must be outreaching and unselfish. And in order for us to love in this perfect manner we can do so only with God's help. His love for us makes it possible for us to love, not in spite of, but because of other people's faults, heartaches, or even our own environment. Without His love we can only love on a HUMAN level and that kind of love will always be weak and subject to despair.

The free ways of life condoned in Cosmopolitan and Playboy magazines do not "free us." They offer temporary lollipops at the end of which is found an empty stick! Follow the life of anyone who has traveled this route and you will find discontent, confusion, and heartache at the end of the journey. Love without commitment (Promise) is not love at all.

To most people love means sex and possessions. It is no wonder many people become disillusioned. Love is openly sought by young people. Old people often settle for companionship and the deed to the house; yet still crave love. There are different kinds of love among us humans. But rejection brings an end to whatever label we stick on our "love." Because we have yet not learned where the source of love comes from; namely God. We know "about love just as we know about God." But we do not "know love because we do not know God!"

Freedom

Religion Editor:

You asked for opinions concerning the subject of illegal sexual activities. In my opinion, the government does not have the right to interfere with anyone's private life. I don't believe in "sex for the fun of it up and down the street," but I do believe that consenting adults should be able to do what they please, provided that they use good judgment.

By good judgment I mean employing an effective method of birth control and limiting their actions to the privacy of their own home or hotel room. In this area where we live, women can obtain contraceptives and physical examinations at no charge from the county health department, so there is no need for unwanted pregnancies.

I personally don't approve of having more than one sexual partner, but I don't think people should have to get married to be "legal." Also, if other people believe differently, I think those people should be allowed to act as they please.

Biblical laws

Religion Editor:

My opinion, "What about Sex". It was established by God (Gen. 2: 18-25). The Bible is a book of laws or principles for us to follow. Sex as it is called today is a sacred relationship between husband and wife in the sight of God (Heb. 13: 4). Love is not the problem, it is the way it is expressed. A spiritual Love or a physical Love. Both can be honorable — but otherwise sinful.

Youth for Christ

Campus Life

By MARK CLUTTER

Today in greater Long Beach approximately 80 high school students are doing hard, useful work for which they will receive no pay.

The jobs help poor people who need help. They paint and clean and do other such chores.

The young people are involved in "workathons" of Youth for Christ. Although they receive no pay, money is involved. Sponsors contribute The young people's wages to Youth for Christ.

"The workathons serve two purposes. They make the young people aware of the needs of the poor and they help support the organization," said Al Siebert, associate director of Youth for Christ of Greater Long Beach."

What is Youth for Christ? Although it has been in existence many years and has a large following throughout the United States, many people are puzzled as to what it is and how it functions.

Siebert in explaining Youth for Christ told what organization is not:

— It is not a church for kids. And it is not in competition with regular churches. About ten per cent are actively involved with the churches. The majority are unchurched. The ideal is that Youth for Christ will lead the young people into or back to churches.

— It is not a club in the usual sense. It has no initiation rites, membership roles, dues or rituals.

— It is not hard-sell evangelism. Its approach to Christ is through friendship, counseling, social life and sports.

"Youth for Christ breaks down into three main components: Youth Guidance, which deals with delinquents or dropouts; Campus Life, which deals with normal high school students, and literature, which is run through the national office," Siebert said.

In greater Long Beach Youth for Christ hopes to do more eventually with Youth Guidance. "A Youth Guidance person must be highly qualified and highly trained and generally highly paid," he said.

The emphasis here is on Campus Life. Eight Campus Life groups serve 12 high schools. They are Los Alamitos, Jordan-Lynwood, Mayfair-Cerritos, Gahr-Santa Fe, Centennial, Torrance, Lakewood, Millikan-Wilson.

"Sometimes the meetings are crowded. Sometimes only a few attend," he said.

A major part of the literature division is Campus Life, an excellent magazine aimed at the high school crowd. It's a large magazine — 112 pages in March. It contains articles, short stories, poems, opinions of readers, color and black-and-white photography. Here again the the evangelism is not hard sell. The piety is there, but muted. Many of the articles would please any teen-ager or, for that matter, many adults. It is well edited. The advertising — there is a lot of it — emphasizes Christian colleges.

Youth for Christ here sponsors many educational, religious and recreational events for young people. There are camps and conferences in various parts of the Southland.

Easter Week — the sometimes notorious Bal Week — is met by many events. This year 48 students bicycled to San Diego and back. A backpack trip is planned for this summer.

"Our greatest success in my opinion is the changed lives of individuals I have seen grow up," Siebert said.

Youth for Christ here has an annual budget of $36,000. It is supported by 10 churches and by donations and fund-raising events, such as the Haunted House and a golf tournament by adults.

There are three full-time and six part-time staff members and 28 volunteers. Staff members must meet educational qualifications and have special training.

Youth for Christ follows the Statement of Faith of the National Association of Evangelicals, which begins: "We believe the Bible to be the inspired, the infallibe Word of God."

The Youth for Christ office is at 3759 Atlantic Ave.

New rector

The Rev. William A. Thompson has been called as rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church, 346 Termino Ave. He succeeds the Venerable Donald R. Behm, archdeacon of the Diocese of Los Angeles. Father Thompson, a graduate of Wilson High School, Stanford University and Seabury-Western Seminary. He has been a curate at All Saints since 1973. He will be officially installed by Bishop Robert C. Rusack on June 11.

'Hippie saint'

BROTHER FRANCIS, edited by Lawrence C. Cunningham; Family Library, $1.25. This paperback anthology by and about St. Francis presents a highly readable profile of the "hippie saint." Francis was the son of medieval Italian noble. He left his seemingly comfortable world to follow Christ. He rejected all worldly values, dressed in rags, and lived on the roads and streets. Thousands in southern Eruope followed him to hear the "little brother of the poor." It is said he even made a friend of the Sultan of Egypt, an arch enemy of all Christians. The little Christ-enchanted tramp speaks across the centuries to men today.

KICK-OFF

The Long Beach Area Council of Churches has arranged its kick-off breakfast for the Annual Financial campaign to be held at the local Red Cross building on Thursday morning, 7 a.m., according to Aaron Herrington, general chairman for this campaign.

Miss Blanche Collins, former city librarian, is the honorary chairperson for this event.

Rev. Don Lindblom, executive director of the Council, announced other participating members would be Mrs. Lillian Brown, Edward C. Purnell, and Wendle West.

Confined

Wycliffe Bible Translators of Huntington Beach has received an unconfirmed report that translators John and Carolyn Miller and their daughter LuAnne, 5, are alive and in confinement in Ban Me Thuot, Vietnam.

With them, the report said, are five Christian and Missionary Alliance workers: Mrs. Archie Mitchell, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Johnson.

The Millers' other children are in school in the Philippines. They will be flown to their mother's parents in Houghton, N.Y.

I have not lost sight of my plan for you, the Lord says, and it is your welfare I have in mind, not your undoing; for you, too, I have a destiny and a hope. Cry out for me then, and your suit shall prosper; plead with me, and I will listen; look for me and you shall find me, if you will but look for me in good earnest. — Jer. 29: 11-13.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

Relaxed Control

Some time ago, I gave a talk in one of our naval air training schools. "A most important lesson we have to teach our pilots," the officer in charge told me," "is how to develop a relaxed attitude with no uptightness. In this business of combat flying, a pilot can never know when he may have to meet a crisis, and he must be relaxed and in control at all times."

He told me about Admiral Duncan who once commanded that big aircraft carrier, the Essex. One day he was navigating the vessel out to sea from the base at Pearl Harbor, and it was carrying the maximum quota of aviation gasoline. Suddenly, a freighter broke loose from its mooring and bore down menacingly upon the Essex.

On the bridge, the admiral was giving the commands necessary to avoid a collision when an officer ran to him and excitedly announced, "Sir, there is a fire on the hangar deck!" Now a fire on the hangar deck on a carrier is extremely dangerous because of the proximity of the gas tanks. The excited and tensed up officer almost chattered, "What shall we do, sir? The fire is getting dangerously near the tanks — what shall we do?"

The admiral didn't even turn his eyes from the approaching freighter. "What shall you do?" he said calmly. "Why, put out the fire!"

The officer, now perceptibly calmed down, responded meekly, "Yes, sir," and went and did as he had been told. His admiral, a seasoned leader of men, was able to apply relaxed control in a crisis.

How may you develop this relaxed power? Simply by practicing it — by the practice of taking relaxed mental attitudes in all situations. When something of a crisis nature arises, instead of a stiffening up, relax your muscle tensions, verbalize quiet words, hold positive thoughts about your ability to handle the situation.

Sermons for deaf

The deaf can "hear" sermons at the Congregational Church of Downey, 9516 Downey Ave.

While Dr. G. W. Abersold, pastor, preaches at the 10:45 a.m. Sunday services Betty Brayton translates in sign language. She has been carrying out this ministry for four years.

Ms. Brayton teaches manual communications in Downey Adult School. She often serves as interpreter for the deaf in courts.

A LEADER IS . . .

A leader is best
When People barely know he exists.
Not so good
When people obey and acclaim him.
Worse when they despise him.
But of a good leader
Who talks little
When his work is done
His aim fulfilled
They will say
"We did it ourselves."

WHAT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CAN DO FOR A FAMILY.

It can bring an understanding of God's closeness and care, helping each one in the family in everything he does.

It can develop a deep love for the Bible, and joyful obedience to God's law.

It can teach every member, and the family together, to heal problems in the way Jesus showed.

How can Christian Science do all this? Through Sunday School classes that strengthen children. Through Sunday services that inspire parents. Through Wednesday testimony meetings where personal accounts of healing are shared. Through Reading Rooms where truths are pondered in quiet.

Won't you invite Christian Science into your family's life?

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: In various countries, mothers are especially honored this Sunday. Celebrate today by rededicating your daily living toward higher goals and acting with dignity. Relationships are more complex and difficult to understand as the year wears on. Today's natives are candid and dependable but apt to drift into impractical career efforts.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Lay aside material concerns in favor of abstract and spiritual values. Your judgment is unrealistic on at least one subject. Share a good show, music; avoid serious discussions.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): There's an undercurrent contradicting most appearances — listen! Stay near home base and follow traditional observances during this slow-paced Sunday.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): People differ for no obvious reason. Bickering or taking extreme action is pointless. Stand back and watch today; save you own power for a better opportunity.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Being prompt and attentive is the minimum you can do to protect your interests in today's mixed conditions. Nothing explains the entire picture accurately, and it's just as well.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Spending money doesn't really help anything and merely scatters resources you'll need later. Clear up partly finished projects and tiny details you've overlooked.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It's not so much what you do this Sunday as how you go about it. Any discrepancy between what you expect and what happens will jar you a bit. Don't take it out on others.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Decisions aren't all that easily made. You don't have complete information and have to guess. Friends and relatives surprise you. Put off travel when possible.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Extravagance isn't usually your shortcoming, but today's curious circumstances seem to make it natural — up to a point. Get your plans underway bright and early.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The more directly you approach today's issues, the stiffer the opposition. Travel — even brief errands — encounters delay or confusion. Mind your own affairs.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Let go of those who can't or won't cooperate. Say "no" and mean it when your fast-talking friends unveil their schemes. You have ideas of your own to put into operation.

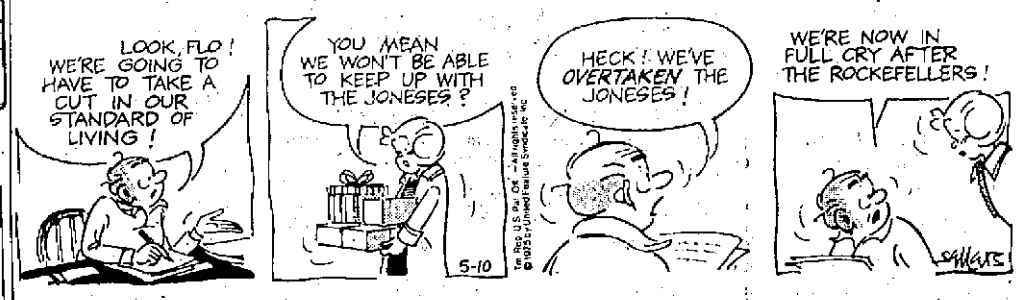

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get organized this morning. There's more to think about, pick up and pull together than you'd thought. Social activity goes best in the later hours.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Be definite about what you're sure of; say nothing about those things you haven't figured out yet. You have an extra educational opportunity and a few minor surprises.

Unwanted Mansion...but work continues

Busy workmen are shown in the massive living room, bottom. Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., a bachelor, says he will not live in the $1.3 million mansion, preferring to live in an apartment within walking distance of the Capitol. Completionn is due this August. Outgoing Gov. Industry Week

New plastic source vital

CLEVELAND — Petroleum costs are spurring a search for new raw materials for plastics, Industry Week reported Friday.

The 36 billion pounds of synthetic materials produced in this country each year consume between 3 and 5 per cent of the petroleum used in the U.S. The price of oil is now near $12 a barrel, and various tax and rationing proposals may make it even more expensive and more difficult to obtain, the magazine for managers pointed out.

But some research has shown that the plastics industry may be able to live without petroleum, at least for some products.

A RESEARCHER at Northern State College, Aberdeen, S. D., has produced nylon from oil from crambe seeds. The seeds are crushed and the oil that is extracted is converted into nylon fiber. It is a moisture-resistant nylon, and it compares with the same type of nylon processed from petroleum. Those involved in the project feel that crambe seed could be grown successfully in the U.S., Industry Week said.

A study at North Carolina State University, Raleigh, shows that wood can be used as a raw material for plastics. The university's Dr. Irving S. Goldstein claims that approximately 50 million tons of wood could replace oil as the petrochemical industry's raw material. The advantage of wood over petroleum is that timber is a renewable source. Moreover, the type of wood that would be used is low-grade timber, which exists abundantly throughout the country.

ALL OF THE essential chemical building blocks to make plastics and synthetic rubber can be derived from wood.

Although no cost studies on such a shift have been made, rough calculations indicate that the cost of "wood" oil would range between $7 and $14 a barrel, Industry Week said.

A pilot plant to make wood oil is under construction in Albany, Ore.

A study from Lowell Technological Institute, Lowell, Mass., reveals that natural rubber can be converted into plastics ranging from packaging films to liquid coatings. Work at the institute shows that reacting rubber with an excess of sulfur will produce excellent rigid plastics. Reaction with hydrogen chloride produces packaging film and sheet similar to vinyl plastics.

CHLORINATION OF rubber produces corrosion-resistant coatings and related products. Many other chemical reactions convert natural rubber into a wide variety of polymers with diverse uses in plastics, coatings, and adhesives, the magazine pointed out.

Although limitations of land and crop production may make it impossible for vegetable oil to become the major base for the plastics industry, the industry may find it advantageous to gear some process to using agricultural raw materials, Industry Week explained.

Banks losing mausoleum atmosphere

By WILLIAM J. STANFIELD

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Banks, once the most conservative of businesses both in practice and decor, are trying a new, neighborhood design approach in an effort to attract more customers.

Going the way of low interest rates and suits with vests are the high teller counters, standup check writing tables, the traditional drab colors and marble mausoleum look.

An increasing number of banks and savings and loan companies are going in for wide open spaces, low teller counters, comfortable sit-down check writing tables and individualized decor.

IMAGINE A BEACHFRONT savings and loan office with a nautical motif complete with sails, spars and spoked wheels. There's one in Marina Del Rey.

Or a branch of Bank of America, the nation's largest and once one of the stodgiest, with a giant African mask and a mural depicting the black heritage — from the depths of Africa to an idealistic picture of the future of blacks.

There's such a branch in the heart of Watts, scene of the 1965 riots.

In predominantly Chicano East Los Angeles, another Bank of America branch emphasizes the Mexican heritage and culture of the neighborhood residents.

Pacesetter in the move to a different look in banks and savings and loans institutions is Cannell and Chaffin Commercial Interiors, a nationwide firm which did more than half the 4,800 Bank of America branches in Southern California as well as hundreds of other banking offices, including Crocker Bank and Security Pacific National Bank.

"TIMES ARE CHANGING," said Bruce Archibald, executive vice president of Cannell and Chaffin. "People's dress, people's mores, their ways of living are not the same as they were five or 10 years ago. We found by trying to identify a corporation's image with the area in which it wants to do business, the firm will do better and we will have a more successful project."

A strong link exists between the environment in a firm and the responses of the people it does business with, either as customers or employes, Archibald said.

"If you can create a pleasant environment, the hours people spend in the business will be better and more productive and the owners and managers obviously will be better off," he said.

Cannell and Chaffin pays close attention to the neighborhood when it sets out to design a new building or redesign an old one.

Most people, he said, tend to prefer the familiar, the recognizable. "A design firm has to have the ability to take any kind of an interior concept and do it tastefully and professionally, whether it is modern or Mexican or black."

The Afro bank in Watts was a direct outgrowth of the mid 1960's riots, he said.

"THE BANK OFFICERS finally decided they really weren't identifying with the area in which they wanted to do business. Originally they felt what was good for the main branch was good everywhere. They came around to the fact that just wasn't the case.

"And because they wanted to reassert the bank's desire to become a part of the community, a community where most of the employes and customers are black, they asked us to come up with a design that would perpetuate the African heritage of the neighborhood.

"The same principle would apply to any area," he said.

Tire retreading enjoys big boom

By JACK LEFLER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The recession hasn't hurt all businesses. Take tire retreading, for example.

Many Southern California retreaders say they are experiencing a boom.

And Jerry Watson, president of RECO, Inc., a retread equipment distributor, said he sees a continued growth of the retreading industry throughout 1975 and most of 1976.

He said continued energy problems plus rising gasoline and tire prices are expected to make retreads more attractive to customers harassed by inflation and recession.

Harvey Brodsky, marketing manager of the Lodi Division of Intercole Automation, Inc., a manufacturer of retreading equipment, said reports from the field indicate that many passenger tire retreaders were enjoying what he called "an unprecedented boom."

THE MAIN REASON, Brodsky said, is that people shop harder for retreads during times of inflation and recession, and that by buying four retreads, on the average, can save a motorist as much as $75.

George Talon of Long Beach, who sells truck and passenger retreads, notes a significant change in retread-buying habits.

In the past, he said, it was common for motorists to ask for cheap retreads only because they were planning to dispose of their cars within 60 to 90 days.

"Now they are coming in and asking for quality," he said. "They want good rubber at a good price because they're planning on driving their cars another two years or so."

In addition to the saving on price, reduced speed limits, high gasoline costs and a trend to fewer long trips have contributed to the interest in retreads.

DEALERS SAY consumers are learning that the quality of retreads has been improving in recent years.

New-tire technology has improved significantly, and today's new tires are the raw materials of tomorrow's retreads.

Equipment used to manufacture retreads has also undergone major improvements. Many retread shops are now guaranteeing their products up to 20,000 miles.

And, dealers add, more consumers are becoming aware that using retreads can help ease the energy crisis and environmental problems.

For example, seven gallons of crude oil go into the making of the average passenger car tire, compared with two gallons for the same size retread.

A NEW TRUCK tire may take 26 gallons of crude oil, a retread seven gallons.

Retreading also extends the useful life of a quality casing which otherwise presents a disposal problem. It has been estimated that some 180 million usable casings were discarded in 1973.

Key $$ rulings on way

Events in the months ahead could lead to the first significant changes in the decision-making process for monetary policy since the 1930's. This would result from either of two extremes — aborted recovery or an early return to sky-high inflation, either of which might be blamed on the Federal Reserve System.

In the first instance, monetary policy would be viewed as too tight; in the second, too easy. Recent rapid growth in the money supply has encouraged some monetarists to conclude, at least tenatively, that the Fed is not going to starve the economy for funds. And if this growth falls back to a sustainable rate by late spring or summer, Fed chairman Arthur F. Burns and his colleagues may well have successfully walked a difficult economic and political tightrope.

BUT ALL that is certain now is that failure — or what is perceived to be failure — would not be forgiven by the public or Congress, with early legislation to change Fed powers a strong probability. Even if the Fed comes through this difficult period with flying colors, Congress still may act within the relatively near future — in this Congress or the next — to "modernize" the Fed.

After all, attitudes change and so should institutions. Moreover, assuming the economy does not fall apart, it's much better to reform monetary institutions when financial seas are relatively calm rather than turbulent. Although the Fed was created as a result of the Panic of 1907, the legislation was not passed until six years later and was based at least in part on recommendations of a blue-ribbon study commission established after the panic because it was clear

Two million businesses

Credit info base set in Long Beach

A new computerized service offering credit information on more than two million businesses will begin operation next year in Long Beach.

It will provide a quick rundown on how a business pays its bills and will help credit executives make fast decisions regarding cash flow and the cost of carrying past due accounts, according to James H. Holly, vice president of TRW Business Credit Services.

Subscribers will install a teleprinter and when requests for credit reports are made, information will be be transmitted to the printer from a computer center, Holly said.

CALLED THE National Credit Information Service, it will only be available to members of associations affiliated with the National Association of Credit Management.

Holly named three such associations in California which have subscribed to the service: The Credit Managers' Association of Southern California in Los Angeles with 3,000 members, the Northern and Central California Association of Credit Management in San Francisco with 1,600 members, and the Wholesale Credit Men's Association in San Diego with 1,300 members.

High-salaried executives careless with own finance

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK —This is the story of how the bottom drawer is helping to save the financial affairs of some otherwise top drawer executives. It is a story of failure being turned to success.

In handling their personal finances, many high-salaried executives are like anyone else. They often fail to plan. They live day to day. They keep disorganized records, if any at all. They forget.

Adding to the mess, which is a true description of the personal affairs of some executives, is the increasing complexity of financial life today, particularly in regard to tax laws.

Ten years ago some insurance companies entertained the notion that individual agents could be trained so broadly as to enable them to provide advice on the broad spectrum of financial needs. That attempt seems to have failed.

THE MAJOR problem with such a concept was overoptimism. It was soon realized that while some agents could understand a prodigious range of knowledge — insurance, stocks, bonds, real estate, law, income taxes — they were exceptions.

Now the role of financial adviser is considered a team effort. About seven or eight years ago the First National City Bank, U.S. Trust Co., and the Aims Group, later absorbed by Aetna Life & Casualty, led the way.

At a time like this one retreats to the basics, such as one's understanding of human nature, in search of an answer. Like so many others, Blanchard noted, executives tend to drop all their important financial documents into one file, desk or bureau drawer. Often it's the bottom drawer.

WITH THE information contained in such a repository, he reasoned, he could reconstruct an executive's financial situation and bring order to a condition in which chaos reigned.

Recognizing he would have to cooperate, Blanchard devised a file system for the bottom drawer into which the too-busy executives places all his important papers. Blanchard's men then collect the file and have a clear picture of their client's ever-changing financial situation.

One-man approach appears unlikely that the United States badly needed a central bank.

"REFORM" legislation in 1935, on the other hand, enacted relatively quickly following the financial crisis of 1933, was not especially well thought out. In fact, the "reform" was confined primarily to removing the Secretary of the Treasury from the seven-member Federal Reserve Board and creating the 12-member Federal Open Market Committee as the reserve system's central policy-making group. These actions strengthened the Fed's "independence within Government."

But as financial reform, they pale in comparison with other legislation of that era including the creation of Federal Deposit Insurance, prohibition of payment of interest on bank demand deposits and adoption of controls over interest on time and savings accounts ("Regulation Q," which has grown into an anticonsumer price control mechanism), separation of commercial and investment banking, and enactment of sweeping securities market legislation (including creation of the Securities and Exchange Commission).

NOW, IN the 1970's, if the Fed is indeed "remodeled," what changes is Congress likely to make? It may well conclude that the Federal Reserve Board is too big and should be reduced to five members at most and preferably three. Indeed, a respectable case can be made for a board of one — a "president" of the central bank as is the fasion in most other free industrial nations.

However, given the attitudes in the country concerning concentration of power, the one-man approach would probably attract little Congressional support. Some observers believe that Congress would give an incoming President the right to select the board's chairman from among its members; chairmen now serve four-year terms which do not necessarily coincide with the Presidential term.

Such action is unlikely.

Administration were removed and given to another agency.

"What we need is a new federal agency — a research-stimulating agency," he said.

He said that he is not anti-FDA and that the FDA should continue its "policeman" role in consumer protection.

Another way to speed up population control is to try to use some of the successful "software" techniques such as those proven successful in mainland China.

By software, he indicated he meant utilization of various techniques to get individuals to practice birth control. Even changing of cultural patterns would be used.

When Djerassi visited China, he said he found not only birth control pills but antifertility stamps. The stamps were impregnated with birth control chemicals, and a woman would tear off a stamp and swallow it.

Djerassi said there may be a birth control vaccine by 1990 — "but it won't have any impact on the next two billion people."

Birth control pills will be around for the next two decades, he predicted. Research to date indicates there are no serious long-term side effects. In fact, there's some evidence that the incidence of breast cancer and cervical cancer is lower among women who take the Pill.

Science should have the answer on long-term effects within five years, he said.

"It may be that oral contraceptives will turn out to be prophylaxis for breast cancer, and fertility control will be merely a side effect," Djerassi commented.

Djerassi added that all drugs, including oral contraceptives, have a risk — but that the risk from smoking is greater than that of taking the Pill.

Of all the contraceptives, the safest, he said, from the standpoint of lack of side effects is the condom.

Bribes to sell arms revealed by Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is telling American arms makers they must frequently use bribery of foreign officials to sell their goods in the Middle East.

A document prepared by a Pentagon arms salesman for use by U.S. weapons manufacturers says the bribes sometimes can total millions of dollars and reach very high levels of Middle Eastern governments.

THE document does not name any countries where bribes are paid or any American companies that pay them. However, Northrop Corp. is accused in a government lawsuit of paying $30 million over three years to sales agents and consultants without adequate accounting.

SEC documents indicate that at least some of this money was paid to an Iranian attorney and to a wealthy Saudi Arabian agent. Northrop is fighting to keep details of these payments secret. Saudi Arabia recently signed a contract to buy more than $756 million of Northrop's F5E "Tiger II" jet fighters.

The Pentagon document was prepared last year by Joseph K. Hoenig, an official of the Defense Security Assistance Agency, for use by trade associations of U.S. arms makers. It is unclassified and a copy is on file publicly in connection with the SEC's proceedings against Northrop.

PENTAGON spokesman Joseph Laitin said Friday he had not read the document, but "We are four square against bribery." Asked if overseas arms bribery is going on presently, he said, "I trust not."

Hoenig's paper gives a different impression. It says U.S. arms makers sometimes have no choice but to pay excessive fees to local agents who have or buy influence with their own governments. It says these Middle Eastern agents have been in business for 2,000 years and will be hard to eliminate entirely.

The paper says the agents apply influence variously through friendships, family ties with government officials and through "payment of substantial sums of money to individuals in high government positions with somewhat lesser amounts paid to lower echelon government officials."

Air crash kills publisher's kin

VAN NUYS (UPI) — The bodies of a cousin of Otis Chandler, Los Angeles Times publisher, and a flight instructor were found Friday in the wreckage of a light plane that crashed in the Tehachapi Mountains.

Identification of the bodies of William Garland, 30, and flight instructor Gary Dordigan, 32, was made by the crew of a U.S. Air Force helicopter which landed at the scene in a rugged area of the Tehachapis about five miles west of Gorman.

The twin-engine Cessna 337 in which they were flying was purchased recently by Garland from actor George Kennedy. Garland and Dordigan took off about 2 p.m. Thursday from Van Nuys Airport to check out the plane's characteristics.

A Civil Air Patrol spokesman said the plane crashed at the 6,500-foot level of Mount Alamo.

There was no immediate way of knowing why the plane crashed, the spokesman said.

Garland, a resident of West Los Angeles, was the grandson of William May Garland, onetime head of the U.S. Olympic Committee. His mother, Helen, was the sister of the late Norman Chandler, father of publisher Otis.

Garland was a real estate developer.

He and Dordigan, a resident of suburban Reseda, had planned to return to Van Nuys Airport in about three hours.

Robber gets $2,071 in L.B. bank holdup

A gunman who held up a Lloyds Bank branch at 2200 Pacific Ave. Friday afternoon escaped with $2,071, Long Beach police reported.

Officers said teller Margaret Robinson, 24, told them the man approached her window at 1:30 p.m., produced a small-caliber automatic, and said "don't push no buttons, just give me all your money, and hurry up or I'll shoot you."

The woman told police she handed the man bills from her cash drawer and he walked out the bank clutching the money in his hand. Witnesses told police they last saw the man running behind Lucky's Market at 2120 Pacific.

Police described him as Chicano, 35 to 40 years old, 6 feet tall, 135 to 140 pounds, black hair, brown eyes, with a bushy mustache and a pale complexion.

Officers said there were no cameras in the bank.

'Could take 6 months'

Refugee relocating stalls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The relocation of South Vietnamese refugees into new jobs and homes around the country is going much more slowly than expected and could take as long as six months, a senior voluntary agency official said Friday.

"I had hoped some of the red tape would be over by this time," Leon Marion said in a telephone interview. "We find that this is not true."

Marion is executive director of the American Council of Voluntary Agencies for Foreign Service, the umbrella organization coordinating the resettlement effort.

The estimated 113,000 refugees are gradually filling up special sections set aside at Camp Pendleton, Calif., Camp Chaffee, Ark., and Eglin Air Force Base in Florida.

MARION said only those South Vietnamese with previously established American sponsors or relatives in the United States have begun leaving the camps.

Those without already established contacts are undergoing interviews by officials of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, which is attempting to screen out criminals or persons of questionable character, Marion said.

He said a goal of matching up refugees with American sponsors within four days of their arrival in the United States is not being met, in part because immigration officials have yet to provide officials of seven volunteer agencies with names and backgrounds of Vietnamese.

Marion said the screening process "becomes a very ticklish problem because if the refugee leaves camp and he had a prison record he becomes a criminal in the eyes of the courts because he is an alien who was improperly registered."

In the interview from his office in New York, Marion said that, despite the ever-increasing number of U.S. sponsors now calling the volunteer agencies and the State Department, he doubts that there will be enough volunteers to account for all the Vietnamese who will eventually be coming to this country.

ORPHANS

Thomas R. Miller, an attorney, and his Vietnamese wife, Tran Tuong Nhu, who head the International Children's Fund here, are spokesmen for the committee.

MILLER said that the committee had been formed because "we became very alarmed at the stories we were hearing" from a number of Vietnamese-speaking people who had worked with the children at the Presidio.

"They'd call us up at midnight and were just horrified by the stories they were hearing from these kids," he said.

"Some said they wanted to go back to their parents," he said.

"Some who were older told of being separated from parents and wandering and being placed in an orphanage and then in a few days being brought over here." As for the suit, he said, "all we're asking is enforcement of laws on the books and to slow everything down until we can check what is happening."

Last week United States District Court Judge Spencer Williams denied the plaintiffs a temporary injunction and set next Monday as a hearing date on the suit. He has since postponed the hearing until May 19 to allow time for the deposition-taking.

hospital pharmacy, adequate blood bank service and other patient service improvements.

The original motion by Hayes focused on King Hospital, but was revised to include Harbor General Hospital and County-USC Medical Center after Hahn noted interns have complained about patient care at the latter two facilities as well.

Threatened strikes at County-USC and Harbor were called off Wednesday after interns and residents there voted to accept a new county offer of a five per cent increase in patient care funds and a five per cent pay increase.

But King hospital residents and interns, voicing concern over the quality of health care provided to King's predominantly poor, black patients, voted overwhelmingly against the funds offer and broke away from the Joint Council of Interns and Residents to call a strike.

REFUGEES

gees were women, children and old men.

The dispatch from the North Vietnamese capital said some were drugged with chloroform and their limp bodies loaded onto ships destined for Guam. The new government said such evacuation was a crime.

The Provisional Revolutionary Government demanded that the U.S. provide transportation for all Vietnamese who wish to return to South Vietnam.

Tanjug said a number of ships packed with unwilling evacuees had messaged they were in a poor condition and about 200 children were in danger of death from starvation and exhaustion.

The news agency also reported that a ship with 540 freed political prisoners from "tiger cages" on Con Son island in the South China Sea has sailed into the port of Vung Tau, southeast of Saigon.

The former Saigon regime and the U.S. had jailed 6,000 persons without trial on Con Son, the agency said. With the fall of Saigon, all 1,000 guards on the island surrendered to the Communist forces, the camp was closed and the prisoners returned to their families.

SHARP GUILTY

after the crash, and with the testimony of a single key witness.

Sharp suffered a broken wrist and a concussion when his car swerved off the road in the 23000 block of Alameda Street, Carson, and crashed into a power pole. The new, city-owned compact car caught fire on impact. It reportedly was sold for just $400 after the wreck.

Sharp had maintained he was forced off the road by another car. The prosecution contended Sharp's accident involved no other vehicle.

As testimony came in, however, the edges of that clear-cut dispute blurred.

Prosecution witness Diana Paul testified she was driving the car ahead of Sharp's; that a tumbleweed blew across her path and she braked quickly, putting her car into a momentary swerve. Her car did not leave its lane, however, she testified.

Sharp took the stand to say he was following another car which suddenly braked and, as he swung right to go around it, also swung to the right, forcing him to either collide or go off the road.

TWO SHERIFF'S deputies told the court Sharp had told them other versions of the crash shortly after it occurred. But under cross-examination, jurors learned they had talked to Sharp near the scene and before he had received any medical treatment.

For Sharp, the verdict fell into line with a series of events which in the space of 13 months brought his downfall as both a councilman and a contender for state office.

He was arrested on charges of receiving stolen property in April, 1974, less than two months after declaring his candidacy for the state Assembly. Those charges were brought by district attorney's investigators.

In June, 1974, he was defeated in his Assembly bid in the state's primary. November 19, he pleaded guilty to one felony count—18 days after his accident and just one day after the district attorney's office issued its complaint in the traffic case. Within a month, he resigned from the city council.

Sharp also is under indictment by a federal grand jury in connection with an investigation of Long Beach City government. That indictment was handed down April 22, less than two weeks before his traffic case began.

Cambodia victors claim social purge

United Press International

Cambodia's new Communist government said Friday it had begun to build a "sound, clean social system" based on agriculture and to repair the war-ravaged country.

French State television said that it had taped an interview with a French doctor claiming he saw 300 Cambodian corpses with their throats slit in the Phnom Penh central market. It said Dr. Bernard Piquart also reported that former Cambodian premiers Sirik Matak and Long Boret were shot at the Phnom Penh Cercle Sportif (Sports Club).

Contacted by UPI, however, Piquart later denied that he had made these remarks.

"The (French) broadcast is absolutely false," he said.

Radio Phnom Penh in a broadcast monitored in Bangkok said the new Khmer Rouge government will make a clean break with the policies of ousted President Lon Nol whose regime "imported everything from abroad."

McTear runs 100 in 9.0

High school sprinter equals world record

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP) — High school sensation Houston McTear equaled the world record in the 100-yard dash Friday with a 9.0 clocking in a preliminary heat of the state Class AA championship meet.

All three timekeepers had McTear at 9.0. The wind gauge showed a reading of two mph, well under the allowable 4.47 mph.

The 18-year-old Baker High School junior shattered the national high school record of 9.2 seconds which he and Mike Roberson of Winter Park High School set in separate qualifying meets last weekend. It tied the world mark of 9.0 set by Ivory Crockett last year at Knoxville.

McTear had proclaimed last month after running a 9.3 that his goal in the sport was just to reach 9.0.

"I never thought I was going that fast," he exclaimed. "I thought it was good, maybe 9.2, but I never thought I was going that fast."

McTear then captured the championship in 9.3, battling a headwind.

"I thought I had a good start. Some people said I false-started but I didn't. I just caught the gun when he fired. I didn't think about anything else. I was surprised," said McTear.

Asked to explain the difference between his 9.0 effort and the later 9.3 time, he smiled and said, "I just ran faster."

Baker High coach Will Willoughby pushed newsmen away from McTear and stopped interviews at that point saying, "He's tired. Leave him alone."

McTear's running career began five years ago when he joined the President's Physical Fitness Program.

His efforts include a victory in the 60-yard dash in Cleveland's Knights of Columbus indoor meet and a second last year in the 50-yard dash in the Maple Leaf Games at Toronto.

McTear was a last-minute replacement at the fourth USSR-USA indoor meet in Richmond, Va.—when Steve Williams decided not to compete—and tied the meet record of six seconds, defeating Mike McFarland of Indiana and two Russians in the 60-yard dash.

Baker, a small town in Florida's Panhandle, doesn't have a track so McTear's practices have consisted of running on the school's football field. Spurred by McTear's success, the school is building a track.

Houston has hopes of qualifying for the 1976 Olympics in Montreal. He was already considered a world-class runner and is called a natural sprinter.

Nevertheless, such experts as Mel Pender say that Houston carries his arms wrong and he sometimes comes out of the starting blocks too high.

McTear was a member of the school's football team last season, but has said he won't play this fall unless he is used as a receiver or another position where the chances of injury are eliminated. He averaged 14.4 yards a carry last season.

Iron Mike's arm bit rusty

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

PITTSBURGH—On a night when Burt Hooton had the finest game of his brief Dodger career, Mike Marshall had by far his worst.

Hooton, in his second appearance since coming to the Dodgers from the Chicago Cubs two weeks ago, pitched six strong innings, giving up just two runs—one of them unearned—and departed with a one-run lead.

Marshall, who followed Hooton and pitched just two innings, not only failed to hold the lead, he almost failed to get out alive.

It amounted to an 11-3 lacing by the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night, the most lopsided defeat suffered by the Dodgers this season. The loss trimmed the Dodger lead in the National League West to two games over second-place Cincinnati.

Marshall, the National League's Cy Young Award winner last year, was largely responsible.

He was making only his second appearance since tearing loose some cartilage in his left side on April 19. The pain persists although he failed to use it as excuse for his performance which included:

- Nine runs on seven hits, which included a homer and a triple by Dave Parker who also doubled and drove in six runs;
- Three walks and a hit batsman;
- No strikeouts.

"The side still hurts," Marshall said, "but that's no excuse. I just hope I can get out of bed tomorrow."

Manager Walter Alston, who went to the mound in the midst of Pittsburgh's four-run flurry in the seventh inning, said, "Mike says there was no pain but he didn't pitch like he was 100 per cent."

Marshall took the loss, his second in four decisions—and only the Dodgers' third in their last 14 starts. In the process his earned run average soared from 0.95, the best on the club, to 4.71.

Just the opposite was true for the 25-year-old Hooton who admitted Friday night's performance, staged before a Three Rivers Stadium audience of 16,378, was like a new lease on life.

"The longer I threw the more confidence I got," Hooton said. "Four innings is my longest shutout string all season...but soon I'll get a longer one."

"I appreciate his (Alston's) concern since I hadn't gone too far. He didn't want me overdoing it. The next time I should be able to go longer."

The showing by Hooton brightens the Dodgers' pitching despite the poor showing by Marshall.

"We've got to have Marshall, no question about that," said Alston. "I'm sure it's just like spring training for him since he hasn't been able to throw.

"But Hooton did one helluva job. He didn't

Angels discover no way to beat Wise guy

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

The Angels got the word from a Wise guy Friday night—and that was more than sufficient for the Boston Red Sox.

The word is that Rick Wise is back.

One year ago Wise was harboring grim thoughts that his pitching days might have come to an untimely passing. He developed a painful shoulder injury in his first start of 1974—on a cold, drizzly day against Detroit—and that recurring and aching dilemma was compounded when he accidentally closed the door on his pitching hand and broke a finger.

Friday night in the visitors' dressing quarters at Anaheim Stadium, Rick Wise put the torch to a victory cigar in the finest Red Auerbach tradition and ordered a root beer to celebrate a 4-1, three-hit conquest of the Angels.

For the Red Sox, it was their sixth successive triumph but the Angels are headed in the other direction. The loss was their seventh in nine games and they averted a shutout only on the strength of Mickey Rivers' leadoff home run in the ninth, enabling Rivers to extend his hitting streak to 10 games.

"Naturally I was concerned," Wise admitted of his lost year of '74. "Anytime there's a chance you're going to lose the job you love there is concern."

"The shoulder hurt all year and it never did start to improve until I took up a rehabilitation program during the winter.

"I'm still not all the way back but I can't deny that I was extremely satisfied tonight. You know, there was a lot of atrophy because of the inactivity and I still feel tired and weak in the late innings."

But Wise (3-2) has been a pillar of strength all season for Boston, completing four of his six starts and matching the 49 innings he was able to salvage throughout the tormenting 1974 season.

At the outset, he was simply overpowering. He surrendered a one-out single to Tommy Harper in the first inning and walked Bruce Bochte opening up the second. Then he proceeded to set down 16 Angels in rapid succession before Joe Lahoud, like Harper a former Bosox, looped a single to left with one out in the seventh.

The Angels never came close to picking up the scent of home plate until Rivers, a player who is beginning to deport himself like an emerging

Lakewood no-hitter

Jordan clinches CIF berth

By KEN PIVERNETZ

Jordan High clinched a CIF playoff berth and Lakewood ended its regular season on a spectacular note to wind up the Moore League baseball season Friday.

The Panthers, after playing giveaway much of the afternoon, saw Ron Herrin score on a wild pitch in the last of the seventh at Houghton Park to nip Compton, 5-4.

The win nailed down second place for Chuck McFerrin's team and a spot in the playoffs which get underway next Friday.

But even in winning the Panthers had to at best share much of Friday's glory with Lakewood pitchers Stan Williams, Rick Arnold and Sam Gierhan.

The trio combined on a 3-0 no-hitter against Wilson in the first game at Blair Field to give Lakewood its second successive 15-0 league record.

Williams pitched five innings, Arnold and Gierhan one apiece in a game that

T of C dropped; golfers stunned

DALLAS (AP) — Golf's touring pros expressed surprise, disbelief and disappointment Friday at the cancellation of the Tournament of Champions, for 23 years, one of the game's most prestigious events.

"Why not cancel Christmas, too?" asked Jerry McGee, who played in his first Tournament of Champions two weeks ago, when the event's contract expired with the Tournament Players Division, the governing body of the tour.

"We got the word earlier in the week, by telephone, without prior warning," said Tommy Jacobs, director of golf at the La Costa Country Club, the site of the tournament in southern California for the last seven years.

"The Policy Board decided not to reschedule the tournament of Champions because of a recent change in the tour structure and an unresolvable conflict with the new World Series of Golf," said Tournament Players Division commissioner Deane Beman.

Reaction of touring pros competing at the Byron Nelson Golf Classic ranged from quiet acceptance to dismay to shock to downright disbelief.

"I'm disappointed," said veteran Bobby Nichols, a former PGA champion who has played in the T of C 10 times. "It's a loss. It's something we all really looked forward to."

"I just can't believe it," said veteran Homero Blancas.

"It's ridiculous," snorted Leonard Thompson.

Several of the players took a calmer long-range look at it, however.

"Aside from the Big Four, that's the tournament I'd most like to win," said Hubert Green. "That's how high I rate it. But I have to believe that the commissioner knows what he's doing, that it isn't a spur of the moment thing, that it's part of some long-range plan for the good of the tour."

Johnny Miller, winner of the Tournament of Champions last year, agreed.

"Until I get more information, I have to support the commissioner," he said.

"There must be a reason for it, but I don't know

Kaat sets Chisox win-streak record

Combined News Services

Jim Kaat became the first pitcher in White Sox history to win 12 consecutive games Friday night when Pat Kelly's two-run eighth inning homer gave Chicago a 2-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Kaat, who has not lost since August 31, 1974, struck out five, walked two and allowed six hits in running his season mark to 5-0. He needed ninth inning relief help from relievers Rich Gossage and Terry Forster.

The victory was the 219th of Kaat's career and pushed him past John Rigney (1939) and Gary Peters (1963) — winners of 11 in a row.

In other American League games, Minnesota defeated Baltimore, 5-2; Milwaukee ripped Kansas City, 7-1; Texas got by Detroit, 3-1, and Oakland edged New York, 4-3.

Light-hitting catcher Glenn Borgmann climaxed a three-run second inning with a two-run single and rookie righthander Jim Hughes hurled a seven-hitter to lead Minnesota over Baltimore.

Hughes, 2-1, was making only his fourth major league start and second this season.

AMERICAN

Hank Aaron cracked his third home run of the season and 736th of his career into the left field seats to ignite a five-run seventh inning that sparked the Brewers over Kansas City.

With one out in the seventh, Aaron lined an Al Fitzmorris pitch barely fair into the leftfield seats to snap a 1-1 tie.

Rookie outfielder Dan Meyer's throwing error led to two Texas runs in the third inning as the Rangers corraled Detroit.

Pinch-runner Matt Alexander scampered home with the winning run on reliever Sparky Lyle's wild pitch with two outs to help Oakland past New York.

ANGELS LOSE—

superstar, sent a rocket into the seats beside the Boston bullpen in the ninth.

Meanwhile, the Red Sox pecked away at Andy Hassler for single runs in the second, third, fifth and seventh innings, evening Hassler's record at 3-3.

The most villainous bat in the Boston arsenal came from an unlikely source—shortstop Rick Burleson. Burleson, who had one extra base hit in 21 previous games, thoroughly outdid himself with a pair of doubles and added a single, too.

"Not much you can do on three hits," manager Dick Williams mentioned. "But at least we did manage to give the bullpen a night off."

These grave days, that isn't a bad idea.

The Angels have also picked up their home run pace. Rivers' drive was the second by the team in no less than five days and their sixth of the season.

At this frenetic clip, they'll easily top 30.

ANGEL ANGLES: The Angels have lost shortstop Orlando Ramirez for an indefinite period with a slight hamstring pull in his right leg. . .Ramirez injured himself Wednesday night in Oakland and tried to play Thursday night but had to come out after he fell down on an attempted steal. . .Ramirez, with a .300 average, has been a big surprise with the bat but his nine errors afield have caused some concern. . .There are 6,000 tickets remaining for tonight's Jacket Night game and they'll go on sale at Gate 3 at 9 a.m. today. . .A sellout is anticipated for the duel between Frank Tanana (1-0) and Luis Tiant (3-3). . .Tiant, incidentally, flies back to Boston Sunday to meet with Massachusetts Sen. Edward Brooke in an attempt to finalize plans to bring his parents from Cuba to Boston for a visit. . .Tiant, 34, has not seen his father since 1960. . ."It's hard to say how happy I am," Tiant said. "Fifteen years is a long time. It has been a difficult, unbelievable thing to live through.". . .His parents, of course, have never seen him pitch in the majors. . .Tony Conigliaro, looking more at ease now that he is back in a Bosox uniform, remarked before the game, "I've been heating up for this one for two months". . .But Tony C., unhappy as an Angel, was not in the lineup, his .138 bat mark yielding to Jim Rice's .324 as the Boston DH.

what it is,"said Lee Trevino, who long had ranked a Tournament of Champions victory high among his career goals.

"I don't understand it.

"They asked me to sign their petition, but I said I couldn't do it until I found out more about it."

About a dozen players signed a petition, addressed to Beman, requesting reinstatement the Tournament of Champions, before the petitions were removed from the tees and clubhouse at the Preston Trail Golf Club, site of the Nelson Classic.

Among those signing were Green, U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, former PGA titleholder Dave Stockton, and Buddy Allin.

The Tournament of Champions, originated in Las Vegas—it later moved to Carlsbad—in 1953. Its elite, exclusive field was made up only of the winners of regular tour events from the previous 12 months.

have much luck, but he pitched well."

The clubs swapped unearned runs in the fifth inning, then the Dodgers jumped out to a 3-1 lead in the sixth when Steve Garvey singled, one of his three hits, Willie Crawford tripled and Joe Ferguson singled.

But Pittsburgh got one back in the sixth when Parker doubled home Al Oliver, the first of his six RBI. Before that, though, Hooton appeared to be out of the jam when he fanned dangerous Wilver Stargell on fast balls. That's when Alston decided he'd had enough and brought Marshall out of the bullpen.

Pitching in much the same fashion as the well-known bullpen in Anaheim, Marshall lost the lead after facing only three batters and fell behind after four batters. In all, he faced 17 Pirates, 11 of them getting on base and nine of them scoring.

"If he keeps pitching like that we ought to get him a Halo," kidded one Dodger who requested anonymity.

Parker had three of the Pirates' 13 hits—all for extra bases—and Richie Zisk and Oliver also had three apiece.

"This club," Alston said with a nod toward the Pittsburgh clubhouse, "is liable to make anyone look bad."

DODGER DOPE: Dodger coach Tom Lasorda, on the Pirates' awesome Wilver Stargell: "The last time I saw anyone that huge it was hanging on the side of the Empire State Building and was clutching Faye Wray."

Bill Russell returned to the lineup for the first time since April 12. He went 1-for-4...Dave Giusti preserved the victory for starter Dock Ellis. Giusti, who underwent surgery during the winter, hasn't given up a run in 14 innings of relief, is 1-0 and has three saves.

Hooton's next start will be Tuesday night in St. Louis...Marshall has never had much success against the Pirates. He was 1-1 with a 5.14 ERA against the Pirates last year as a Dodger and is 4-8 in his career vs. Pittsburgh.

Pitching today's nationally-televised game (blacked out in Southern California) will be Don Sutton and Jim Rooker...Sutton is 6-1...Sunday Andy Messersmith guns for his 10th consecutive victory, against Ken Brett.

Parker has 13 hits in his last eight games...The loss was the Dodgers' seventh in a row during the regular season in Three Rivers. They were 0-6 here last year, although winning two during the N.L. championship series.

Sutton top NL hurler in April

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dodger righthander Don Sutton, who fashioned a 4-1 record to go with a 1.96 earned run average during April, Friday was selected the National League's first "Pitcher of the Month."

Celtics stay alive, 103-99

BOSTON (UPI)— Dave Cowens' hook shot with less than two minutes to play, followed by a steal by the Boston center, gave the Celtics a 103-99 win over the Washington Bullets Friday night and kept them alive in the NBA Eastern Conference finals.

The series moves to Landover, Md. for the sixth game Sunday afternoon with Washington leading, 3-2.

The Celtics, who had led by as much as 11 points in the first half, fell behind in the opening minute of the fourth quarter, 83-81. Cowens, playing the entire period with five fouls, scored 11 of his 27 points in the final frame.

Phil Chenier led all scorers with 32 points, followed by Elvin Hayes with 29.

Boston trailed 99-98 with three minutes to go, but scored the final five points. Jo Jo White started the winning skein, making one of two three throws to tie the game at 99. The foul was of double importance. It was the sixth on bothersome Kevin Porter, who had gotten the Bullets running in the second half.

Don Nelson hit a 15 foot jumper with 2:13 remaining to give Boston a 101-99 lead. But Washington could not capitalize its next three times down the floor. On one occasion, with a minute and a half to go, a Hayes basket was called back because of a traveling foul.

Cowens then sealed the game with 1:31 left, moving across the lane, sweeping his left handed hook over a stretching Wes Unseld.

PREP BASEBALL—

saw Wilson have only three base runners—two on walks and an error.

Poly defeated Millikan, 6-3, in the second game to tag a sad ending on Gary Brown's last game as coach of the Rams.

Three of Jordan's five errors came in a ragged fifth inning when Compton scored twice off hardluck Perry Self to gain a 4-4 tie.

The Tarbabes had runners on base in every inning but the second, getting two men on to leadoff the seventh only to see Terry O'Toole strike out Rubio Malone, Tyrone Davis and Greg Fortson.

The winning run came when Herrin led off the bottom of the seventh with a double to center, Arnold Moss just missing a diving catch. O'Toole then executed a sacrifice, Herring taking third.

With the outfield and infield in, Glenn Thornton struck out pinch-hitter [illegible] Bleekr on three pitches for the second out. Frank Carderella followed and never had to take the bat off his shoulder. A pitch low and outside got away from Compton catcher Dennis Boswell, Herrin streaking home to score.

Boswell had three hits and two RBI for Compton.

Kevin Miller's first-inning double, scoring John Flannery with his 19th run in 15 league games, gave Lakewood the only run it needed.

Williams retired the first seven Wilson batters before walking Scott McIntyre with one out in the third. The Bruins' other baserunners came when Chuck Williams was safe on a two-out error by Flannery in the sixth and Tom Check drew a walk off Gierhan in the seventh.

Williams also had two hits and drove in a run.

Ken Price scattered three hits and Mike Cochran went 3-for-3, scored twice and drove in a run as Poly defeated Millikan in a game where many of the respective school's reserves had a chance to play.

Millikan started only one regular, Vern Followell, and Brown let seven players pitch, each hurling one inning.

Lakewood, Millikan score CIF gym wins

Lakewood and Millikan, the Moore League's top two teams, scored home-floor victories Friday in the opening round of CIF gymnastics playoff competition.

Lakewood outpointed El Rancho, 143.55-121.50, while Millikan ousted South Hills, 132.04-85.73.

The Lancers were led by all-around winner Mike Jahn, who scored at a 6.50 average and Cindy Eastwood, winner in the floor exercise (8.25) and second in vaulting (8.1).

Millikan swept the top three places from Sunny Hills in three events en route to its lopsided win. Senior Jim Hamilton's 6.74 average earned him all-around honors but the Rams also received strong efforts from Bill Hughs and Dave Gerloch.

Wilson High was knocked out of the CIF playoffs by dropping a 127.5-115.8 decision to host Rowlands High in a night meet.

Jorge Cazares performed well for the Bruins despite the loss, fashioning a 5.0 all-around average.

Neff finishes with flourish for third

Mike Dunn blanked Mayfair on four hits for eight innings before Neff could push across a run to capture its fifth game in a row and clinch third place in the Suburban League Friday, 1-0.

The Trojans, who managed six hits off losing pitcher Greg McSparran in the extra inning contest, finished with an 8-7 record, and have an outside chance for a CIF playoff berth. The 2-A playoffs begin Tuesday.

Dunn, a senior, faced only one difficult situation in going the route. The Monsoons loaded the bases in the top of the fourth, but the rally fizzled when Neff second baseman Mark Meadors speared a difficult grounder, tagged the runner racing to second, and threw to first for a double play.

Neff threatened once during regulation, when Glenn Tellis laced a triple to left-center wth one out in the bottom of the fifth. But the Trojan catcher tried to score on Rick Alkire's come-backer to the pitcher, and was thrown out.

McSparran, who fanned nine and gave up one walk through seven innings, issued a free pass to Bob Molina with one out in the eighth. Molina took second on a passed ball before the next batter, Brian Younger, struck out. Craig Kulonis followed with a single to drive in the game's only run.

Glenn high, which defeated Cerritos Wednesday to wrap up second place, finished regular season play with a seven-game victory streak by beating the Dons again, 3-0.

Fred Musquiz picked up the win, his fifth of the year against two defeats, tossing a two-hitter and striking out seven. Cerritos' only two safeties were singles—by Steve Dodd in the second and Dan Waling in the seventh.

Glenn got the only runs it needed in the second when Nick Klistoff walked and scored on Tony Langdon's triple to right field. The next batter, Tony Guerrero, hit a grounder to Don second baseman Vic Hillstead, who threw wildly to the plate to allow Langdon to score.

The Eagles added another run in the sixth inning when Klistoff singled home Bart Horsely.

League champion Gahr only managed three hits against Artesia, but still won its finale, 3-1. Glenn Prater hurled his fourth win in five starts, stopping Artesia on four hits.

Gahr, which finished 12-3 in league action and 19-5 overall, had to scratch for runs.

With the score tied 1-1, Duane Becker led off the fifth inning with a single and was sacrificed to second. Catcher Mike French then followed with a run-scoring single, moved to third on a groundout by Prater, and scored on a passed ball.

Artesia had taken an early lead on two singles and a stolen base in the first inning.

Brethren gains tie

Brethren erupted for nine runs in the first three innings and went on to defeat Bell-Jeff, 10-0, in the Olympic League finale.

The victory moved Brethren into a three-way first place tie with Whittier and L.A. Baptist. Brethren, 8-3, pways Whittier today, with the winner to meet L.A. Baptist for the title.

Aaron Huebner went all the way for Brethren, striking out nine and limiting Bell-Jeff to three singles.

Tim Fiske went four-for-four to lead a 20-hit Brethren attack in which everyone in the starting lineup hit safely. Corey Lyon went three-for-four for the Warriors and Mark Lyon had three singles in five at-bats.

Avalon High swept a doubleheader from Western, 2-0 and 7-3, to win the Adademy League championship.

Casey White hurled a three-hitter in the opener, striking out 12, for his fourth league triumph. Avalon got the only run it needed in the third when Raul Hernandez walked and then scored on three Western throwing errors during a pickoff attempt.

Will Nelson win Nelson tourney?

DALLAS (UPI)—Young Larry Nelson, seeking his first victory since joining the PGA tour last year, fired three successive birdies on the back nine and shot a six-under-par 65 Friday to jump into a one-stroke, second-round lead in the $175,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Nelson, 27, who says he took up golf because he wanted to work outside, shot the front nine in four under and closed at 69-65—134, eight under par. The former infantryman who fought in Vietnam held a one-stroke lead over Tom Watson and Bob E. Smith, who were tied at seven-under 135.

Nelson's second-round partner, Jack Ewing, and Watson each shot eight-under 63s Friday to tie the Preston Trail course record.

Bruce Crampton, with a one-stroke lead entering the second round, shot a one-under 70 to fall two strokes off the pace into a tie with Dwight Nevil, who shot his second three-under 68.

Crampton eagled the par-four 429-yard 18th with a 148-yard seven-iron shot that hit two feet behind the pin and spun back into the hole on the soft greens.

Packed together three strokes off the lead at 137 were Ewing, Ben Crenshaw, Bob Dickson, Rod Funseth, Roy Pace, Don Bies, Miller Barber, George Knudson and Charles Coody.

Large lineup for match play

BY DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

One of the largest fields in many years, 188, will tee off today in the qualifying for Long Beach golf's longest grind, the 51st annual match play championship at Skylinks.

The event, spanning three weekends, starts with 36 holes of qualifying and the low 64 scorers go into match play next Saturday. There will be a new champion since Beau Baugh has turned pro.

Nine golfers are on the stand-by list and not since the late 1960s has this occured.

There is no clear-cut favorite. The edge will go to the preps and collegians who play every day and that means husky Tony Campregher and little David Games will bear watching.

Fourteen-year-old Games was the surprise of the 1974 event, knocking off Campregher before losing to Baugh in the finals, 5 and 4. Games is a ninth-grader at Bellflower High, Campregher a junior at LBSC.

Long Beach City College's top players, Phil Caputo and Chuck Wallace, and the last two L.B. Masters champions, Mike Bellmar and Bob Abbey, figure to be among the contenders.

Also worth title consideration is Jeff Newell, the Skylinks champion.

Best of the out-of-towners are Frank Adams of Los Angeles, a tri-medalist last year; Mark Wankier of Mission Viejo, a quarterfinalist three years ago; and the Watts brothers of Green River, Larry and Jerry.

Besides Games and Campregher, others in the field who reached the round of eight last year are Dan Cooper, John McMonegal Sr., Don Shirey and Leonard Young.

Past champions playing are Del Walker, Bill Deeble and Larry Griggs Sr. Willard Bryan, Ed McBratney and Dave Elder are former runner-sup. Starting times:

Miss Higuchi was five-under-par before driving into a bunker and taking two shots to get out. That double bogey forced her into a tie with Miss Blalock's and Miss Cullen's 3-under-par 70.

Hawley-wood Park rider has 53 wins

Sandy Hawley continued to turn the Hollywood Park Jockey race into a rout Friday, as the 26-year-old Canadian booted home three more winners, including Winds of Love in the featured Culver City Purse.

Hawley has 53 winners during the first 22 days of racing at the Inglewood track, putting him seven days ahead of Laffit Pincay's record run of last year. Pincay, who finished with 148 winners in 1974, didn't get number 53 until May 18.

Pincay has been chasing Hawley all season, just as he did in the afternoon's featured $16,000 event for three-year-old fillies. Pincay was aboard the morning-line favorite Brazen Belle while Hawley was astride the third morning choice, Winds of Love.

However, the crowd of 23,038 sent Hawley's filly to the gate as the 8-5 choice and the Canadian didn't disappoint his backers, giving his mount a flawless ride.

Winds of Love, who was scoring her third win at the meeting, tracked the early pacesetter, Campo Lady, to the top of the stretch. After taking over the lead, she withstood Brazen Belle's late charge to win by a half-length. Time for the mile was 1:35 3/5.

A vastly improved daughter of Windy Sands, Winds of Love paid $5.40, $3.80 and $2.60 across the board. Brazen Belle returned $4.20 and $3.00 while Our First Delight paid $2.80 to show.

Hawley's other winners were Springwater ($3.80) in the second race and Rocco's Joy ($9.80) in the fifth.

Actually, the riding star of the day may have been H.K. (Duke) Wellington, a former national apprentice champion. Wellington tallied with King's Sterling at $49.40 in the third race (hanging a nose decision on Hawley) and guided Super Sprite to a $28.00 upset in the nightcap.

Moore track at Wilson

Mark Madison, Mike Hayes and Jeff Sexton will be odds-on picks to win their favorite events at today's Moore League track and field finals at Wilson High.

Madison, Poly's star shotputter has a season best of 60 feet, 9 inches, nearly a foot farther than his closest challenger; Hayes, from Lakewood, showed during Wednesday's prelims he is rounding into top form at 880 yards after having been ill; Sexton, Compton's versatile runner, is the only athlete to have dipped under 50 seconds in the quarter-mile.

Prospects for close finishes in the sprints, 330 low hurdles, both relays and long jump are excellent.

Sexton, who has run the 220 only three times this spring but has an excellent 21.9 clocking to his credit, will meet Poly's Michael Flippen (22.0).

In the 100, Wesley Austin of Compton has run 9.8, but the runner who beat everyone in league is Millikan's Larry Norwood.

Norwood also flashed promise as an intermediate hurdler in the prelims, running 38.7. Charles Byrd of Wilson has run 38.8 and 38.6 the last two weeks.

Tommy Thomas of Wilson and Poly's Ray Kelly are capable of 24 feet in the long jump.

First three places in each event qualify for the CIF 4-A prelims a week from today at Citrus College.

Field events begin at 1 p.m. today, running events at 1:30. — Ken Pivernetz

Pacific tops LBSU

Pacific scored four runs in the fifth inning to break open a close game and hand Long Beach State a 5-2 defeat in PCAA play Friday at Blair Field.

The 49ers were the victims of three inning-killing double plays. In the second inning, four hits failed to produce a run as the key hit eluded Long Beach batters.

Three singles and a pair of doubles—all with two outs—accounted for Pacific's four fifth-inning runs.

Half running in primary spent under $200

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Nearly half of the 70 candidates who ran for office in Long Beach's primary nominating election on March 18 received or spent less than $200 on their campaigns, according to reports filed with City Clerk Elaine Hamilton.

Thirty-two of the candidates, among them City Auditor Murray T. Courson who was unopposed in the primary, merely submitted verified statements that not more than $200 was received or expended in support of their candidacy.

A number of candidates, including City Prosecutor Robert W. Parkin who also was unopposed, filed more detailed statements, but could have submitted the general statement. Parkin's report indicated no funds received, and only $159 spent.

Five candidates who signed the statements that they spent or received less than $200 won nomination from their district to run in next Tuesday's general election for City Council seats. They are Charles Calix in the Third District, Phillip B. Greer in the Fourth, James P. McGuinness Sr. in the Sixth, Ronald A. Morgan in the Seventh and Wes Carroll Jr. in the Eighth.

Largest amounts of money both received and spent were reported by Jack Cox, an unsuccessful candidate in the Seventh District. Cox reported receipts totaling $13,685 and expenditures of $11,685.

Cox said he received $750 from the Printing Specialties and Paper Products District Council No. 2 of Los Angeles and $500 from Long Beach Teamsters Local 692. He also reported a $500 contribution from Dental Offices, Inc., of Los Angeles, and $100 from the Joint Council of Teamsters in Sacramento.

Most common items of expense reported by candidates were for printing, mailing costs and advertising.

A number of candidates reported no receipts, but varying amounts of expenses. Mrs. Hamilton said the state form provides no place for reporting contributions by the candidate himself, and these presumably are covered in expenditures not offset by receipts.

City Atty. Leonard Putnam, who was elected in the primary by receiving a majority vote among three candidates, reported receipts of $1,795 and expenditures of $1,796. Contributions came from various attorneys, with a $495 donation from the law firm of Ball, Hunt, Hart, Brown and Baerwitz being the largest single donation.

Expenditures by successful City Council nominees, by district, were:

District 1 — E. John Hanna: no receipts, $263 in expenditures; Don Phillips: $650 in receipts, $111 in expenditures.

District 2 — Bert Bond: no receipts, $1,634 in expenditures; Wallace W. Edgerton: $355 in receipts, $1,882 in expenditures.

District 3 — Charles Calix: receipts and expenses under $200; Renee Simon: $4,171 in receipts, $1,731 in expenditures.

District 4 — Thomas J. Clark: $1,637 in receipts, $446 in expenditures; Phillip B. Greer, receipts and expenses under $200.

District 5 — Ernie Kell: $877 in receipts, $4,260 in expenditures; Jo Ann Richards: $2,834 in receipts, $806 in expenditures.

District 6 — James P. McGuinness Sr.: receipts and expenses under $200; James H. Wilson: $1,250 in receipts, no expenditures.

District 7 — Ronald A. Morgan: receipts and expenses under $200; Eunice N. Sato: $3,310 in receipts, $2,100 in expenditures.

District 8 — Wes Carroll Jr.: receipts and expenses under $200; E. F. "Ted" Cruchley: $1,890 in receipts, $3,401 in expenditures.

District 9 — Larry N. Jones: $558 in receipts, $570 in expenditures; Russ Rubley: $1,475 in receipts, $1,280 in expenditures.

Among contributors to several candidates was Pacific Theaters, which gave $150 each to Phillips, Mrs. Simon and Wilson. Henry H. Clock, attorney for the theaters, also gave $150 each to Mrs. Simon and Wilson.

Rubley's contributors included Edgington Oil Co. and Harold Penrose, a garden equipment manufacturer, each of which donated $500. Another individual, Sam Gage, property manager, contributed $200.

Phillips received a $200 contribution from C. L. and Dorothy Erickson, an assistant hospital administrator, and Wilson's major contribution was $800 from a Committee to Elect James Wilson, headed by attorney Edwin J. Wilson.

Mrs. Simon received $200 from the law firm of Balser, Horowitz, Frank and Wakeling, $150 from the architectural firm of Killingsworth, Brady and Associates and $100 from retired Long Beach city librarian Blanche Collins.

Largest contribution for Mrs. Sato was $298 worth of printing from George Rice, 2961 Redondo Ave. None of the contributions listed by Cruchley were over $100, and the same applied to Kell. Dr. Clark also listed no contribution in excess of $100.

Seven accused of rigging carnival 'contest' at fair

Seven persons suspected of rigging a carnival game at a fair sponsored by Cerritos College were arrested after sheriff's deputies discovered a so-called "black box" in the game booth, investigators said Friday.

FBI electronics experts were called in from Washington, D.C., to examine the device—apparently the only one ever seized intact, Norwalk deputies said. The device, actually a small white box with three exterior switches and relay circuits inside, allegedly allows the operator of a game to select the winner of each contest.

Deputies said the seven persons —all booked on charges of operating a razzle dazzle game and theft by device—were identified as Stephen J. Kaner, 23, of Northridge; Harriet J. Kaner, 41, of Northridge; Barbara Whitby, 21, a transient; Stephen J. Merton, 31, of Fontana; Eric R. Smith, 22, of San Diego; Marc R. Ellison, 19, of San Diego; and Vera D. Russell, 41, a transient.

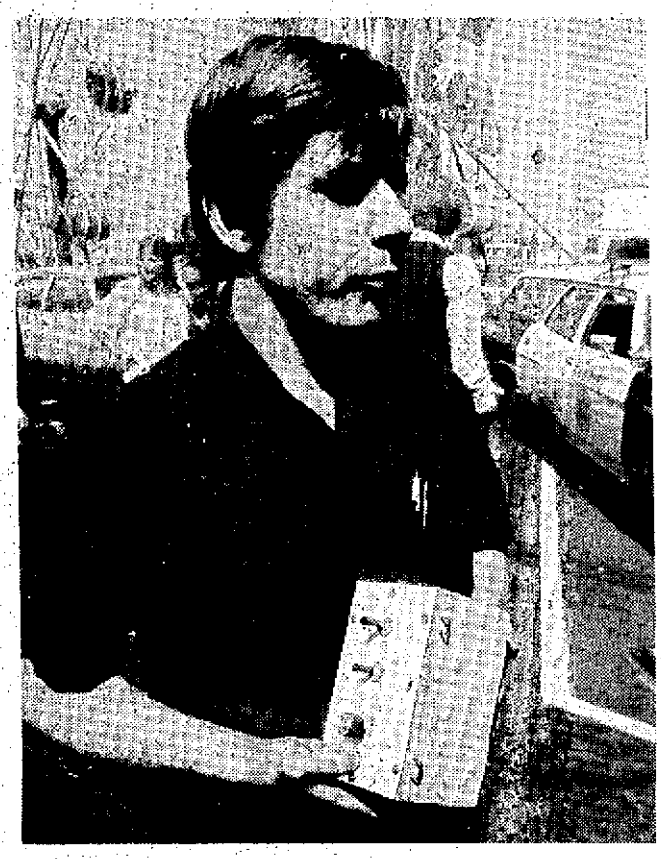

Investigators said the seven were arrested at the college Thursday after vice officers made a routine check of carnival operations at the request of the department's licensing division.

Deputies said they suspected the "black box" operation at a combination pinball-horse race game called "Derby" when it appeared that players maneuvers were overriden by an unseen control device.

The game, one of several at the carnival, consisted of a horse race run by a pin ball mechanism, deputies said. During a game, players activate their mechanical horses—which appear on a lighted board—through the pinball mechanism, and the first player to get his horse across the finish line wins.

Deputies alleged that the "black box" allowed an operator to determine the winner of each contest, according to Sgt. Robert Snyder.

Snyder, who said he has inspected over 3,000 carnival games throughout the state, told reporters:

ROBERT SNYDER CONFISCATES 'BLACK BOX'

"It's an ingenious little thing, but what you see should be what you get."

He said carnival attractions such as the "Derby" can make large sums of money, and sheriff's deputies periodically check the operation of the games for the use of illegal devices.

Snyder added that deputies observed the "Derby" game for more than an hour before making the seven arrests. Snyder said one of the operators in the booth attempted to unplug the "black box" as the deputies moved in and began making the arrests.

He said results of the FBI's tests on the device would be used as evidence in court. Snyder added that the FBI was the only law enforcement agency in the nation with the sophisticated equipment necessary to determine if the game was rigged.

College officials said the carnival, operated by SJM Fiesta Shows of Fontana, was held on the campus parking lot to raise money for the financial aids office.

Con worked on elderly

'Tax-aid' swindler peril

"Fakers and con artists" are trying to swindle senior citizens on the pretense of helping them to register for exemptions from Long Beach's utility users tax, officials of the city's Department of Senior Citizen Affairs warned Friday.

"Posing as friends of the elderly, they are using the registration as a means of winning the confidence of the people, and then pulling their swindles," said Herb Nalibow, director of senior citizen affairs.

Nalibow said some individuals have tried to collect fees for allegedly registering senior citizens for exemptions, and emphasized that there is no charge for such service.

Others call at an elderly person's home, supposedly offering to help with registration, but only using that as an introduction to some sales pitch, he said. No city employe will call at any individual's home unless requested to do so because the person is unable to get to a registration center, he said.

More than 10,000 Long Beach residents 62 years of age or older already have registered for the exemption from the tax on utilities, approved several weeks ago by the City Council, Nalibow said. Registration continues until May 28 on the following schedule:

Monday through Thursday, noon to 4 p.m.—Bay Shore Library, 195 Bay Shore Ave.; Los Altos Library, 5614 Britton Drive; Twain Library, 1325 E. Anaheim St.; Burnett Library, 560 E. Hill St.; Bixby Park Senior Center, Cherry Avenue and First Street; Houghton Park, 6301 Myrtle Ave.

Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.—Department of Senior Citizen Affairs, 201 E. Broadway; Senior Opportunities and Services, 406 E. First St.; Downtown Neighborhood Center, 601 Pacific Ave.; Volunteers of America, 700 E. Broadway; Public Utilities Building, 215 W. Broadway; North Long Beach Neighborhood Center, 1337 E. South St.; Westside Neighborhood Center, 1372 W. Willow St.; Silverado Park, 1545 W. 31st St.; Central Area Neighborhood Facilities Center, 1135 Rhea St., and Eastside Neighborhood Center, 2338 E. Anaheim St.

If it is not possible for a senior citizen to get to one of the sites to register, the Department of Senior Citizen Affairs will send someone to the individual's home. A specific appointment will be made, and the city representative will have a Long Beach identification card, which carries his or her photograph, Nalibow said.

Any questions on the registration or the tax exemption should be directed to the Department of Senior Citizen Affairs, telephone 432-6427.

EPA commends L.B. for 'environmental' development

A commendation for the City of Long Beach's environmental planning in conjunction with its downtown redevelopment effort has been received from the federal Environmental Protection Agency, City Manager John R. Mansell said Friday.

Jack Heidinger, director of land use and transportation policy for the EPA, said the city "wisely pursued a parking management program as part of its redevelopment and fixed guideway programs in order to control the use of the auto in the community."

Heidinger commended the city for its decision to proceed with a parking management program even before the EPA had published regulations concerning the program.

The EPA official's comments followed a national seminar in Washington, D.C., to discuss EPA parking management regulations.

Heidinger pointed out that while planning major activity generators in the downtown area, Long Beach realized that "an extraordinary number" of new parking spaces would be required.

This, he said, would ultimately result in "chaotic" congestion of downtown streets with automobiles, an increase in street-level pollution, and an overall redevelopment that would become "quite unattractive."

The parking management program and proposed fixed guideway "people mover" system offers a way out of this dilemma, Mansell said.

"Naturally, we are elated to hear of the statements of Mr. Heidinger," the city manager said. "It is one more example of policies approved by the City Council that protect the environment of the city."

Open house scheduled at computer center

Open house is planned at Bellflower Unified School District's new computer center, 16703 S. Clark Ave., from 2 to 9 p.m. Tuesday.

A spokesman said the district's new equipment, which includes a Univac 9480 computer and cathode ray terminals (CRTs), will be on display.

He said the new computer system will service the district's personnel file maintenance, attendance reporting, class scheduling, test scoring, grade reporting, budget preparation, accounts payable, payroll processing, purchasing, food services, financial reporting, inventory reports, adult education services and billing reports.

Medical unit chief named

Gerald G. Bosworth of Palos Verdes Estates has been appointed acting executive director of the County-USC Medical Center, it was reported Friday.

Vote-tally systems at issue

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

There are philosophical differences in Orange County over voting and tallying procedures, the county grand jury said in a report Friday.

It sought to clarify its recommendation that the Board of Supervisors buy a punchcard voting system for the county, ultimately replacing the Gyrex vote-tabulating system that uses paper ballots marked with special inks, which in turn are read by the Gyrex to prepare punch cards for computer readout.

It said that some voting machines, notably the pull-lever type, total returns at the precinct level, and that they are thus quickly available after the polls close.

But many are convinced that centralized vote-counting by computer, as the county now does the job, is the best method, and is subject to the least error.

The jury also recommended that the county continue vote-tabulation by computer.

Its statements about the county's voting procedures and tallying problems sought to clarify its recommendations for punch-card devices in the polling places.

The grand jury stressed that "the cost of a new voting system, the vote counting time and the accuracy of the vote count are major factors in determining the type of system to be selected.

Policewomen on patrol — here to stay?

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

The problems women law enforcement officers encounter on patrol are much the same ones their male counterparts have to deal with.

So concluded a panel on "Policewomen on Patrol—Here to Stay?" The workshop was conducted as part of the 7th Annual Southern California Community Relations Officers Association meeting this week at the Golden Sails Inn.

The question of whether policewomen on patrol are here to stay met with a strong yes from the policewomen on the panel.

Women officers, it was pointed out, are especially effective in handling family disputes and make a male-female officer team a particularly capable force in "seeing two sides of a problem," the panel of six officers explained.

Panel moderator Capt. Fred M. King, of the Fullerton Police Department, reminded the predominately male meeting that in 1971 "fewer than 12 policewomen were actually given real patrol police duties. In 1974, there were more than 1,000—with several hundred in a supervisory capacity."

When Officer Kathy Serna of the La Habra Police Department graduated from UCLA with a major in political science, she said she found "private industry paid women half the salary they paid men."

Police work held the lure of working with people in a helping capacity and offered equal pay for men and women.

"When I first went on patrol," Mrs. Serna said, "my husband, who is also a peace officer, thought it was great. My mother... was appalled.

"I still don't know how I'm going to react in a fight situation," the slender Mrs. Serna said. "But neither, I'm told, does a male officer who's never been in that position. You just don't know until it happens.

"I'm sure of one thing," she added, "I won't hurt any more than a male officer."

Twenty-one-year old Leslie J. Allen worked at Disneyland before she joined the Highway Patrol.

"I was attending University of California-Irvine when I first read about the CHP recruiting women. I thought I'd just try taking the test. I never really thought I'd be an officer—but here I am and I don't think my situation is any different than a male officer," the pert officer said.

Officer Carol Nease, currently assigned to the forgery and fraud detail at the Santa Ana Police Department, was the lone dissenter of the group—she doesn't believe policewomen belong in a patrol situation.

One of the reasons she gave was that certain ethnic groups were not trained to accept a woman in the position of authority.

"I've had a number of good things happen to me, too," she said. "I'm 5 foot 3 inches and when I first climbed behind the wheel of a patrol car, my feet wouldn't reach the pedals.

"Then there was the little old lady who asked me to her house for milk and cookies to keep up my strength. People would come to me with very personal problems," Mrs. Nease continued. "I felt like 'Dear Abby' in a police car.

"There is a definite need for women in law enforcement—but not in a one-girl unit," she said.

Taking issue with Mrs. Nease, who is a seven-year police force veteran, Los Angeles Police Department Officer Roseann Reiss, said women do belong on patrol and said she sees one important benefit from having male-female patrol teams because they "get two divergent points of view enabling officers to cover the whole depth of emotions" while handling a police problem.

"I don't see police work as a man's job," said Officer Reiss who has been on patrol for seven months, "I see it as a people's job."

Sex role stereotypes, opinions formed in early childhood development when girls are handed dolls to play with and boys receive toy guns, and cultural differences were among the attitude considerations touched on by L.A. County Sheriff's Department Sgt. Mary Ann Dugas.

Sgt. Dugas cited the example of "role reversal" as a major step in the response people have when they encounter a female officer.

Role reversal is a sociological reaction felt when men are encountered in a job usually filled by women—for example, a telephone operator—and the feeling of suprise when the hardhat working on the highrise building at the corner turns out to be a woman.

The final report on a pilot study of "Policewomen on Patrol" completed in 1974 found that:

—New women on patrol obtained results similar to those of comparable male officers in handling angry or violent citizens.

—New women and comparable men received similar performance ratings from the police department in its standard review of new officers.

—Citizens believed that men and women were equally capable of handling most situations, but they were skeptical about the ability of women to handle violent situations.

—Patrolmen doubted that patrolwomen were the equal of men in most patrol skills.

—Patrolmen had a definite preference for patrolling with a male partner. Patrolwomen had a slight preference for patrolling with a male partner.

—Male patrol officers who said that women should not be a regular part of the patrol force had less formal education and were more likely to believe in arrests as a performance measurement than other patrolmen.

—Police officials were somewhat more positive toward policewomen in 1973 than they had been during 1972.

In summary, the more policewomen are seen on patrol, the more likely they are to be accepted as a cogent force in police departments by both fellow officers and the average citizen.

Nations asked to delay 'mining' ocean floor

New York Times Service

GENEVA — The president of the United Nations Law of the Sea Conference addressed a "fervent appeal" Friday to all coastal states to refrain from grabbing a greater share of the ocean's resources before a new international treaty governing man's use of the seas can be completed.

The appeal was made by Hamilton S. Amerasinghe of Sri Lanka at the final sitting held by the 140-nation conference before it adjourned its eight-week-long second session.

THE conference, which met for 10 weeks in the Venezuelan capital of Caracas last summer, has scheduled a third session of eight weeks in New York next spring and made plans for still another round later in 1976.

Because of growing impatience with the slow progress made with the intricate task of drafting an entirely new code for the seas, many coastal nations have been threatening to extend their territorial waters and otherwise expand their claims to exclusive fishing rights and to the oil and other resources off their shores.

At a news briefing, Amerasinghe described the session as being "neither a failure nor a success." It was not a success because it had failed to produce an agreement, he explained, but it could not be called a failure since "it did not break up."

Amerasinghe's appeal to the conference was sparked by the fear of developing countries that Washington may begin licensing American firms to scoop up the mineral rich manganese nodules on the ocean floor without waiting for the conference to agree on an international regime to control such mining.

AN OFFICIAL delegation of the so-called "Group of 77" developing countries had called on him, Amerasinghe said, to express "grave concern" about statements made in what they considered to be "responsible quarters."

This was an unmistakable reference to views expressed in Washington that a start on the mining of the seabed cannot be indefinitely delayed.

While no time for the treaty's completion had been specified, the statements were "so categorical as to prove disturbing" to the developing countries, the president said. He noted that none of these countries had itself the "financial or technological capacity" to go into ocean bed mining.

In a comment of his own Amerasinghe said that no unilateral action was justified because it "cannot be maintained seriously that the conference has had all the time it needed" to complete a treaty.

"Too much is at stake to be imperiled by unduly precipitate action," he said.

AFTER THE session closed, John R. Stevenson, leader of the U.S. delegation met with newsmen and said that the "sharpest disagreement" at the conference was on the question of the exploitation of the seabed.

The developing countries want all rights to the seabed's resources and their exploitation to be vested in a new international organization. But the U.S., as Stevenson explained in a prepared statement, could not agree to "give ultimate powers of exclusive exploitation to a single new international entity."

Gallo Winery to appeal state safety citation

MODESTO (AP) — A Gallo Winery official said Friday the firm would appeal a safety citation resulting from the electrocution of two vineyard workers.

The state Division of Industrial Safety fined Gallo $75 Thursday for allowing a hydraulic grape stake stapling device to be operated near high-voltage power lines.

THE APPEAL will be based on disagreement between the state investigators and the division's San Francisco headquarters over whether there was a violation, said Dan Solomon, Gallo public relations official.

Manuel Nunes, 24, and Salvadore Arroya, 22, both of Livingston, were electrocuted when they tried to free an arm of the machine caught in high tension lines April 11 at Gallo's ranch near Livingston south of here.

A state inspection which followed that accident also resulted in 18 other safety violations, four of which carried $35 fines, said George Harris, assistant chief of the industrial safety office in San Francisco.

However, Harris said the number of violations found at the Gallo ranch was not unusual.

"Our people determined that Gallo has an effective safety program which includes good faith in eliminating any unsafe conditions they may be aware of," Harris said.

After the electrocutions and the death of Roberto Torres, 53, of Merced in a tractor accident at the ranch May 1, the United Farm Workers of America demanded stronger safety measures. The AFL-CIO farm workers union has been boycotting Gallo since the company refused to renew a UFW farm labor contract in mid-1973 and signed instead with the Teamsters.

"Gallo should not allow machinery to operate within close vicinity of high-voltage electrical lines, and in fact it is against the law to do so," the union's statement said.

"The Gallos should be spending more of their money on insuring safety for their workers instead of pouring millions of dollars into advertising to defeat the striking workers' legitimate desire to be represented by the United Farm Workers of America," the statement continued.

SOLOMON said the stapling machine had been used for two decades and the highway patrol reported the tractor tipped over when Torres turned too fast.

"These were the first occupational fatalities since we began operating the Livingston ranch more than 30 years ago," Solomon said. "I think that's a damn good record."

National farmer group loses tax-exempt status

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service said Friday that the National Farmers Organization, one of the largest farm groups in the nation, has lost its tax-exempt status.

An IRS spokesman confirmed the decision but declined to elaborate.

NFO President Oren Lee Staley later said his organization would appeal the IRS ruling.

He said the IRS "has made a unilateral determination that the NFO cannot retain its tax-exempt status on the grounds that we sell our members' products."

"We will, of course, appeal the ruling," Staley said. "We bargain products for members. They sell them."

HE contended that the tax ruling would have little financial impact on the NFO.

"NFO has no profits to tax, so whether we are left in tax-exempt status or not, after the IRS decision has been tested, it will have little effect on us except for the elaborateness of annual reports to the IRS which we are required to prepare," Staley said.

A source close to the NFO said the organization would be required to file tax returns going back to 1968 and would undergo IRS audits.

The NFO previously had filed returns as a nonprofit corporation, but the IRS ruled that it does not qualify for such status.

The IRS also ruled that the NFO does not qualify for the special tax status granted to agricultural cooperatives, a source said.

The NFO contends it is entitled to the same tax-exempt status as labor unions because the farm group performs "collective bargaining" for its members.

BUT the IRS ruled the NFO is actually a marketing organization that sells its members' goods and thus must be taxed as an ordinary corporation.

It does not appear that the IRS ruling will have any direct impact on NFO's members. One tax expert familiar with the case said that farmers probably would still be able to deduct their NFO dues from their taxable income as a business expense.

The IRS ruling was issued on May 2 after about 1½ years of discussions between the farm group and the IRS.

The NFO is best known publicly as the group that recently staged sales of beef, cheese and other farm products at below-retail prices in order to draw public attention to the spread between what consumers pay for groceries and what farmers receive for cattle, raw milk and other farm products.

The NFO also staged public killings of calves during an earlier farm-price protest.

GARDENING

Battling dichondra lawn weeds

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Many dichondra lawns have suffered from the onslaught of winter annual blue grass—the Poa Annua. This fine-blade annual grass weed, which has off-white and green ripening weed seeds, has been scattering over many dichondra and blade lawns.

Wise is the gardener who since last fall is still periodically applying a turf fertilizer that contains a pre-emerge herbicide to sterilize the seeds of blade weeds, crab grass and other seeds of small, but broad-leaf types.

If a gardener has chewings fescue in a dichondra lawn, the only control he can use is strictly a grass blade post-emerge herbcide, diluted in water with a wetting agent added.

He should barely spray it as if dew was on the blade weeds in order to get best control.

Dichondra, as well as blade lawns, should be fertilized at least once every three months for best growth and greening. It is a fact, that a periodically well fed lawn tends to hold back the weeds from taking over the lawn.

PRICES are still climbing and so has the price of fertilizer. Here's an unusually informative experience I'd like to share in connection with the comment about rising prices. The manager of a store, whom I met while making a garden clinic appearance at a nursery, asked me if there was any difference between two competitive soil-builder turf-fertilizers, assuming they covered the same area of a lawn.

We started on product A, added the percentages of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, plus trace minerals, then multiplied the weight of the sack by the (percentages) total. We put the decimal point two figures from right to left. The answer was 22.95 live-weight pounds in the first sack of fertilizer.

The same addition and multiplication occurred with product B, except for one ingredient which overlapped into tenths. We then knew we had to put the decimal point three digits from right to left. The answer was 10,884 pounds of live-weight in that sack.

The shocking answer was that product (A) had double the amount of live-weight fertilizers and cost $5 less than the (B) product.

WE DIDN'T have enough space to comment on tomatoes in one of our previous garden columns. Many gardeners are dismayed with the blossom drop of their earlier planted tomatoes. Fewer had fair success spraying the blooms several time with a flower set hormone.

Here's an interesting scientific tomato experiment that was sponsored by Sunset magazine some years ago. They presented a money grant to Dr. Fritz Went a plant scientist at Caltech to get an answer to why many blossoms drop before the fruit sets, and also why setting fruit drops off long before ripening.

Dr. Went planted test plots of tomatoes from the Mexican border on up the coast past Santa Barbara, also likewise inland and in the foothill areas.

MONTHS later Sunset published the results of the tests. The meat of the article was: The hotter the days and the warmer the nights, tomato flowers set, develop and the fruit ripens, assuming that other culture care factors are right.

We had planted tomatoes at two different times, earlier — near the foothills. The third time we planted them was around July 4th. We had more fruit than we could eat and gave many to our neighbors.

CHEWING FESCUES

GARDEN CLINIC

Q. I'm in a quandary and would appreciate your advice. I have carnations growing in redwood boxes where they were grown from nursery cuttings planted last year and have grown profusely all year, blooming continuously — lots of flowers. The plants are now three to four feet tall, although staked, they are matted, tangled, and wind-blown with heavy woody stems, but loaded with buds. What should be done?

— Can I cut them back severely? —Dig them out, break off pieces of the roots and plant several pieces? —Discard the plants and start all over with new plants? I've spent time in the library but found no helpful information on this problem. I'll be looking forward to your answer. —J.B., Long Beach.

A. Your best bet would be to dig them out of the boxes and throw them away. Replenish the soil with whatever organic amendment you used before. Buy new plants. Now, to avoid one important mistake which you made, is to snap off the tops as soon as the single branch grows to six inches. Hold the branch firmly an inch or so down from the top. Snap it off. Repeat similar operation when two or more branches grow out. Snapping off the tops forces more secondary branches to grow and plant grows roundy and lower. Additionally, each time you cut the flower off, whether for indoors or when the old blossoms have faded, cut down into the leafy portion of the branch several inches below the flower stem. You'll force still more secondary growth, which in turn produces more flowers. This also helps plant to avoid that awful tangled, wind-blown growth! Try growing some as suggested and you'll really like them.

Fewer mink kits mean fewer coats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fewer mink pelts will be available this year for fur coat fanciers, according to the Agriculture Department.

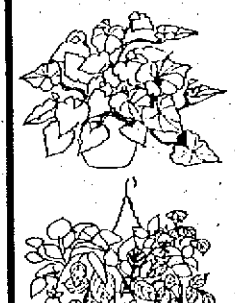

The department's Crop Reporting Board said Friday that only 870,000 female mink have been bred to have babies — called kits — in 1975. This is a four per cent decline from 1974.

'Nicholas and Alexandra' airs tonight and Sunday

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

An epic film about Russia's last royal family, "Nicholas and Alexandra," comes to television in two parts, tonight and Sunday night, on Channel 7.

The 1971 movie, which gained six Emmy nominations, will air from 9 to 11 this evening and from 8:30 to 10:30 Sunday.

As Czar Nicholas II and Empress Alexandra, Michael Jayston and Janet Suzman are the last of the Romanov rulers — rulers caught up in age of social upheaval and revolution.

They face personal, as well as social, tragedy in that their only son is incurably ill with hemophilia. Alexandra turns to the faith healer Rasputin, in desperation, and he comes to exert a powerful influence on the royal family.

Cast members include Tom Baker as Rasputin, Harry Andrews as Grand Duke Nicholas, Jack Hawkins as Count Fredericks, Curt Jurgens as the German consul, Laurence Olivier as Count Witte, Michael Redgrave as Sazonov and Irene Worth as the Queen Mother.

The story was adapted by James Goldman ("The Lion in Winter") from Robert K. Massie's best-selling biography. It was directed by Franklin Schaffner of "Patton" movie fame and produced by Sam Spiegel, who brought us "Lawrence of Arabia."

"Nicholas and Alexandra" was filmed on location in Spain and Yugoslavia.

A MOVIE of World War II action, "The Bridge at Remagen," produced in 1969, makes a return TV appearance on Channel 4 from 9 to 11:20 tonight. Heading the cast are George Segal, Robert Vaughn, Ben Gazzara, Bradford Dillman and E. G. Marshall.

And "Cleopatra," the 1963 epic starring Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton and Rex Harrison, returns to the tube tonight at 11:30 on Channel 7.

MICHAEL JAYSTON and Janet Suzman in a somber scene from "Nicholas and Alexandra" which comes to television in two parts this weekend.

MONTY HALL will host the "Help Make Their Dreams Come True" telethon conducted by the Variety Club of Southern California Tent 25 on Channel 5 starting at 11 tonight. The fund-raising show will continue until 6 p.m. Sunday.

This is the second annual telethon staged by Tent 25, a chapter of Variety Clubs International. Funds collected will remain in the Southland for children's projects — medical, educational and social.

Hall, host of "Let's Make a Deal," recently was elected president of Variety Clubs International at a convention in London. He and Binnie Barnes Frankovich are honorary cochairmen of the telethon. Numerous celebrities will take part in the 19-hour show.

"UPSTAIRS, Downstairs" returns to Channel 28 at 8:30 p.m. Sunday as the station begins repeating this season's 13 episodes. The concluding episode of "The Nine Tailors," preempted last Sunday by KCET's "Auction '75," will follow "Upstairs, Downstairs" on Channel 28 at 9:30.

The station's nine-day auction ends with this evening's program from 6 to midnight. KCOP (Channel 13) will simulcast one hour of Channel 28's auction from 10 to 11 tonight.

ROGER MILLER hosts the May edition of "The Ice Palace" on Channel 11 from 9 to 10 this evening. In addition to singer Miller, the 60-minute special features Sunday's Child, comics Clair and McMahon, Sweqish skating champion Gisela Head, the Bob Turk Ice Dancers and other skaters.

Channel 9 brings back an hour special, "Hobo Kelly at Marineland," at 5 p.m. today.

RADIO STATION KNAC (105.5 FM) will broadcast its second of two one-hour programs featuring Long Beach City Council candidates at 10:30 p.m. Sunday.

GOP, Demo figures give support to Kell

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Ernie Kell, Long Beach City Council candidate, Fifth District, Friday announced support of his candidacy by major figures in both the Republican and Democratic parties in the city.

The Republicans are Henry Clock and Slim Fowler, the Democrat, William A. Williams.

Clock said that Kell, "as a 20-year resident of our city, has shown that he is the kind of person who will bring sound business practices to the council. His high integrity will, without question, make him a valuable new member. I join Mayor (Edwin W.) Wade and other leading Republicans in our community who have put partisanship aside to endorse the truly outstanding candidate in the Fifth District, Ernie Kell."

Fowler, former campaign director for retired Republican Congressman Craig Hosmer, said, "Ernie Kell is one of the most decent men I have ever known. Having worked with Ernie on many civic programs I know him to be a tireless worker on behalf of our community."

Williams, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee for the Long Beach area's 31st Senate District, said he has known Kell for many years "and his concern for people and their problems convince me that we will have a man on the city council who will do much to make Long Beach one of the best communities in which to live and work."

Kell also announced endorsements by the Long Beach Firefighters Association and the Long Beach Police Officers Association.

Harold Omel, president of the firefighters group, called Kell "a man of total integrity."

Harry Duple, president of the police group, said it supports Kell "enthusiastically...because we know he will give strong support to law enforcement."

Edgerton lawyers

A lawyers' committee has endorsed the Second District, Long Beach City Council candidacy of Wallace Edgerton, stating, "His vigor, intelligence, independence and integrity make him clearly the better qualified candidate."

Included in the group are: James J. Baker, William D. Began, Robert M. Blakey, Robert M. Devitt, Warren H. Eckert, Thomas D. Griffin, Mason T. Kight, R.J. Kilpatrick, Patrick Madden, Philip M. Madden, Reed M. Williams, Edwin J. Wilson, Myron Blumberg, Betse Straub, William A. Fitzmorris, George McGill and John Peterson Jr.

Cerritos slate

The Cerritos Park Association, noting its position against expansion of commercial jet aircraft traffic at Long Beach Airport, has announced its slate of endorsements for Tuesday's Long Beach City Council election:

Don Phillips, First District; Wallace Edgerton, Second; Renee Simon, Third; E.F. Cruchley, Eighth, and Larry Jones, Ninth.

Harris in primary

Former Democratic Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma is scheduled to announce today his intention to enter California's Democratic presidential primary in 1976.

The announcement is to be made during a three-hour political workshop at Loyola University's Saint Robert's Hall.

Shinn for Bond

Robert Shinn, a former Second District candidate for Long Beach City Council, Friday announced his support of Vice Mayor Bert Bond for reelection in the Second and cautioned voters "not to seek change for change's sake, especially when the change comes in the form of a Trojan Horse."

Shinn said he and Bond had reached a number of understandings which he said merit voter attention:

(1) Support recommendations of the Sasaki-Walker coastal plan; (2) that the council should begin to rezone Ocean Boulevard to a lower density; (3) that more stringent controls on heights, sideyards and setbacks should be placed in the zoning code; (4) that no building should be permitted to cast shadows beyond 10 feet on the yards of rear neighbors, and (5) that the building code should be amended to include "energy performance" criteria for new buildings.

2 L.B. brothers guilty of assault in cafe fray

A Superior Court jury has found two Long Beach brothers guilty of assault charges in connection with a coffee shop fight which ended with one young man stabbed and another seriously wounded by bullets.

Ervin Eddy Gonzales, 23, was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon plus a special allegation he used a firearm in commission of the crime. That allegation, if proven, could add several years to any prison sentence.

Larry Gonzales, 19, was convicted of a misdemeanor charge of simple assault, according to prosecutor Greg Somes.

The verdicts were handed down late Thursday by a jury which deliberated nearly three days at the close of a two-week trial in the court of Judge D. Sterry Fagan.

The brothers were arrested along with two other young men last Aug. 5, two weeks after the fight which ended in the parking lot of the Golden Star coffee shop, 2001 E. Carson St.

David Hust, 19, of Lakewood, was struck by bullets in the chest and hand during the fight, and his 17-year-old companion, Frank Sainburg, received several less serious wounds, apparently from a knife, witnesses testified.

Witnesses told the court that the fight began in the coffee shop, and that Hust was wounded when he pursued the defendants into the parking lot.

Charges against a third defendant in the case, Antonio Ricky Leatham, 21, were dismissed at the start of the trial when the judge ruled that statements Leatham made to investigators were inadmissible as evidence.

The fourth man arrested in the case was freed when prosecutors refused to file a formal complaint against him.

Judge Fagan ordered the brothers, who remain free on bail, to return to court May 29 for probation hearing and sentencing in the case.

Launching of satellites set

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two twin satellites designed to provide secret worldwide communications for United States defense forces were scheduled to be launched into space next Tuesday, officials announced Friday.

The satellites, weighing 1,200 pounds each, will be placed in orbit by a single Titan 3C rocket. One will be positioned over the Indian Ocean and the other over the Pacific Ocean in stationary orbits some 22,300 miles above the earth.

The two Triple 7 satellites will join two similar satellites launched in December 1973 to complete the military's communication system, officials said.

8 jailed in raid on 'Kitty's Place'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The business cards said the opulent Victorian establishment with 15 waterbeds was "The Golden Gate Foundation of San Francisco."

But police said it was better known as "Kitty's Place."

The business cards said it was "dedicated to the preservation of fine traditions." But police arrested seven women, investigating charges of "house of ill fame."

Police said the establishment was equipped with electronic beepers to summon the women to plush mirrored rooms.

Capt. Gerald Shaughnessy, head of the police bureau of special services, said Kitty Desmond, 29, six women and a handyman were arrested when vice officers raided the house Thursday night.

Miss Desmond — named on business cards as "executive director" of the foundation — was booked for investigation of pimping, pandering and keeping a house of ill fame.

The women were booked for investigation of being inmates of a house of ill fame, and the handyman, Mike Harris, 27, was booked as a keeper, Shaughnessy said.

Oil overcharges at $6 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Illegal overcharges by oil companies may be as high as $6 billion, Rep. William S. Moorhead said Friday.

Moorhead, D-Pa., said the estimate was provided his staff by a Federal Energy Administration official he declined to name.

Moorhead, chairman of a House energy subcommittee, commented as FEA chief Frank G. Zarb appeared before the panel to deliver a general briefing on the agency's activities.

Part of Zarb's 30-page statement covered FEA enforcement of price regulations covering the oil industry. Zarb said FEA already had obtained price reductions of $161 million and disapproved another $418 million in potential overcharges.

Moorhead told Zarb he had seen news reports saying that FEA was investigating overcharges of another $860 million.

Gorman Smith, an assistant administrator, said the figure was "reasonably correct," but included some charges the oil companies had not yet passed along to consumers.

He said a program should be ready by midsummer. Zarb indicated that utilities able to burn coal would be among the first ordered to turn to other fuels.

Versatile mobile homes

The 1975 models of mobile homes are difficult to distinguish from conventional housing, both outside and inside. Exteriors today are of wood, brick, stucco or stone. Interiors include wet bars, rich paneling, sunken rooms, spacious master bedrooms suites and large comfortable kitchen areas.

Mobile homes come in three sizes — singles, double and triple-wides, with the doublewides possibly the most popular mobile homes in Southern California, the most in demand by the average family.

Each home comes complete with carpeting, draperies and brand-name kitchen appliances. However, home owners with a desire to give a distinguishing touch to their domicile can easily add front and rear patios, decks, sun porches, awnings, extra utility rooms and even a fireplace.

"That," says Don Elwood, show producer, "is where the versatility of a mobile home comes in."

The average home owner must buy a lot and build his home, or buy a house and lot in one parcel. Not Mr. and Mrs. Mobile Home Owners.

They buy a mobile home and have it towed to the site they prefer, usually in an attractive mobile home park. Mobile homes can be purchased on the installment plan with a reasonable down payment and moderate monthly payments thereafter. New models are usually financed on a seven-year basis.

Mobile home show is scheduled

The third Annual Southern California Mobile Home Show has been schedule for a nine-day-run, Saturday, May 10, through Sunday, May 18, at Anaheim Stadium. Don Elwood is producer.

A native of Wisconsin, and currently a California resident, Elwood is a 24-year veteran of public trade shows. He is also associated with H. Werner Buck Enterprises, handling both advertising and promotion.

The show will be set up in what Elwood calls "The Mobile Home Village," which will occupy a choice section of the Angel Stadium parking lot. A complete lineup of the newest mobile home models will be on display — singles, doubles and triplewides. Elwood reports that well over three-fourths of the exhibitor space available has already been taken by manufacturers, dealers and suppliers of mobile home equipment and services.

The mobile home industry, according to Elwood, has shown a steady increase in both public interest and sales over the past few years. The reason is obvious, as these "manufactured housing units," — as they are called — possess inherent advantages to potential home buyers.

Mobile homes come completely equipped and furnished with built-in kitchen, bathroom, living room and bedroom accessories. Mobile homes have generous wall space and closets. Bedroom, kitchen areas and bathrooms are usually larger than conventional housing. Buyers of mobile homes can order a unit and expect delivery a week or so later.

Hours are noon to 7:30 p.m. on Sundays; 2:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on weekdays; and noon to 9:30 p.m. on Saturdays. (Note: on Mother's Day, May 11, all moms will be admitted free.)

General admission is $2 for adults; $1 for children, 10 to 16 years; small fry free.

They fit coach to customer

American Mobilhome Resales, the oldest mobile home resale brokers in Orange County reports, over $1,000,000 in resales annually for the past six years.

The firm, located at 16461 Magnolia, Westminster, specializes in both in-park and move-out resales of mobile homes.

Headed by Victor Elliott, Bill Roth and his wife Pearl, the company features personal evaluation of coach and customer and states that by fitting the home to the customers particular needs and budget they are satisfying the home-buying requirements.

Mobile homes to be equipped with solar heat

A 60-foot Skyline mobile home, produced in Elkhart, Ind., has been equipped for heating and air conditioning by energy direct from the sun by the General Electric Space Division.

This is only one of several such projects that members of the "manufactured housing" industry are conducting in conjunction with various research companies, according to Bill Harris, former president of the California Mobile Home Dealers Association.

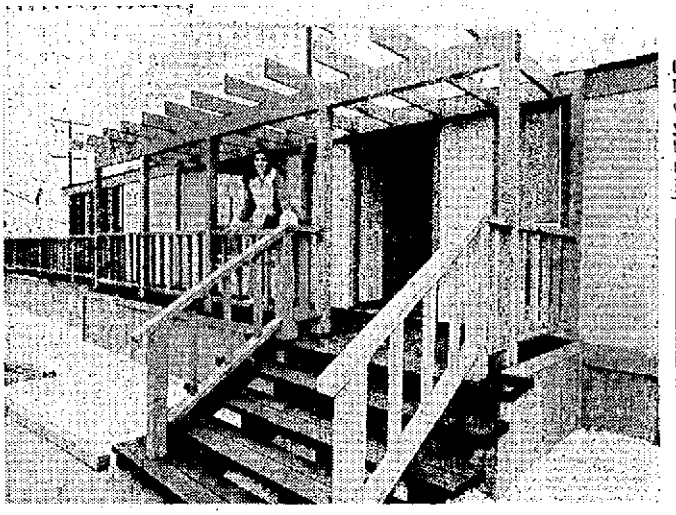

Funded by the National Science Foundation's RANN Program (Research Applied to National Needs), nineteen 3-foot by 8-foot GE solar collector panels were mounted on a standard 12-foot x 60-foot mobile home, which had been modified with additional insulation, and the enclosing of necessary piping and pumps in wall spaces and one large closet.

Each GE solar panel consists of a black, heat-absorbing surface beneath two rigid sheets of clear plastic. As sunlight passes through the plastic windows, the solar heat is trapped on the inside and transferred to water, which is then pumped to the absorption-type heat and cooling system.

A 400-gallon tank stores surplus hot water to run the heating and air conditioning during cloudy periods or at night. A gas fired boiler serves as a back-up system.

Studies are also underway to develop designs easily adaptable to the incorporation of solar energy systems for mobile housing.

While cost figures at this time are prohibitive, Harris predicts that within two or three years, solar energy systems will be available for manufactured homes at reasonable prices.

Go mobile at beach

A spacious porch makes the versatility of this new mobile home perfect for the beach. In addition, a wide variety of decking and carports are available to the mobile home owner which gives their new home function and permanence.

L.B. Furniture

Long Beach Furniture, Sixth Street and Long Beach Boulevard, now in its 34th year at the same location and under the management of Mike Merlino for the past 24 years, has been one step ahead of the downtown improvement.

The building was remodeled two years ago to help promote the downtown image.

Hydroponic garden area is set at show

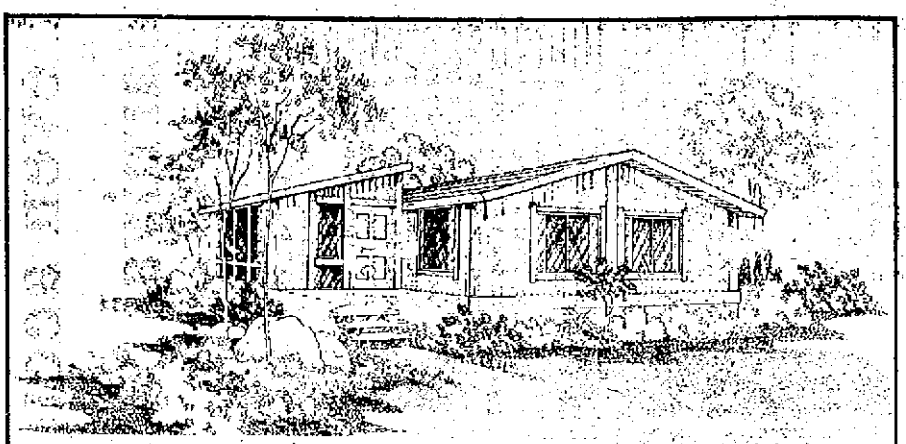

A park-like area devoted to hydroponic gardening will be one of the features at the Southern California Mobile Home Show Saturday through Sunday, May 18 at Anaheim Stadium.

The Art Aselin Co., Pomona, is installing four model green houses, 6x8x7½ feet and an 8x16-foot model around the show's Village Square. These will contain flowers and vegetables being grown by hydroponic methods — man-made gravel nurtured by water and nutrients. In addition, pots containing live rose bushes and dwarf fruit trees will also be set up in the area.

Aselem and his sales manager, Tom Cooper, explained that hydroponic gardening takes up so little room this method of raising fruits, vegetables and other edibles, has been attracting the attention of mobile home park owners throughout the Southland. Three mobile home communities in Brea, Sylma and Palm Springs now feature such areas and numerous mobile home residents have also installed mini-hydroponic gardening facilities right next to their homes.

The greenhouses at the Anaheim Mobile Home Show come completely equipped with gas heaters, air conditioning and the special plumbing facilities required. According to Cooper, the advantages of Hydroponic gardening and farming are numerous, including a 20% increase in growth and the fact that vegetables etc. can be grown all year round without worrying about the seasons.

Hydroponic farming first came to the attention of the public back in 1938 and today many such projects are in operation in South Africa, England and Israel. Vast farmlands are under hydroponic cultivation in Israel. In Southern California farmers have around 500 acres of commercial farmland devoted to this method.

Levitt introduces the triple

Levitt Construction Systems, Inc. the leader in the field of manufactured housing for many years, introduces its triple-wide "Third Dimension" design concept of mobile homes for the first time at the Southern California Mobile Home Show at Anaheim Stadium, Saturday through next Sunday, May 18.

Containing from 1,600 to 2,300 square feet of usable area, the new homes range in size from two to four bedrooms with two baths. Included are such features as: refrigerator, range, oven, dishwasher, disposal, carpeting and drapes throughout, selection of wallpaper, cathedral ceilings and separate utility area.

Optional amenities are: air conditioning, microwave ovens, trash compactors, "Nutone" mixing centers with blenders; wet bars, intercom system, washer and dryer, ceramic tile in kitchens and baths, deluxe carpeting and drapes, and such interior construction features as desks, shelves, mirrored wardrobe doors and others.

Exterior optional features to increase the native value of any Levitt Mobile Home are shake roofs, wood shiplap siding and fixed glass.

Levitt's standard homes range in size from 1,400 to 1,775 square feet of area with either two or three bedrooms and all with two baths.

The firm holds an open house for the mobile-home buying public from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays at its plant — 10800 Kalama River Road, just off the Euclid Street exit from the San Diego (405) Freeway in Fountain Valley.

Book offers good tips

More than 7,000,000 Americans live in mobile homes today, and the number is increasing by the month.

This curious shift of interest from the conventional home to the mobile home could understandably be attributed to the soaring costs of building or buying the former type of dwelling.

Consider the facts.

An ordinary, unfurnished conventional home will cost the buyer at least $20,000 — without mentioning interest rates and additional expenses for furnishing it.

On the other hand, a moderately sized, completely furnished two-bedroom mobile home could be purchased for as little as $5,000 with just a downpayment of $600 to $1,200 with only linens, dishes and clothing to worry about.

You can find the impressive facts about mobile homes in a new book, "The Complete Book of Mobile Home Living" by Lyle Kenyon Engel. This well-illustrated volume is a valuable compendium of information on mobile home living — selecting and buying the home that will suit a family's needs and budget, finding a reliable dealer, financing the purchase, home maintenance, warrantees and guarantees, and taxes.

The book especially recommends the Woodall Directory as a helpful guide in picking a site for the mobile home, and lists mobile home publications and associations to which the home buyer or owner can turn for further information or assistance.

Buy your mobile home with care

Buying a mobile home just right for your needs is easy. Check the various mobile home dealers in your area for the latest in styling, then visit a number of mobile home parks to see the living style of owners who have already made the big decision.

There are three basic factors to be considered in purchasing a mobile home — financing, finding a suitable community or park in which to live, and choosing a workable floorplan. All of these must be given careful thought.

Here, for example, is a checklist on financing which covers the more important areas:

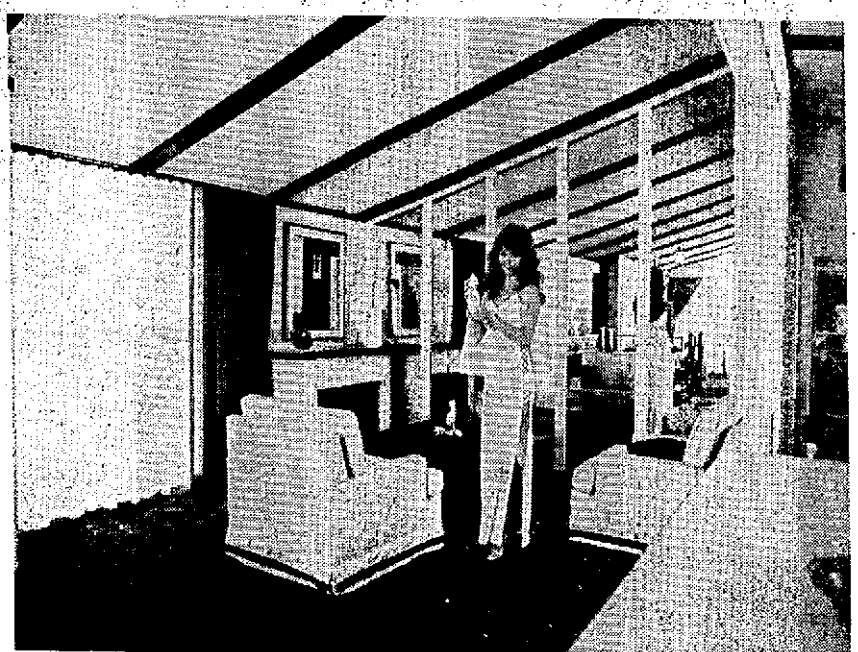

1. Monthly payments. Know the total amount and the number of years involved. Know the cost of financing in terms of annual interest.

2. Know the total cost of the placement of the home on its site, with the necessary skirting, steps and hand rails, all essential "extras".

3. Know the monthly cost of rent in the community park and what amenities are offered.

space and determine if it can accommodate your type of mobile home. In the same vein, if you are planning to situate your mobile home on private property, be sure to acquaint yourself with local restrictions.

5. Choosing the "right" floorplan, appropriate to your family needs is also of utmost importance.

Interior reflection

Mirrored walls in this mobile home living room reflect the spaciousness which includes fireplace and large picture window. Beamed ceilings are also popular with mobile home owners giving an elegant look.

Sierra Dawn plans final unit

Over 12 years ago Sierra Dawn Mobile Home Estates was established in Hemet. It was a first at that time to purchase a lot instead of the usual rental of space.

The founding fathers of Sierra Dawn could see the need and economy of the mobile home dweller to buy his lot and protect himself against future rent increases in rental parks. With the present day property tax exemption, a lot owner and resident will have a very minimum — or no — real estate tax on a Sierra Dawn lot.

It is a known fact that a Sierra Dawn lot and mobile home unencumbered, can live on their Social Security checks. That's hard to beat, considering the fact that each owner has country club living . . . three large club houses with color television, tournament shuffleboard courts, seven heated pools, therapeutics and saunas, and activities for everyone such as weekly dances, hobby rooms, ceramics, art, woodworking shop, lapidary, sewing, billiards, cards.

The fourth and final 50-acre unit is now being subdivided. The sales office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 950 S. Lyon St.,

Modular or mobile?

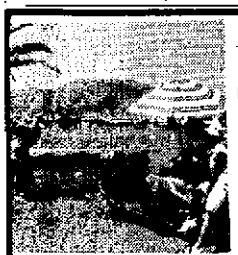

One of the newest ideas in housing is the modular unit . . . and many people have a problem in telling whether this one is modular or mobile? Many mobile home manufacturers are adding modular housing to their production lines which give quality homes at low prices. Modular housing combines mobile home affordability with the advantages of permanent, site-built homes.

Interiors have gone all the way

Gone is the drab, aluminum-sided box on wheels once considered the typical mobile home. Today's mobile home is chic and sleek and economical, too. The mobile home industry has changed its image. The pink and white metal exterior banded with chrome is obsolete. Commonplace interiors in neutral shades are being replaced by imaginative furnishings and built-in storage units. Beamed ceilings, mirrored walls, wet bars and beautifully paneled walls are just a few of extras now found in the mobile-way-of-living instead of the box-like interiors of the past.

Camping areas for everyone

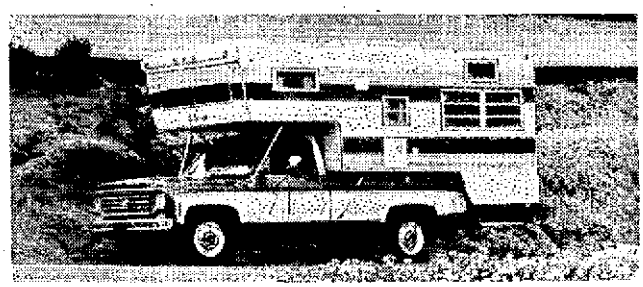

Camp grounds alternatives available to today's camping families provide enough variation in services and amenities to suit all tastes and needs.

The National Forests offer exceptionally scenic camping areas and are rarely overcrowded. Utility hookups and paved sites are not usually available, but these are not needed for self-contained RVs. Similar facilities are offered at campgrounds operated by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the National Wildlife Refuge. The thousands of campsites provided at major national parks are extremely popular and usually have more services and facilities available for campers. Campgrounds in state, county and municipal parks can be found throughout the country and are used by campers as vacation sites and for overnite stops while traveling. Camping fees at these public campgrounds range from $1 to $4.50 per day. Campgrounds in the private sector provide the majority of campsites and are in one of three categories: franchised, privately operated and condominium. Largest of the franchised type is Kampgrounds of America (KOA) with over 700 campgrounds in the U.S., Canada and Mexico. There are dozens of other franchised groups including some affiliated with national motel chains. Virtually all have camp stores, recreation rooms and bathhouses with hot showers and flush toilets. Many have swimming pools or have access to lakes or rivers. Most provide electricity, water and sewage facilities at each site.

Privately owned campgrounds often cater to local campers who are spending a week-end away from home. Facilities are similar to those at franchised campgrounds. Overnite fees at both range from $3 to $7. Fees at campgrounds located in resort areas that feature more extensive activities and services range up to $11 per nite.

Sites at condominium campgrounds are purchased by the camper.

Officials of the Trailer Coach Association say these recreation homes on wheels used by millions of Americans are very safe, safer even than automobiles.

"Due to its multiplicity of uses, a recreation vehicle is subject to more safety standards than any comparable vehicle," explained Van Dyck Hubbard, Specifications Administrator for Open Road Industries, and chairman of TCA's Recreation Vehicle Legislative Affairs Committee.

Hubbard, who also serves on TCA's standards committee, said, "All recreation vehicle chassis are subject to 22 safety standards enforced by the Federal Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

"Before a recreation vehicle can be offered for sale in California, the plans must be approved by the California Department of Housing," Hubbard said. Housing officials scrutinize the plans, checking fire safety and electrical, mechanical and plumbing systems. "In addition, recreation vehicles are inspected in the plant during their construction by Department of Housing inspectors," said Hubbard. "California codes and standards, followed by the industry and enforced by the Department of Housing, incorporate the provisions of American National Standards Institute (ANSI) standards set for recreation vehicles," added Lee W. Moses, National Recreation Vehicle and Standards Director for TCA.

A matter of self containment

Self-containment in a recreational vehicle simply means that it contains heating, electricity and plumbing facilities. Most self-contained units provide a family of four with approximately one week's supply of water, LP gas fuel and sanitary disposal storage.

A fully self-contained recreational vehicle is usually equipped with combination gas/electric refrigerator, range, water heater, gas and electric lights, kitchen sink, heater, lavatory with bathing facilities, dining and sleeping accommodations. Liquid petroleum stored in cylinders outside the unit provides fuel for gas-operated appliances and lights. A fresh water tank, pressurized or gravity type, supplies water for drinking, cooking, bathing and sanitation.

Holding tanks store the used water and waste materials until they can be disposed of at a sanitary station.

Electric power can be temporarily provided by 12-volt (automotive) batteries, primarily for lighting. The 110-volt electrical system can be utilized when a hook-up to an outside power source is available. Some self-contained recreational vehicles are equipped with gasoline-powered electric generators.

It is estimated that 80 per cent of the travel trailers, truck campers and motor homes now being produced offer self-containment. The trend to self-containment in recreational vehicles is the result of greater consumer demand for independent, live-anywhere freedom.
